An Instructional Model for Today's Classroom

Research-based instruction helps you address literacy, content knowledge, social-emotional learning, and student curiosity – while saving you time.

WHY BRIDGE? As teachers, we know that reading and writing are reciprocal. The Bridge makes this crucial connection perfectly clear for your students. They have the opportunity to read as writers and write for readers with every selection!

Foster a Love of Reading

Student Interactive

The all-in-one Student Interactive includes full-color practice pages and selections from award-winning authors and illustrators.

Read ALOUD

Read Aloud Trade Books draw students into real texts, language, and conversations. (Full lesson plans available on Realize!)

Mentor STACK

Mentor Texts immerse students in the genre and techniques you're teaching during writing instruction.

BOOK CLUB

Book Club provides a set-aside time for students to meet in small groups to discuss a trade book for the unit. This collaboration, centered around meaningful conversation, increases student engagement and fosters a love of reading.

Building a Park

Ray and his family live in a city. The houses on their street have small yards. No one has room for a slide. The yards are too small to play ball.

The neighbors wanted to build a park. First, they picked a spot. There was an empty lot on the street. It was the right type of place for a park.

Next, the neighbors made drawings of the park. They put in places to play. They put in tables where people could eat. Everyone helped to clean up the lot.

Academic Vocabulary
type noun that names things that are alike in some important way

Characters
Mr. Johnson and Mrs. Silva are characters in this story.

Phonics
Consonant m made Short a snacks

One group of neighbors planted grass. Another group helped Mr. Johnson build tables. Mrs. Silva's company gave swings and slides. People helped to set them up. Now Ray's neighborhood has a place for people to play, rest, and eat.

Unlock the Meaning of the Text
Characters The neighbors are characters in this story. Which details in the text tell what the neighbors do?

Academic Vocabulary In the first paragraph above, group is a noun that names "a number of people or things together." Name some groups that you are part of.

WEEK 1 LESSON 2
READING WORKSHOP FOUNDATIONAL SKILLS

Word Work

OBJECTIVES
Decode words with initial and final consonant blends, digraphs, and trigraphs.
Identify and read common high-frequency words.

ADDITIONAL PRACTICE
For additional student practice with consonant digraphs and trigraphs, use Phonics, p. 137 from the Resource Essentials Center.

Phonics: Decode and Write Words with Digraphs and Trigraphs

MiniLesson
FOCUS Tell students that digraphs are two letters that spell one sound and trigraphs are three letters that spell one sound. Explain that consonant digraphs and trigraphs might be at the beginning or end of a word.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the following words on the board: ranch, catch, while, match, when, whale, chip, rich, Phil. Then point to each word and have students decode it. Have students then create a T-chart and label the first column Begin and the second column End. If a word has a digraph or trigraph spelling the beginning sound, that word would be written in the first column. If a word has a digraph or trigraph spelling the ending sound, that word would be written in the second column.

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have partners decode the words at the top of p. 15 in the Student Interactive.

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply
OPTION 1 | Turn, Talk, and Share Have students complete the rest of p. 15 and p. 16 in the Student Interactive.

Notice and Assess Are students able to decode and write words with digraphs and trigraphs?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction for Phonics in Small Group on pp. 146-147.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction for Phonics in Small Group on pp. 146-147.

QUICK CHECK
Write the words good, no, put, round, said. Have students
• say and spell each word.
• use each word in a sentence.
• write the words and practice spelling them with a partner.
• take turns dictating and spelling.

OBJECTIVES

Self-select text and interact independently with text for increasing periods of time.

Establish purpose for reading assigned and self-selected texts with adult assistance.

Recognize characteristics of multimedia and digital texts.

Identify characteristics of the seasons of the year and day and night.

Essential Question

Introduce the Essential Question for Unit 5: How do the seasons affect us? Tell students they will read many texts to learn about the seasons. Explain that reading different texts about the seasons helps us learn about what the different seasons are and the characteristics of each.

Watch the Unit Video Tell students that a video gives information through sound and pictures. Have students listen to and watch the Unit 5 Video, “Four Fun Seasons.”

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Tell partners to discuss what they can learn about how to describe the seasons by watching the video. Use the following questions to guide their discussions.

- How is each season different?
- Describe the season you like most and explain why.

The screenshot shows a student interactive page for Unit 5, titled "Beyond My World". The background is a vibrant autumn forest scene. The page is divided into several sections:

- Unit 5: Indicated by a circular icon in the top left.
- Essential Question: "How do the seasons affect us?"
- Watch: A video player for "Four Fun Seasons" with a play button. Below it, a "TURN and TALK" prompt asks, "How can you describe each season?"
- Savvas Realize: A purple sidebar with the text "Go ONLINE for all lessons." and buttons for VIDEO, AUDIO, GAME, ANNOTATE, BOOK, and RESEARCH.
- Spotlight on Informational Text: A yellow banner at the top right.
- Reading Workshop: A green-bordered box containing a list of resources:
 - Infographic: Seasons of an Apple Tree

- Reading-Writing Bridge: A blue-bordered box with a cartoon character and the following items:
 - Academic Vocabulary
 - Read Like a Writer, Write for a Reader
 - Spelling • Language and Conventions
- Writing Workshop: A purple-bordered box with a cartoon character and the following items:
 - Plan Your How-To Book
 - Create Simple Graphics • Features and Simple Graphics
 - Edit for Punctuation Marks • Publish and Celebrate
- Project-Based Inquiry: A yellow-bordered box with the items:
 - Inquire • Research • Collaborate
- Page Number: A small blue circle with the number "7" in the bottom right corner.

ELL Targeted Support Prior Knowledge Play the video “Four Fun Seasons.”

Focus on words and facts in the video. Ask students if they have heard these words before and if they know what they mean. EMERGING

Begin by asking students what words they know related to weather, and then move on to facts in the video. DEVELOPING

Independent Reading

Self-Select Texts Read aloud p. 8 in the Student Interactive. Remind students that readers interact with texts for increasing periods of time. Then have them:

- Select a text and try to read for longer periods of time.
- Prepare to Think, Talk, and Share their independent book with a partner. Tell them to establish, or set, a purpose for reading their self-selected text. This will help them think about what they are reading. Then they can talk and share their ideas.
- Record the time they spend interacting independently with the text on p. 9.

INDEPENDENT READING

Read Together

Independent Reading

Select a book to read on your own. Each time you read, try reading for a longer period of time. It may be helpful to check a clock or use a timer. After you read, you can meet with friends to tell about your book.

MY TURN Use this list to get ready to tell about your book.

- Think about what you are reading.

I think _____

- Talk about what you read with a partner. Remember to:
 - take turns speaking.
 - listen to each other.
 - ask each other questions.
- Share your ideas with the class.

UNIT 5

INTRODUCE THE UNIT

OBJECTIVE

Respond using newly acquired vocabulary as appropriate.

ELL Language Transfer

Cognates Point out the Spanish cognates in this unit's Academic Vocabulary:

- information: información
- process: proceso

Word Wall

Begin an Academic Vocabulary Word Wall for display. Add to the Word Wall as you generate new vocabulary related to the theme throughout the unit.

Unit Goals

- Read aloud the bulleted list of goals on p. 10 in the Student Interactive.
- My TURN Have students color the “thumbs up” if they feel they have already accomplished the goal or the “thumbs down” if they think they have more to learn.

Students will revisit this page in Week 6.

Academic Vocabulary

Oral Vocabulary Routine Academic Vocabulary is language used to talk about ideas. Explain that as students work through the unit, they will learn and use these academic words to talk about the seasons. Read aloud p. 11 in the Student Interactive. Then use the EXPAND and ASK questions for each word. Have students respond, or say something in reply to someone else, using the newly acquired Academic Vocabulary as appropriate.

Expand: Sight, sound, smell, taste, and touch are the five senses.

Ask: What things can you sense in this room?

Expand: To expect something means that you think it will happen.

Ask: What weather do you expect when it is dark and cloudy outside?

Expand: The word process can be used in different ways, but it has to do with a series of events that have a specific end goal.

Ask: What is your process to get ready for school in the morning?

Expand: Information can be knowledge that you gain through study or instruction.

Ask: What is a piece of information that you learned recently?

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have students use knowledge of the Academic Vocabulary words as they talk about the picture.

EXPERT'S VIEW Elfrieda "Freddy" Hiebert, CEO/President, TextProject, Inc.

“Prior knowledge is critical to comprehension. It is students' knowledge of the topic of a text that makes a text easy or hard. In myView, we are not asking teachers to give students the prior knowledge needed to be proficient readers in college, careers, and communities. Rather, myView involves students in reading texts to gain background knowledge and in acquiring the vocabulary that underlies proficient reading.”

See SavvasRealize.com for more professional development on research-based best practices.

ELL Targeted Support Use Academic Language Use the oral vocabulary routine to help students internalize new academic language.

Use the Language Transfer note to internalize the meanings of the two academic words. Have students spell the words aloud in English. EMERGING

Use sentence stems to help students compose short, meaningful phrases that include one of the academic words. Then have students read their phrases aloud. DEVELOPING

Have student pairs ask and answer one of the “ask” questions with their partner. EXPANDING

Have student pairs take turns asking and answering the “ask” questions from the oral vocabulary routine. BRIDGING

WEEK 1 LESSON 1 READING WORKSHOP GENRE & THEME

Listening Comprehension

OBJECTIVES
Listen actively. Use relevant strategies to learn information and answer questions about a text or passage.
Use appropriate body cues, facial expressions, and gestures to respond to the speaker.

Read Aloud
Tell students that you are going to read aloud an informational text, "Sunlight and Seasons." Tell students to be active listeners by paying attention and thinking about what you are reading. Have them ask and answer questions about key details in the text related to the read-aloud.

ELL Language Transfer
Objective: Point out the Spanish equivalent of "Sunlight and Seasons."
• Spanish: clima
• Spanish: estaciones

FLUENCY
After completing the Read Aloud activity, have students read aloud the text "Sunlight and Seasons." Before reading, ask students to predict what they think the text is about. Then, have students read the text aloud together. Encourage them to use the strategies they learned in the Read Aloud activity to help them understand the text.

Sunlight and Seasons
Why is there more daylight in summer than in winter? The answer has to do with how the Earth moves.
Imagine putting a toothpick right through the middle of a grape. If you twist the toothpick between your fingers, the grape will spin like a top. The Earth spins too. It has an imaginary line that runs from the North Pole to the South Pole, sort of like the toothpick in the grape. That line is the Earth's axis. As the Earth spins on its axis, day turns to night and night turns to day.
The reason the amount of daylight changes is because Earth's axis is tilted a little bit. The part of the Earth that is tilted toward the sun gets more sunlight and warm weather. It is summer there.

Interactive Read Aloud

Fiction Lesson Plan

WHY
Interactive Read Aloud:
• Engage students to learn about their independent reading level.
• Engage students' comprehension.
• Enhance students' overall language development.
• Provide an opportunity to model fluency and expression reading.
• Foster a love and enjoyment of reading.

PLANNING
• Select a text from the Read Aloud Trade Book Library or the school or district library.
• Read the text aloud to the students.
• Determine the Teaching Point.
• Write your independent reading level. Record "Think Alouds" on sticky notes and place in the book at the points where you plan to stop to think with students.
• Discuss key vocabulary essential for understanding.

BEFORE READING
• Show the cover of the book to introduce the title, author, illustrator, and genre.
• Ask the big idea or theme of the story.
• Point out interesting artwork or photos.
• Gather prior knowledge and activate essential background necessary for understanding.
• Discuss key vocabulary essential for understanding.

DURING READING
• You can choose to stop and reading to students get to get to the end and enjoy. Think Alouds and open-ended questioning for a deeper dive into the text.
• Read with expression to draw in listeners.
• Ask questions to guide the discussion and draw attention to the teaching point.
• Use Think Alouds to model strategies and make sure use to monitor comprehension and correct reading level.
• Help students draw connections to their own experiences, text they have read or learned in the past, or the world.

AFTER READING
• Summarize and allow students to share thoughts about the story.
• Engage student comprehension by modeling the "Think Aloud" step of the story.
• Choose and assign a Student Response Form available on ReadAloud.com.

Finalists Teaching Points
• Monitor the story.
• Monitor the characters.
• Monitor the Teaching Point.
• Monitor the Theme.
• Monitor the Genre.
• Monitor the Point of View.

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Demonstrate understanding of spoken words, syllables, and sounds (phonemes).

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

Sound-Spelling Cards
86, 99

FOUNDATIONAL SKILLS EXTENSION

See p. T43 for a long o spelled oa, ow, oe extension activity that can be used as the text is read.

Phonological Awareness: Middle and Final Sounds

SEE AND SAY Point to the picture of the boat on p. 14 in the Student Interactive. Say: This is a picture of a boat. Listen carefully to each sound in the word boat: /b/ (pause) /ō/ (pause) /t/. What sound do you hear in the middle of boat? Repeat the sounds with students, then say: Yes, the sound /ō/ is in the middle of the word boat. Repeat with the pictures for toe and crow. Ask students to name the final sounds in toe and crow.

PRACTICE Say the first word from the following list: row, poem, goat, soap, bow, rope, tote, grow. Work with students to segment the sounds in the word and tell what sound they hear at the end. Continue with the other words, asking students to identify the middle or final sound.

Phonics: Decode Words with Long o Spelled oa, ow, oe

Minilesson

FOCUS Use Sound-Spelling Cards 86 (soap) and 99 (snow) to introduce long o spelled oa and ow. Use the word toe to introduce long o spelled oe. Tell students that the vowel sound they hear in the word soap, /ō/, can be spelled oa. Write the word soap on the board. Say the word again and have students repeat the word with you as you underline oa. Repeat using the words snow and toe to introduce long o spelled ow and oe.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write and read the word toe, emphasizing the long vowel sound. Say: The word toe has the long o vowel sound. Point to the spelling of the long o sound, oe. Say: In the word toe, long o is spelled with the vowel digraph oe. Have students repeat the word and the spelling. Repeat with the words goal and grow to practice the sound long o spelled with the vowel digraphs oa and ow.

APPLY My TURN Have students practice blending and decoding the words with long o on the bottom of p. 14 in the Student Interactive.

ELL Targeted Support Long Vowel Spellings To help students understand how the vowel sound is spelled in a particular word, emphasize the spelling of the vowel sound by underlining or pointing to the letters.

Write the word road. Segment the sounds as you point to the letters. Underline the letters oa to emphasize that the sound long o is spelled oa. Erase the letter r and replace it with the letter t. Repeat the procedure but ask students to say the sound when you underline oa. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Write the words coat, toe, toast, and snow. Have partners decode the words and identify the letters that spell the sound long o. Then have them use the words in sentences. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS

Write the high-frequency words buy, about, would, write, people. Tell students that they have to practice these words.

- Point to each word as you read it.
- Then spell the word and read it again.
- Have students spell and say the words with you.
- Tell students to write the words in their notebooks.

Interact with Sources

OBJECTIVES

Interact with sources in meaningful ways such as illustrating or writing.

Identify characteristics of the seasons of the year and day and night.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Language of Ideas The unit Academic Vocabulary words enable students to articulate ideas related to the theme. Use these words to teach and reinforce instruction throughout the lesson. For example, as you discuss the infographic, ask: What information does this infographic give about changes during the seasons? What other changes do you expect to see as the seasons change?

- information
- expect
- sense
- process

Songs and Poems Big Book

See the Songs and Poems Big Book for selections that relate to the unit's theme. Share the songs and poems with students throughout the unit.

Explore the Infographic

Remind students of the Essential Question for Unit 5: How do the seasons affect us? Point out and read the Week 1 Question: What happens during the seasons?

Have students follow along in their Student Interactive, pp. 12–13, as you read aloud “Seasons of an Apple Tree.” Then organize students into small groups and have them discuss how the pictures support the textual information. During the group discussions, encourage students to ask questions to make sure they understand the infographic.

Display the following statements as ideas groups might discuss:

- Trees change throughout the seasons.
- Each season has an effect on the life of a tree.

Then ask: What can you learn about trees and seasons by looking at this infographic? Guide students to go back to the infographic and make note of the type of information they find.

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have students interact with the infographic source by comparing the photographs that show how an apple tree changes from season to season.

WEEKLY QUESTION Remind students of the Weekly Question: What happens during the seasons? Tell them that the changes in trees are one effect of the changing seasons that we can see. Explain that this week students will read about other changes that occur as seasons change.

ELL Targeted Support Use Prior Experiences Engage students to recall prior experiences of seasons and apply their experience to language comprehension.

Have students discuss what happens during each season. Have them use their prior experiences for support. EMERGING

Ask students questions about each season, directing them to consider their own experiences. For example, ask: Are you cold or hot in this season? Continue until students have discussed each season. DEVELOPING

Have student pairs take turns describing an experience that has to do with a specific season. The partner will guess in which season that experience took place. EXPANDING

Have students silently read the infographic text and draw their own visuals to support the text. Remind them to draw visuals that reflect their own experiences with the seasons. Assign pairs and have each student show his or her visual. Ask the listener how the visual helped him or her understand the season. BRIDGING

Listen actively, ask relevant questions to clarify information, and answer questions using multi-word responses.

Use appropriate fluency (rate, accuracy, and prosody) when reading grade-level text.

Recognize characteristics and structures of informational text.

ELL Language Transfer

Cognates Point out the Spanish cognates in “Sunlight and Seasons”:

- center : centro
- imaginary : imaginario
- December : diciembre

FLUENCY

After completing the Read-Aloud Routine, display “Sunlight and Seasons.” Model reading aloud a short section of the text, asking students to pay attention to how you read. Explain that fluency is about reading in a manner that is most natural for the type of text. Tell students that this week they will read a text called Every Season. When it is time to read it, they should practice reading it in an interesting, natural way.

THINK ALOUD Analyze Informational Text After you reread the first two paragraphs, say: The title and the first paragraph let me know right away that this is an informational text. The title mentions sunlight and seasons. The first sentence asks a question about daylight and two seasons—summer and winter. So the amount of daylight in the season is the main idea. I will read on for more details about this idea.

Read Aloud

Tell students that you are going to read aloud an informational text, “Sunlight and Seasons.” Tell students to be active listeners by looking at you and thinking about what you are reading. Have them ask and answer questions about key details in the read-aloud.

START-UP

READ-ALLOUD ROUTINE

Purpose Have students listen actively for elements of informational texts.

READ the entire text aloud without stopping for the Think Aloud callouts.

REREAD the text aloud, pausing to model Think Aloud strategies related to informational text.

Sunlight and Seasons

Why is there more daylight in summer than in winter? The answer has to do with how the Earth moves.

Imagine putting a toothpick right through the middle of a grape. If you twirl the toothpick between your fingers, the grape will spin like a top. The Earth spins too. It has an imaginary line that runs from the North Pole to the South Pole, sort of like the toothpick in the grape. That line is the Earth’s axis. As the Earth spins on its axis, day turns to night and night turns to day.

The reason the amount of daylight changes is because Earth’s axis is tilted a little bit. The part of the Earth that is tilted toward the sun gets more sunlight and warm weather. It is summer there.

The part of the Earth that is tilted away from the sun gets less sunlight and cooler weather. It is winter there.

The areas that tilt toward the sun change as the Earth travels around it. In July, the northern part of the Earth tilts toward the sun, so it is summer in Texas. But in Australia, it is winter in July because the southern part of the Earth is tilted away from the sun. In December, it is just the opposite—summer in Australia and winter in Texas!

THINK ALOUD Analyze Informational Text After you reread the last paragraph, say: Each paragraph includes more information about how the amount of sunlight changes and what this has to do with seasons. I like how the information is organized. First, we read about the main idea. Then we learned about the Earth’s movement. Now we are reading about how that movement changes sunlight on specific parts of Earth. Authors of informational texts try to organize the information in a way that will make sense to the reader.

ELL Targeted Support Retell Reread “Sunlight and Seasons.” Then have students retell the text.

Have students retell the Read Aloud to a partner. Ask pairs to talk about the elements of informational text they noticed in the Read Aloud. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

SPOTLIGHT ON GENRE

Informational Text

LEARNING GOAL

I can read informational text.

OBJECTIVE

Recognize characteristics and structures of informational text, including organizational patterns such as chronological order and description with adult assistance.

LANGUAGE OF THE GENRE

As you review the anchor chart, check that students understand the words that help them talk about informational texts.

- main idea
- text structure
- details

FLEXIBLE OPTION
ANCHOR CHARTS

To make your own anchor chart to go with this lesson, begin with the genre, informational text.

- Have students talk about what informational texts do.
- Ask them to identify the main topic.
- Have them suggest details to include.
- Add to the anchor chart as students learn about the genre.

ELL Language Transfer

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES An informational text tells facts about real people, places, or things. It includes a main, or central, idea that tells what the text is mostly about. The author organizes ideas in an informational text using a text structure that suits the topic.

- Think about the text structure, or how the author gives the information. Can you tell how each idea is connected to the big idea?
- The author may use organizational patterns that connect the supporting ideas to one another. For example, chronological order gives details in time order.
- How did description help you understand the main idea better?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Read the informational text “Winter” on p. 24 in the Student Interactive. Say: This text tells about changes that come in winter. The title gives a clear idea of a real topic. In the text, we read descriptions that help us understand the topic. A text like this that tells facts about a topic is an informational text. Then read the anchor chart on p. 25 together.

ELL Targeted Support Respond to Questions Read “Winter” aloud to students and have them respond to questions.

Ask students questions to identify the characteristics of informational text in “Winter,” such as: What real things does the text talk about? (Possible response: trees) EMERGING

Have students respond to questions using sentence frames, such as: The topic of the text is _____. I know it is an informational text because it tells about _____. DEVELOPING

Have students develop their own questions about “Winter.” Have students respond to the questions developed by others. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies to identify informational text.

OPTION 1 TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have students turn and talk with a partner about the informational text “Winter” on p. 24 in the Student Interactive. Students should identify the text structure. Then have partners share their ideas with the class.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Have students make concept webs, time-order charts, or other suitable graphic organizers to keep track of the elements of informational text they find in the texts they are reading.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Can students identify the elements of informational text?

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Remind students of the Academic Vocabulary for the unit: sense, expect, process, and information. Explain that related words are words that have base or root words in common or share similar meanings.

- Look for words that have a similar base word or root as the Academic Vocabulary words.
- Think about what is similar and what is different about related words. Can you tell in what way the differences might affect the meaning?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Model how to draw connections between related words. Write the words information and informative on the board. Then say: We are learning the word information in this unit, but I read the word informative. Informative looks very similar to information. I see the base word inform in both of them. I think information and informative are related words.

To support the instruction in this week's minilessons, use these prompts.

Identify Informational Text

- What is the main idea of the text? How can you tell?
- Does the text tell about real people, places, or things?
- How does the author organize the information in the text? Is it in time order, or does it describe facts about a topic?

Develop Vocabulary

- How does the word ___ help you understand the information in the text?
- Are there any photographs or illustrations that help you understand what a word means?
- Why would an author choose to use this particular word?

Use Text Structure

- How are the details of the informational text organized, in time order or some other way?
- How does this way of organizing help you understand the information better?

IDENTIFY INFORMATIONAL TEXT

Teaching Point An informational text gives facts about real people, places, or things. It has a main, or central, idea that tells what the text is mostly about. The author organizes the details in an informational text in a way that makes the information easy to understand. Look back at the infographic “Seasons of an Apple Tree” with students and discuss what they can learn from the title, pictures, and facts. Point out how the information is presented in time order—the same order as the seasons progress.

ELL Targeted Support

Use the sentence frames provided to give students practice using the language of the genre to talk about the infographic on pp. 12–13 in the Student Interactive.

Ask: What is the main idea? Have students complete this sentence frame: The main idea is ____. Ask students to read the completed sentence aloud. EMERGING

Use these questions and sentence frames: What details tell about the main idea? ____ tell(s) about the main idea. In what order does the author put details? The author puts details in ____ order.

Have students read aloud the completed sentences. DEVELOPING/EXPANDING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

DIRECTIONS Follow along as your teacher reads aloud each passage. Look at the pictures.

A Secret Note

Do you want to make some invisible ink? Here is how to do it. You have to get some things. Then, look at the directions. You have to do the steps in order.

What You Need

- half a lemon
- water
- a spoon
- a bowl
- a cotton swab
- white paper
- a lamp

Directions

1. Put some lemon juice into the bowl. Put in one or two drops of water.
2. Mix the water and the juice with a spoon.
3. Then take the cotton swab. Dip it in the mix. Write a note on the white paper.
4. Let the juice dry so you do not see it. There is no note! But you can find out if it is there.
5. When it is time to show the note, set the paper under the lamp. The lamp is hot. It can get the paper hot. Soon, you will see the note.

IDENTIFY INFORMATIONAL TEXT

Talk About Independent Reading Ask students to explain how they know the book or text they are reading this week is an informational text.

Possible Conference Prompts

- What is the main idea of the text?
- What details describe the topic?
- Are there pictures? Do they help you understand what you read?

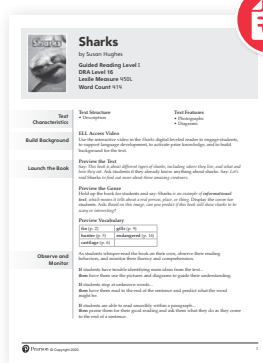

Possible Teaching Point Look through the text at illustrations and headings or boldfaced words to get an idea about the important details. These details will make the main idea clearer and easier to understand.

Word Work

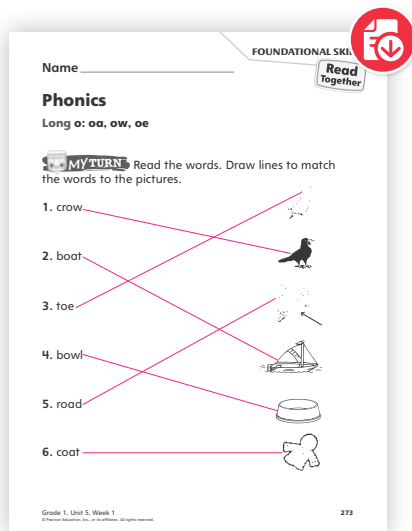

OBJECTIVES

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

ADDITIONAL PRACTICE

For additional student practice with long o spelled oa, ow, oe, use Phonics p. 273 from the Resource Download Center.

Phonics, p. 273

Phonics: Decode and Write Words with Long o Spelled oa, ow, oe

Minilesson

FOCUS Explain to students that the sound long o can be spelled oa, ow, and oe and that they need to see a word written to know how the vowel sound is spelled.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the following words on the board: oak, foam, boast. Say: Long o can be spelled oa as in the word oak. Have students repeat the word with you as you underline the letters oa. Then point to the word foam and have students say the sounds. Ask: What vowel sound do you hear in the word foam? (/ō/) How do you spell the sound /ō/ in foam? (oa) Repeat for the word boast. Then write the words mow, flow, and snow on the board. Read the word mow as you point to each letter. Say: Long o can be spelled ow, as in the word mow. Have students repeat the word with you as you underline the vowel spelling. Then point to the word flow and have students sound it out. Ask: What vowel sound do you hear in the word flow? (/ō/) How do you spell the sound /ō/ in flow? (ow) Continue with the word snow. Then repeat with the words foe, woe, and toe and the vowel spelling oe.

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have partners read the words at the top of p. 15 in the Student Interactive.

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

OPTION 1 MyTURN Have students complete the rest of p. 15 and p. 16 in the Student Interactive.

OPTION 2 Independent Activity Write the following words: road, coat, snow, glow, toe, doe. Partners form the words with Letter Tiles and name the letters that spell long o.

Introduce the Text

OBJECTIVE

Generate questions about text before, during, and after reading to deepen understanding and gain information with adult assistance.

ELL Access

Background Knowledge

Students make meaning not only from the words they learn but also by making connections to prior knowledge and experience. Invite students to share personal knowledge or experiences of the seasons.

Shared Read Plan

First Read Read the text. Pause to discuss the First Read notes with students.

Close Read Use the Close Read notes to guide your instruction for Lessons 3 and 4.

Preview Vocabulary

- Introduce the words autumn, spring, summer, and winter from p. 26 in the Student Interactive.
- Have students share what they already know about the words. Ask questions such as: What is the weather like in spring? What is something you like to do in summer? What do you expect to see in autumn?
- Have students demonstrate what they know about the words by making oral sentences with them.
- Provide definitions of the vocabulary words as needed. Definitions appear on the selection pages that follow. These words will help you understand the informational text Every Season.

Read

Discuss the First Read Strategies with students. For this first read, tell students to read for understanding and enjoyment.

FIRST READ STRATEGIES

LOOK Tell students to look through the text and ask questions about what they will learn in Every Season.

READ Tell students to read or listen as you read the text. During the first read, guide students to listen for details about the seasons of the year.

ASK Have students generate, or ask, questions about anything that is confusing or unclear to them in the text.

TALK Guide students to talk to a partner about what they found interesting in the text.

Students may read the text independently, in pairs, or as a whole class. Use the First Read notes to help students connect with the text and guide their understanding.

ELL Targeted Support Activate Prior Experience Help students make connections to their experiences with seasons to enhance their understanding of the selection vocabulary.

Display a variety of scenes showing different seasons. Have students select one that is familiar and identify the season, using the selection vocabulary. EMERGING

Years ago, many northern countries celebrated a holiday called May Day. May Day was usually celebrated on May 1 to welcome spring and mark the start of the planting season. Children held long ribbons attached to the top of a maypole and danced around it. Spring flowers were given as gifts and special cakes and foods were shared. Today, May Day is still celebrated in some towns.

Long o Spelled oa, ow, oe

Remind students of the long o spelling patterns they have been learning this week. Reread the second sentence on p. 42 in the Student Interactive and point out the word coast. Ask: Which letters spell the sound /ō/ in coast? (oa) Have students review pp. 40–41 in the Student Interactive for another example of a word with the sound /ō/ spelled oa. (coats) Then have them locate another word with the sound /ō/ and identify the spelling pattern it uses. (snow; ow)

Vocabulary in Context

Tell students that readers can use pictures, such as illustrations or photos, to learn or clarify word meanings. Then read the second sentence on p. 41 and point to the word tracks. Ask them to use the picture and text to figure out what tracks means in this context. Have students underline the words that help them understand what the word means. Then ask: How does the picture help you? DOK 2

OBJECTIVE

Use illustrations and texts the student is able to read or hear to learn or clarify word meanings.

Respond and Analyze

OBJECTIVES

Use illustrations and texts the student is able to read or hear to learn or clarify word meanings.

Use text evidence to support an appropriate response.

Interact with sources in meaningful ways such as illustrating or writing.

Respond using newly acquired vocabulary as appropriate.

My View

Use these suggestions to prompt students' initial responses to reading Every Season.

- Retell Tell a partner about the part of the text that interested you most. Why was it interesting?
- Describe Photographs Have partners tell about how a photograph in Every Season supports the information in the text.

Develop Vocabulary

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Tell students that authors of informational texts use words that tell about the topic. The words spring, summer, autumn, and winter tell the names of the seasons and are very important for understanding Every Season. Help students use strategies for learning vocabulary words like these:

- Remind yourself of the word's meaning.
- Look for pictures that help you understand the word.
- Think about why the word is important in a text about seasons.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Have students turn to p. 44 in the Student Interactive. Model how to complete the activity using the word spring.
Which picture reminds me of spring?

ELL Targeted Support Develop Vocabulary Help students explain their thought process as they develop new vocabulary.

Guide students by asking simple questions to help them explain how they completed the activity on p. 44 in the Student Interactive.

EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students explain to a partner how they completed the activity on p. 44. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

MYTURN Write the answers to the questions. You can look back at the text.

DOK 2 1. How do the pictures help you know this is informational text? Possible response:
The pictures show real people and things.

2. Why does the author use a lot of photos for each season? Possible response:
Many things happen in the seasons.

DOK 2 3. How are the seasons similar? Use text evidence.
Possible response:
People have fun in every season.

Display Sound-Spelling Card 86. Say: The letters oa spell the sound /ō/ in soap. Repeat with Sound-Spelling Card 99 (snow) for /ō/ spelled ow. Use the word toe to review /ō/ spelled oe.

Display the words road, grow, and doe. Have students read the words. Ask them to tell how the vowel sound /ō/ is spelled in each word.

ELL Targeted Support

Have students illustrate words with the sound /ō/ spelled oa, ow, and oe.

Have students say words with the sound /ō/, such as grow, toe, coat, bowl, and doe. Have them illustrate one word and label their drawing.

EMERGING

Ask students to list words with the sound /ō/ spelled oa, ow, or oe. Have them illustrate one word and write a sentence using the word.

DEVELOPING

Ask students to list words with the sound /ō/ spelled oa, ow, or oe. Have them illustrate two words and exchange drawings with a partner. Ask them to label their partner's drawings and write a sentence about each one.

VOWEL TEAMS ee, ea, ai, ay, oa, ow

Use Lesson 22 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on vowel teams.

LEVEL B • MODEL AND TEACH

Lesson 22 Vowel Teams ee, ea, ai, ay, oa, ow

INTRODUCE Remind students that long vowel sounds say the letter name. Remind students they have learned to recognize and say words with long vowel sounds that use different letters to make the same sound. For example, we learned the words Pete and me. Both words use the /ē/ sound. Hold up word cards for Pete and me. These words both have the long e sound. Pete has the letter t followed by a silent e. Me has the long e sound at the end of the word. Today we will learn to recognize words with these long vowel sounds—/ē/, /ā/, and /ō/—that are spelled differently from other words we have learned.

MODEL Display, point to, and read "The Bee" from Student Page S131. In many words the letters ee make the /ē/ sound. Hold up a letter card with ee. I see these letters in this word: bee, see, tree. Draw out the sound. Run your fingers under the letters as you say the sound. /b/. /ē/. Now listen carefully as I say the word: /b/ē/.

The Bee

The bee can eat and sleep in the tree.
He can stay all day, in the sun or the rain.
He can float like a boat.
Does he row with his wings?

TEACH We have learned that the letters ee can say the name of the letter e. Say the sound with me: /ē/. I will say each word and then we will say it together. Say the /ē/ sound before you say each word. Run your fingers under the letters ee as you say the word. Begin with bee: /b/. Now say the word with me: /b/ē/. Use the same steps to introduce and practice sleep and tree. Read the first sentence again, drawing out the sounds. Then repeat the process with the other words that have vowel teams ea (eat), ai (rain), ay (stay), oa (float), and ow (row).

Practice spelling the words with different vowel teams. Say the word and have students repeat it. Then point to each letter as students spell the word aloud with you.

DEVELOP VOCABULARY

Teaching Point Certain words in a text name something very important about the topic. The descriptions in the text help you understand these words better. As you read, use the descriptions to help you understand what those words mean. Use pp. 28–31 in the Student Interactive to demonstrate how text details can help them understand the word spring.

ELL Targeted Support

Have students use the picture dictionary on p. 235 in the Student Interactive as linguistic support to enhance and confirm their understanding of the vocabulary words.

After reviewing the picture dictionary, help each student make a new picture that represents a season. Have the class listen as students take turns telling what season they drew. EMERGING

Have student pairs review the picture dictionary before drawing their own pictures representing two seasons. Have the class listen as pairs tell which seasons they drew. DEVELOPING

Have groups review the vocabulary words in the picture dictionary. Then have groups listen as each member describes something he or she likes about one of the seasons. EXPANDING

Ask students to pick one season from the picture dictionary. Have the class listen as students use the vocabulary words to explain what makes that season special. BRIDGING

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Blend spoken phonemes to form one-syllable words, including initial and/or final consonant blends.

Segment spoken one-syllable words of three to five phonemes into individual phonemes, including words with initial and/or final consonant blends.

Decode words with initial and final consonant blends, digraphs, and trigraphs.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

Phonological Awareness: Segment and Blend Phonemes

SEE AND SAY Point to the picture of the street on p. 17 in the Student Interactive. Explain that sometimes a word begins with more than one consonant sound. Tell students to listen to each sound as you segment street: /s/ /t/ /r/ /ē/ /t/. Repeat the sounds several times and then blend the sounds to say street again. Ask students to repeat with the pictures for string and spring. They should segment and blend the sounds in each picture name.

PRACTICE Divide the class into three groups. Give each group one picture: a street, a spring, or water splashing for splash. Explain that you will say a word. If the word has the same beginning blend as the group's picture name, the group should raise their hands. Use these words: stream, sprint, split, stray, straw, sprinkle, sprout, splint.

FOUNDATIONAL SKILLS EXTENSION

See p. T39 for a consonant blends and trigraphs extension activity that can be used as the text is read.

Minilesson

FOCUS Use Sound-Spelling Cards 30 (splash) and 32 (strawberry) to introduce consonant blends and trigraphs. Tell students that the sounds at the beginning of splash are /s/ /p/ /l/. The sounds /s/ /p/ /l/ are spelled spl. Sometimes three letters at the beginning of a word are blended together, like spl in splash. Repeat with sprint, straw, throw, and squeak. Now let's use what we know to spell the words splash, sprint, straw, throw, and squeak.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write and read the word split aloud, emphasizing the blend spl. Say: The word split starts with a three-letter consonant blend. Point to the spelling of the blend, spl. Say: The word split starts with the blend spl. Have students repeat the word and the spellings. Repeat with the words strap and spread to practice decoding words with blends. Then have students decode and spell the words split, strap, spread, squash, and three.

Use Text Structure

OBJECTIVES

Recognize characteristics and structures of informational text, including organizational patterns such as chronological order and description with adult assistance.

Discuss how the use of text structure contributes to the author's purpose.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate As you discuss the text during the Close Read, model using the Academic Vocabulary words.

- What kind of information is in the text?
- Your sense of touch tells you something is cold.
- We expect to have snow in winter.

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES The way details in an informational text are organized is called text structure. Authors will choose a text structure to organize their writing to help readers understand the information in the text.

- Note if text details are given as a series of descriptions.
- See how the details in the text are organized.
- Pay attention to words the author uses to describe or organize information.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Choose an informational text that students have read, or use the Read Aloud “Sunlight and Seasons” on pp. T22–T23. The author uses text structure to help readers understand the text. When I read, I want to think about the text structure so I can understand how the author wrote and organized the details. Read aloud the text to students. Then ask: How would you describe the structure of this text? Have students go back to the Close Read notes on pp. 29, 33, and 39 in the Student Interactive and underline the word or words that helped them recognize the description text structure.

ELL Targeted Support Routine Language Have students discuss text structure to develop comfort with routine classroom language.

Help students recognize the relationship between the words describe and description. Use these sentence frames: The words ___ describe ___. This is a description of ___. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Ask students to retell descriptions in the text to a partner, using the words describe and description in their retellings. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

EXPERT'S VIEW P. David Pearson, Professor Emeritus of Instructional Science, UC Berkeley.

“Texts are not neutral. Authors always have a purpose in mind when they write, but they may not always say it directly. There is a difference between text and subtext—what the text says versus what the text means. In order to truly understand the text, you have to understand what the author is trying to do. When you can help students balance what the text says with what the text means, you will lead them naturally to deeper understanding and critical thinking.”

See SavvasRealize.com for more professional development on research-based best practices.

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies for recognizing and understanding text structure, including organizational patterns. Provide assistance as needed.

OPTION 1 MyTURN Have students complete p. 46 in the Student Interactive.

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have students discuss how the text structure contributes to the author's purpose.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Have students place sticky notes in their independent reading texts when they recognize something about the text structure.

QUICK CHECK

Visual/Contextual Support

Remind students that authors often build visual and contextual clues into a text to support and enhance understanding. After reading aloud the selection, point out the photographs that are connected to words or phrases in the text. Then point to some of the playfully typeset words in the selection and ask students to tell what they think these words mean.

Text Structure

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Authors organize details based on the type of information being shared. The authors of Every Season structured the text by describing the seasons in the order they happen.

- Look for ways the author organizes the details in a text.
- Remember that authors use different structures for different types of information. What kind of information is being shared in the text?
- Think about why the author chose the text structure and how it helps you understand the topic.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Discuss with students how the text structure contributes to the author's purpose using the example on p. 50 in the Student Interactive. The text says, "Wind whips, seeds scatter." This sentence describes the season. It helps readers picture the season. The text structure is description.

Handwriting

OBJECTIVE

Develop handwriting by printing words, sentences, and answers legibly leaving appropriate spaces between words.

Numerals 3 and 4

FOCUS Display the handwritten numerals 3 and 4. Reinforce the importance of writing legibly.

MODEL Model writing the numerals 3 and 4. Have students practice writing the numbers in the air with their fingers. Then write 3, 4, 13, 23, 33, 34, 43, and 44, showing proper formation and correct numeral size and spacing.

USE TEXT STRUCTURE

Teaching Point Readers of informational texts should identify the text structure of what they are reading. They can use the text structure to help them understand the information in the text. Look back at Every Season and model using the text structure to add to one's understanding of the text. Then invite students to explain how the text structure in different sections of the text contributes to their understanding.

ELL Targeted Support

Have students use support from peers and teachers to examine the section about winter in the text on pp. 39–42 in the Student Interactive.

Reread the section aloud and have students echo. Then have them retell the text by responding to yes/no questions about the text structure, such as: Does the information describe what winter is like? (yes) EMERGING

Reread the section with students. Then ask them to retell the section by completing sentence frames about the text structure, such as: The text describes what ___ is like. (winter) DEVELOPING

Have students read the section with a partner. Prompt pairs to retell the topic of the section (winter) and note words they read that describe this topic. EXPANDING

Ask students to read the section with a partner. Then have pairs summarize the section to others. Prompt them to talk about the descriptions that tell what winter is like. BRIDGING

A Secret Note

Do you want to make some invisible ink? Here is how to do it. You have to get some things. Then, look at the directions. You have to do the steps in order.

What You Need

- half a lemon
- water
- a spoon
- a bowl
- a cotton swab
- white paper
- a lamp

Directions

1. Put some lemon juice into the bowl. Put in one or two drops of water.
2. Mix the water and the juice with a spoon.
3. Then take the cotton swab. Dip it in the mix. Write a note on the white paper.
4. Let the juice dry so you do not see it. There is no note! But you can find out if it is there.
5. When it is time to show the note, set the paper under the lamp. The lamp is hot. It can get the paper hot. Soon, you will see the note.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

Spell words with initial and final consonant blends, digraphs, and trigraphs.

ADDITIONAL PRACTICE

For additional student practice with consonant blends and trigraphs, use Phonics p. 274 from the Resource Download Center.

Phonics, p. 274

Phonics: Decode and Write Words with Consonant Blends and Trigraphs

Minilesson

FOCUS Some words begin with a blend or a trigraph. A blend is two or more consonants together and each consonant's sound is heard. A trigraph is three letters together that spell one sound.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the following words: sprout, strong, splint, thrill, and squeeze. Say: The letters spr form a three-letter blend as in the word sprout. Have students read the word with you as you underline the spelling pattern spr. Then point to the word strong and have students decode it. Ask: What consonant sounds do you hear at the beginning of the word strong? (/s/ /t/ /r/) Repeat for the words splint, thrill, and squeeze. Then write the word street. Have students decode the word with you as you underline the three-letter blend. Repeat with the words splash and spring.

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have partners decode the words at the top of p. 19 in the Student Interactive.

ELL Targeted Support Blends and Trigraphs

Say the word street. Write the word on the board as you say it sound by sound. Underline the letters str. Say the consonant sounds and ask students to echo. Then blend the word and ask students to repeat and write it in their notebooks. Continue with the word straw. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students sort the sounds of the blends and trigraphs str, spr, and spl. Tell students to draw three columns on a sheet of paper with the headings str, spr, and spl. Say the word street and use it in a sentence. Write the word on the board as you say it sound by sound. Tell students to repeat the word and write it in the column with str. Continue with the following words without telling students in which column to write each word: splash, spread, strong, spring, split, strip, spruce, splice. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

Apply

OPTION 1 MyTURN Have students complete the rest of p. 19 and p. 20 in the Student Interactive. Have them decode and spell the words with consonant blends and trigraphs.

OPTION 2 Independent Activity Write a different three-letter consonant blend or trigraph on note cards, such as spr, str, thr, squ, and spl. Have students choose two spelling patterns and draw a picture of a word that begins with each pattern. Then have partners trade drawings, name the pictures, identify the three-letter consonant blends and trigraphs, and write the words.

Decodable Story

OBJECTIVES

Decode words with initial and final consonant blends, digraphs, and trigraphs.

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

ELL Access

Before reading the decodable story, have students monitor their own pronunciation of words with three-letter consonant blends or trigraphs. Write the words string, straw, street, spring, and splash. Have partners take turns saying the words aloud. Explain that they should help each other check that they are correctly pronouncing each sound in the blend.

Read Spring Is Here

FOCUS Have students turn to p. 21 in the Student Interactive. Say: *We are going to read a story today about spring. Point to the title of the story. The title of the story is Spring Is Here. I hear the blend /s/ /p/ /r/ at the beginning of spring. The blend /s/ /p/ /r/ is spelled spr. In this story, we will read other words with three-letter blends and trigraphs, and we will read words with long o spelled oa, ow, or oe.*

IDENTIFY AND READ HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS Before reading, review this week's high-frequency words: buy, about, would, write, people. Display the words. Have students read them with you. Say: When you see these words in today's story, you will know how to read them.

ANNOTATE

Read the story. Highlight the three words with the long o sound spelled ow.

21

READ Pair students for reading and listen carefully as they use letter-sound relationships to decode. One student begins. Students read the entire story, switching readers after each page. Partners reread the story. This time the other student begins.

Have students turn to p. 21 in the Student Interactive. Ask: Which words have the long o sound spelled ow? Students should supply the words below, snow, and grow. Have students highlight the words.

Have students turn to pp. 22–23. Ask: Which words have the long o sound spelled oa on page 22? Students should supply the words boats, float, and coast. Have them underline the words. Ask: Which words on page 23 start with a three-letter consonant blend or trigraph? Students should supply the words street, splash, squish, and spring. Have students highlight the words. Then have students spell the words with consonant blends or trigraphs.

DECODABLE STORY

FOUNDATIONAL SKILLS

Joe is happy that spring is here.
He waits all winter to fly home.
Joe sits in his straw nest.
He sees boats float by the coast.

People buy seeds to feed Joe.
Kids with chalk write on the street.
They splash and squish in the rain.
Joe is smiling that spring is here!

Underline the three words with the long o sound spelled oa.

Highlight the four words that begin with a blend or trigraph.

Make Connections

OBJECTIVES

Make connections to personal experiences, ideas in other texts, and society with adult assistance.

Monitor comprehension and make adjustments such as re-reading, using background knowledge, checking for visual cues, and asking questions when understanding breaks down.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate As you discuss the text during the Close Read, model using the Academic Vocabulary words.

- What does this information tell you about?
- How does this description appeal to your sense of sight?
- What do you expect to see or hear in the summer?

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Using background knowledge is one way readers can monitor their comprehension, or make adjustments to improve their understanding of a text. When readers can make a connection to something they know or have experienced, that connection helps them make sense of the text.

- Think about if the text reminds you of something you have learned about or experienced before.
- Try to connect what you know to what you have read to help you understand the text.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Say: As I read, I sometimes come to text that I don't understand. When this happens, I think about how this information reminds me of something else I know. On page 30, we read about crocuses, daffodils, and lilacs. I don't know what these are. But when I think about my own experience of springtime, I know flowers grow in spring. That helps me understand these sentences. I think crocuses, daffodils, and lilacs are all flowers. Have students go back to the Close Read notes on pp. 31 and 37 in the Student Interactive and highlight their answers.

ELL Targeted Support Develop Background Knowledge Have students use teacher and peer support as they work on a K-W-L chart to make connections to and monitor their comprehension of Every Season.

Support students by working with them to fill in the What I Know column, using their background knowledge about the seasons. EMERGING

Have partners use peer support to fill in the What I Know column. Then help students add at least one note for each season in the What I Learned column. DEVELOPING

Support students by working with them to complete a K-W-L chart about the seasons. EXPANDING

Have students use peer support to complete a K-W-L chart about the seasons. BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies for making connections to better understand the text.

OPTION 1 My TURN Have students complete p. 47 in the Student Interactive.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text On a separate sheet of paper, have students make notes about personal connections they can make to the text they are reading.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Can students make connections to the text as they read?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction for making connections in Small Group on pp. T66–T67.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction for making connections in Small Group on pp. T66–T67.

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, p. 47

Display Sound-Spelling Card 30. Say: The word splash has the consonant blend spl. Repeat with Sound-Spelling Card 32 (strawberry) for the blend str. Use the word squish to review the initial trigraph squ.

ELL Targeted Support

Have student pairs make picture books featuring images or drawings of words with the consonant blends and trigraphs spl, str, thr, squ, and spr.

Prompt student pairs to take turns saying the names of pictures from their picture books. Ask them to identify the spelling of the blends and trigraphs they hear. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students write a list of words with the blends and trigraphs that they did not include in their picture books. Ask them to share their lists with the group. EXPANDING

Challenge student pairs to write sentences about images in their picture books that include the words that have consonant blends and trigraphs.

Intervention Activity

DECODE WORDS: INITIAL AND FINAL BLENDS

Use Lesson 15 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on initial and final blends.

LEVEL B • MODEL AND TEACH

Lesson 15 Decode Words: Initial and Final Blends

INTRODUCE Today we will listen carefully to the sounds at the beginning and end of words and learn to recognize the letters that make each sound. Sometimes the sounds come very close together. We say that the sounds blend, even though you still hear each sound. For example, fst is a blend. Do you hear both fs and ft? The blend fst is formed from the letters s and t: fs/ft, fst. Say it with me: fs/ft, fst. You can hear this blend at the beginning of the word stop: fst/ol/pl. You can hear it at the end of the word fast: ff/ai/st.

MODEL Display the chart and passage from Student Page S99. Point to each word and to each letter and sound combination as you say it. Two sounds are blended at the beginning or end of these words. These are called blends. Listen carefully to how I blend the s and k when I say skin and mask: fsk/ni/nl, /m/ta/fsk. Repeat the process for the two remaining blends.

sk	sp	st
skin	spot	stop
mask	gasp	best

The Costume

I got the best costume! It has a mask with blue skin. Mom let out a gasp when she saw it. If you spot me, you will stop to look. Or you could want to run away!

TEACH Now I will read the passage. Listen carefully for words with blends. Then we will go back and read those words together very slowly. After reading the passage, go back and read sentence by sentence. Have students raise their hands when they hear words with blends. Then have students say the words with you slowly. For example: fsk/ni/nl. What is the blend? Yes, fsk is the blend; it comes at the end. The letters s and k make up the blend. We have to remember to say each sound when we read best and to write each letter when we spell best.

Repeat for each word with a blend. Tell students they will learn more words with blends—some blends that come only at the beginning of words, and some that come only at the end of words.

BUILD WORDS WITH LETTER TILES

Distribute Letter Tiles. Students can build words with initial blends, such as splash, stripe, squish, throw, splat, scrape. Students can then read each of the words and identify the blend in each word.

Students can also play the Letter Tile game in the myView games on SavvasRealize.com.

Decodable Reader

When students read and listen to Decodable Reader Wait for Spring, they can practice reading words with three-letter blends and high-frequency words.

After reading Wait for Spring, have students place a sticky note near high-frequency words and words with a three letter blend in the text. Then have students write the words in their notebooks.

MAKE CONNECTIONS

Teaching Point When readers do not understand a text, they can think about what they already know about the topic. Perhaps they had an experience that is like what they are reading about. This helps them make a connection to the text. Looking for these connections helps readers better understand the text. Look back at the infographic on pp. 12–13 in the Student Interactive and work with students to make personal connections to and to monitor their comprehension about the information presented.

ELL Targeted Support

Tell students that responding to questions about a text is a good way to check their understanding.

As you ask questions, support students in forming answers orally in simple, complete sentences. EMERGING

Model asking questions of the text. Ask students to explain or describe to answer the question. Prompt students to answer questions in complete sentences. DEVELOPING

Ask students questions they can answer by identifying a detail from the text. Suggest that students write their answers in complete sentences. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

MAIN IDEAS AND KEY DETAILS

Use Lesson 50 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on identifying main ideas and key details.

LEVEL B • READ

Lesson 50 Identify Main Ideas and Key Details

DIRECTIONS Follow along as your teacher reads "The Truth About Koalas" aloud. Look at the subtitles in bold and view the picture.

The Truth About Koalas

What Do Koalas Look Like?
Some people think koalas are bears, but this is not true! Koalas are from the same family as the wombat. They look a lot like wombats. Koalas can be brown or grey. They have large black noses and thick fur. They have claws for climbing trees.

What Makes Koalas So Special?
A koala is a marsupial. A marsupial is an animal with a pouch. Koala mothers have a pouch to carry their young. The pouch keeps the growing koala warm and safe. A baby koala is called a joey.
When a joey is born, it is tiny. It can't see. It has no fur. It is about the size of a jellybean! The joey crawls into its mother's pouch to stay safe. It stays in the pouch for the next six months.

SUPPORT INDEPENDENT READING

Encourage students to pursue independent reading in all parts of the curriculum. Help them find books and texts on different topics that interest them.

See the Small Group Guide for additional support and resources to target your students’ specific instructional needs.

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Distinguish between long and short vowel sounds in one-syllable words.

Decode words with inflectional endings, including -ed, -s, and -es.

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

ADDITIONAL PRACTICE

For additional student practice with high-frequency words, use My Words to Know p. 285 from the Resource Download Center.

My Words to Know, p. 285

Phonological Awareness: Distinguish Between /o/ and /ō/

MODEL Listen as I say the sounds in the word on: /o/ /n/. Now I'll say the sounds in another word: /ō/ /n/ (pause) own. Which word has the sound long o? (own) Which word has the sound short o? (on)

PRACTICE Tell students you will say two words and they should tell which word has the sound /ō/ and which word has the sound /o/: globe/glob, slop/slope, smoke/smock, cot/coat, goat/got, crock/croak, hope/hop, rode/rod.

Phonics: Spiral Review Adding Endings; Vowel Digraph ie

Minilesson

FOCUS Write the words try and like on the board. Explain to students that sometimes words that end in y or e change before an ending is added. Say: Try ends in -y. I will add the ending -ed, tried. Write tried on the board. Say: I changed the y in try to i before I added the ending -ed to make the word tried. Repeat with the word like to demonstrate dropping the final e in a word.

Write the words piece and cried on the board and say them aloud. Tell students that different sounds can have the same spelling. Point to and say the word piece. Say: In the word piece, the sound long e is spelled ie. Underline the ie spelling. Repeat for the sound long i in the word cried.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Have partners decode the words below.

piece	cried	chief	flies	skies	brief	field	fried
-------	-------	-------	-------	-------	-------	-------	-------

ELL Targeted Support Basic Vocabulary Explain to students that they will be writing using high-frequency words, or basic vocabulary. Display this week's high-frequency words (buy, about, would, write, people) and additional basic vocabulary from previous weeks.

Review reading and spelling the displayed words with students. Then provide simple sentence frames for students to copy or trace. Ask students to dictate or write words to complete the sentences. For example, use this sentence frame: I like to write about ____. If students are ready, have them write their own sentences using the high-frequency words. EMERGING

Have partners work together to write using the high-frequency words. Allow students to discuss what they will write first, and then monitor for correct usage of the words. If necessary, prompt students with suggestions on how to use the words in correct sentences, such as: I would like to read a new book. DEVELOPING

Have students write their own sentences using the high-frequency words. Ask students to write a sentence for as many of the displayed words as they can. Monitor students' use of the words to be sure they are using the words correctly in sentences. If not, guide them to understand how to revise as needed. EXPANDING

Have students write using the displayed high-frequency words. Ask students to try to write different types of sentences (declarative, interrogative, exclamatory). Verify that students are using the words correctly in sentences. BRIDGING

Tell students that high-frequency words are words that come up many times when we read, talk, and write. Write this week's high-frequency words: buy, about, would, write, people. Have students

- read the words.
- use the words in sentences.
- find the words in books or other printed documents in the classroom.

Reflect and Share

OBJECTIVES

Listen actively, ask relevant questions to clarify information, and answer questions using multi-word responses.

Share information and ideas about the topic under discussion, speaking clearly at an appropriate pace and using the conventions of language.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate Offer students oral practice using the unit Academic Vocabulary words to discuss the Weekly Question and unit theme.

Ask students:

- Which sense does this description appeal to?
- What information about seasons was new or interesting to you?
- What is the process you used to understand these texts better?

Talk About It

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Readers can compare the structures of different texts in order to understand the texts better. We can compare texts by talking about how authors organize information. In order to compare text structures by talking, students should

- share what is the same and different about the structures of texts.
- speak clearly and use complete sentences.
- listen attentively as others share their ideas, and think about how their ideas and other students' ideas work together.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Model sharing ideas and information about the topic under discussion using the Talk About It prompt on p. 48 in the Student Interactive. Speaking clearly and at an appropriate pace, say: In Every Season, the author uses descriptions to help readers understand what the seasons are like. The author of "Sunlight and Seasons" uses information to describe why the amount of sunlight in summer is different from the amount of sunlight in winter. Both texts organize information to help readers understand what they are reading.

ELL Targeted Support Retelling Help students internalize vocabulary by retelling simple stories and basic information supported by pictures.

Have small groups retell and compare details from pictures in a text.

EMERGING

Have students take turns choosing a picture from a familiar text and retelling story details in that picture. DEVELOPING

Have students work with a partner to retell and compare details in two pictures from different texts. EXPANDING

Have students choose an illustrated page from two texts. Then have them use the pictures to retell and compare details from each text. BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies for sharing information and ideas across texts.

OPTION 1 Use the Shared Read Have students make comparisons between the structure of Every Season and the structure of other texts they have read.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Students should use their self-selected independent reading texts to discuss how seasons affect us.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Can students make comparisons across texts?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction for comparing texts in Small Group on pp. T72–T73.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction for comparing texts in Small Group on pp. T72–T73.

COMPARE TEXTS

Teaching Point Readers look for similarities and differences between the structures of informational texts to help them understand how authors organize information. Look back at the infographic on pp. 12–13 in the Student Interactive and the main text Every Season. Help students compare the structures of the texts.

ELL Targeted Support

Have students demonstrate their comprehension by responding to questions that help them make comparisons between the infographic on pp. 12–13 and the main selection Every Season.

Have students respond to simple questions that guide them to compare one or more of the seasons as represented in the infographic and the text. EMERGING

Have students respond to questions that guide them to compare elements of text structure, such as description. DEVELOPING

Have students respond to questions that guide them to compare the information given in each text. EXPANDING

Have students respond to questions about how the structures of the two texts compare with a third text they have read, and guide them to give detailed answers. BRIDGING

WEEK 2 LESSON 1 READING WORKSHOP GENRE & THEME

Listening Comprehension

OBJECTIVES
Listen actively. Use relevant questions to clarify information, and answer questions with a clear word response.
Use appropriate fluency skills to read aloud when reading grade-level text.
Recognize and describe the structure of informational text.

Read Aloud
Tell students that you are going to read aloud an informational text. Have students listen to you read, "Weather Balloons." Tell students to be active listeners by looking at you and thinking about what you are reading.

START-UP
READ-ALoud ROUTINE
Prepare: Have students listen actively for elements of informational text.
READ the entire text aloud without stopping for the Think Aloud callouts.

Weather Balloons
We have all seen different kinds of balloons. There are small balloons you might find at a party and then there are balloons big enough to take you for a ride. But did you know that there are also balloons that have jobs? One of these balloons is called a weather balloon.
Scientists send weather balloons high up into the sky to get information on what is happening with the weather. These balloons are special. They carry equipment that measures the temperature and the speed of the wind. This information is sent back to Earth. Then scientists use what they learn to forecast, or predict, what the weather will be like for the next few days.

READ ALOUD TRADE BOOK LIBRARY

Interactive Read Aloud

Fiction Lesson Plan

WHY
Interactive Read Aloud:
• enables students to learn about their independent reading levels.
• allows students to learn about their independent reading levels.
• provides an opportunity to model fluency and expression reading.
• fosters a love and enjoyment of reading.

PLANNING
Select a text from the Read Aloud Trade Book Library or the school or classroom library.
• Select the title and author of the text.
• Determine the Teaching Point.
• Write your independent reading level number (Think Alouds are still used and placed in the book at the points where you plan to stop to think and discuss).

BEFORE READING
• Show the cover of the book to introduce the title, author, and genre.
• Ask the title and theme of the story.
• Point out interesting artwork or photos.
• Ask your students to share their own background knowledge for the story.
• Discuss key vocabulary essential for understanding.

DURING READING
• You can choose to stop and read aloud to students just to get the story and enjoy. Think Aloud and open-ended questioning for a deeper dive into the text.
• Read with expression to draw in listeners.
• Ask questions to guide the discussion and draw attention to the teaching point.
• Use Think Aloud to model strategies and make sure you use it to model comprehension and critical thinking that you want.
• Help students make connections to their own experiences, text they have read or learned in the past, or the world.

AFTER READING
• Summarize and allow students to share thoughts about the story.
• Request student comprehension by reading the text or key part of the story.
• Choose and assign a Student Response form available on Read.com

ASSESSMENT GUIDE

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Distinguish between long and short vowel sounds in one-syllable words.

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

Sound-Spelling Card 71

FOUNDATIONAL SKILLS EXTENSION

See p. T99 for a long i spelled igh extension activity that can be used as the text is read.

Phonological Awareness: Distinguish Between /ū/ and /u/

SEE AND SAY Point to the picture of the cube on p. 58 in the Student Interactive. Tell students to say the name of the picture: cube. Have them segment the sounds and listen to the middle sound. Then have them name the picture of the duck and listen to the middle sound. Ask: *Which picture name has the long u sound? Which picture name has the short u sound?*

PRACTICE Tell students that you will say words, and they should tell whether the word has the sound /u/ or the sound /ū/. Use these words: cute, nut, bugle, mule, much, huge, tube, sun, hunt, flute, lump, music.

Phonics: Decode Words with Long i Spelled igh

Minilesson

FOCUS Use Sound-Spelling Card 71 (lightbulb) to introduce long i spelled igh. Tell students that the vowel sound /ī/ they hear in the word light can be spelled igh. Write the word light on the board. Say the word again and have students repeat the word with you as you underline igh. Repeat using the word night.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write and read the word bright, emphasizing the long vowel sound. Say: *The word bright has the long i vowel sound*. Point to the letters igh. Say: *In the word bright, long i is spelled *igh. Have students repeat the word and the spelling. Repeat with the words sight and tight.

APPLY MyTURN Have students practice blending and decoding the words with long i spelled igh on the bottom of p. 58 in the Student Interactive.

ELL Targeted Support Long Vowel Spellings Write the words light, tie, bike, and sky. Explain that students have learned many ways to spell the long i sound.

Read the words with students. Have students point to or write how the sound long i is spelled in each word. Ask: Can the long i sound be spelled in different ways? EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students read and then write the words in columns across the top of a sheet of paper. Then ask them to write other words that spell long i the same way under each column heading. For example: right, pie, spike, and try. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

Write the high-frequency words done, once, upon, wash, and water. Tell students to practice these words.

- Point to each word as you read it.
- Then spell the word and read it again.
- Have students spell and say the words with you.
- Tell students to write the words in a notebook.

Different Sounds

SEE and SAY Say the name of each picture. Listen for the vowel sound. Tell which picture name has the long u sound. Tell which picture name has the short u sound.

Students should say cube, duck. Cube has long u.
Duck has short u.

Long i Spelled igh

OBJECTIVE

Recognize characteristics of multimedia and digital texts.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Language of Ideas The unit Academic Vocabulary words help students access ideas. Use these words to teach and reinforce instruction throughout the lesson. For example, as you discuss the Web site, ask: What is some information you can learn from this Web site? Did you expect that seasons were the same all over the world?

- information
- expect

Songs and Poems Big Book

See the Songs and Poems Big Book for selections that relate to the unit's theme. Share the songs and poems with students throughout the unit.

Explore the Web Site

Review the Essential Question for Unit 5: How do the seasons affect us? Point out the Weekly Question: What are the seasons like around the world?

Ask students to follow along in their Student Interactive, pp. 56–57, as you read aloud “Seasons Here and There.” Explain that the pages show a Web site on a digital device. A Web site has digital features, such as videos, an address bar, and a search bar. Web sites can be multimedial. That means they have a combination of words, pictures, videos, and sounds. Point to and explain the digital features as you discuss the information shown on the Web site. During the discussion, encourage students to ask questions to clear up any confusion about vocabulary used on the Web site.

Display the following questions for discussion:

- On the Web site, where is it winter? What clues do you get?
- On the Web site, where is it summer? What clues do you get?

Organize students into small groups. Then ask: How are the seasons different in these two places in the world? Guide students to return to the Web site. Then have each group discuss the answer to the question and share their group's answer with the class.

MyTURN Have students recognize and then circle the digital and multimedia features of the Web site on pp. 56–57.

WEEKLY QUESTION Remind students of the Weekly Question: What are the seasons like around the world? Explain that seasons are different in different parts of the world. Tell them that they will learn about these differences in the text we are reading this week.

EXPERT'S VIEW Ernest Morrell, University of Notre Dame

“All kids want to succeed. They come to school wanting to be successful. When kids say, “This is boring” or “I don’t like this,” they are saying that they don’t like the way it makes them feel or that they think they are going to fail. If students become disengaged, we need to find out what has happened to make their confidence wane and work with students to increase their confidence in themselves and their ability to learn.”

See SavvasRealize.com for more professional development on research-based best practices.

ELL Targeted Support Environmental Print Tell students that environmental print is the letters, numbers, and shapes they see every day, such as in street signs, logos, and Web sites. Read aloud the text on the Web site on pp. 56–57 in the Student Interactive.

Point out environmental print on the Web site on pp. 56–57 that students would see on a real Web site. Tell students what certain symbols and words mean. EMERGING

Point to different environmental print on the Web site and ask students what that symbol is called. DEVELOPING

Ask students questions about how they can interact with environmental print on the Web site to accomplish tasks. EXPANDING

Have student pairs use a computer together and direct them to a safe, preplanned Web site. Give students directions that require them to demonstrate understanding of environmental print. For example, ask pairs to use the search bar. BRIDGING

Listening Comprehension

OBJECTIVES

Listen actively, ask relevant questions to clarify information, and answer questions using multi-word responses.

Use appropriate fluency (rate, accuracy, and prosody) when reading grade-level text.

Recognize characteristics and structures of informational text.

FLUENCY

After completing the Read-Aloud Routine, display “Weather Balloons.” Model reading aloud a short section of the text, asking students to pay attention to how you read. Explain that fluency is reading with accuracy, a good rate, and expression. Tell students that this week they will read a text called Seasons Around the World. When it is time to read the text, practice reading with good expression.

 THINK ALOUD Analyze Informational Text After you reread the first paragraph, say: In this paragraph, I read facts about different types of balloons. Balloons are real things. Informational texts tell facts about real things, so I think this is an informational text.

Read Aloud

Tell students that you are going to read aloud an informational text. Have students listen as you read, “Weather Balloons.” Tell students to be active listeners by looking at you and thinking about what you are reading.

START-UP

READ-ALOUD ROUTINE

Purpose Have students listen actively for elements of informational texts.

READ the entire text aloud without stopping for the Think Aloud callouts.

REREAD the text aloud, pausing to model Think Aloud strategies related to the genre.

Weather Balloons

We have all seen different kinds of balloons. There are small balloons you might find at a party and then there are balloons big enough to take you for a ride. But did you know that there are also balloons that have jobs? One of these balloons is called a weather balloon.

Scientists send weather balloons high up into the sky to get information on what is happening with the weather. These balloons are special. They carry equipment that measures the temperature and the speed of the wind. This information is sent back to Earth. Then scientists use what they learn to forecast, or predict, what the weather will be like for the next few days.

The balloon is usually in the air for about two hours. It can go more than 115,000 feet into the air! As the balloon rises, it gets bigger and bigger. When it gets gigantic, the balloon bursts. The equipment it was carrying gently glides back down to the ground attached to a parachute. The balloon has done its job. It has given scientists the information they need about the weather.

THINK ALOUD Analyze Informational Text After you reread the third paragraph, say: In this paragraph, I read about what happens to weather balloons when they go up in the air, and how they help scientists. These details tell about a real topic, weather balloons. Informational texts have details that tell about real topics, so I know this is an informational text.

ELL Targeted Support Respond to Questions Display the Read Aloud. Have students demonstrate listening comprehension by responding to questions about “Weather Balloons.”

Ask students leading questions about the Read Aloud, such as: What is a detail that tells about the topic? EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students form their own questions about the Read Aloud. Then have them respond to the questions developed by others. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

WRAP-UP

WEATHER BALLOONS

Prompt students to list facts about weather balloons they learned from the Read Aloud. Ask them how the facts help them know this is an informational text.

FLEXIBLE OPTION

INTERACTIVE

Trade Book Read Aloud

Conduct an interactive read aloud of a full-length trade book.

- Choose a book from the Read Aloud Trade Book Library or the school or classroom library.
- Select an INTERACTIVE Read Aloud Lesson Plan Guide and Student Response available on SavvasRealize.com.

SPOTLIGHT ON GENRE

Informational Text

LEARNING GOAL

I can read informational text.

OBJECTIVES

Establish purpose for reading assigned and self-selected texts with adult assistance.

Recognize characteristics and structures of informational text, including features and simple graphics to locate or gain information.

LANGUAGE OF THE GENRE

As you review the anchor chart, check that students understand the text features that can appear in informational text.

- picture
- label

FLEXIBLE OPTION
ANCHOR CHARTS

If you wish, you can expand upon the anchor chart you created previously for informational text.

- Have students talk about the text features.
- Have them suggest headings and graphics.

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES When you read informational text, you can learn facts about a topic. Special text features in informational text can help you find and learn information. Two of these text features are pictures and labels. Pictures help you see what the text is about. The label can help you understand the picture. An informational text also has a purpose. The purpose, or reason, for reading informational text is to learn about a topic.

- Ask yourself, what does the picture show me?
- Look for a label. Does it help me understand the picture and the text?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Review the anchor chart on p. 69 together. Point out that an informational text can have pictures and labels. Say: An informational text can have some text features that point out important or new information. Visual aids are things you can see. They can be photos, drawings, or other types of pictures. They can show you how something in the text looks. Often, the picture also has a label near it. The label can tell you about the picture. It can help you learn something new and interesting.

ELL Targeted Support Visual Support Review the anchor chart on p. 69 in the Student Interactive. Point to the picture and label as you explain the text features of informational texts.

Ask students leading questions about the picture and label. Discuss how these text features help readers understand the text. EMERGING

Have pairs take turns reviewing the anchor chart and telling how the text features help readers understand the text. DEVELOPING

Have pairs scan an informational text for pictures and labels. Have students take turns explaining how these text features help them understand the text.

EXPANDING/BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies to identify informational text.

OPTION 1 Use the Anchor Chart Have students work with a partner to discuss the characteristics of informational text. Circulate to determine if students show understanding.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Have students draw or write to show characteristics of informational texts they find in their text.

✓ QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Can students identify the text features of informational text?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction about informational text in Small Group on pp. T90–T91.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction about informational text in Small Group on pp. T90–T91.

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have students complete the Turn and Talk activity on p. 68 in the Student Interactive. Call on volunteers to share their purpose with the class.

Academic Vocabulary

LEARNING GOAL

I can make and use words to read and write informational text.

OBJECTIVE

Respond using newly acquired vocabulary as appropriate.

ELL Access

To increase their understanding of academic language, ELLs need frequent exposure to the language of school. Help them find ways to incorporate the Academic Vocabulary words as they discuss topics and texts in groups, answer questions orally and in writing, and create drafts in Writing Workshop.

Antonyms

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Review the Academic Vocabulary for the unit: information, sense, expect, and process. Remind students that an antonym is a word that has the opposite or almost opposite meaning of another word. Explain that not all words have antonyms.

- Antonyms are words that have opposite meanings. For example, day and night are antonyms.
- Sometimes describing what a word does not mean helps you understand what the meaning of that word is. For example, to help you understand the meaning of the word difficult, it helps to know that something difficult is not easy.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Model using antonyms to clarify the meaning of a word. Say: *I read a story. The story was about a kind old woman who lived alone in the forest. Write kind on the board. The woman was not mean in any way. Write mean on the board. When someone is kind, that person is good to others. What is the opposite of kind? (mean)* Add the heading Antonyms over the words on the board. Ask a volunteer for another word that is an antonym for kind and write it on the board. (unkind, cruel)

Handwriting

OBJECTIVE

Develop handwriting by printing words, sentences, and answers legibly leaving appropriate spaces between words.

Numerals 5 and 6

FOCUS Display the handwritten numerals 5 and 6. Explain that, as with letters, numerals must be written legibly so that they can be read correctly.

MODEL Model writing the numerals 5 and 6. Have students practice writing the numerals in the air with their fingers. Then write 5, 6, 15, 16, 56, and 65, showing proper formation and correct numeral size and spacing. Have student volunteers circle the numeral 5 and underline the numeral 6 in each number.

IDENTIFY INFORMATIONAL TEXT

Teaching Point Today I want to teach you that readers can look at pictures and labels to help them understand informational text. The pictures can show ideas from the text. Often you will see labels that can help point out important information about the picture. Look back at the “Seasons Here and There” Web site with students to help them identify the pictures and the purpose of the labels.

ELL Targeted Support

Read aloud the labels on pp. 56–57 in the Student Interactive with students, pausing to ask students leading questions about what they see in the pictures. Point out that the text can be called labels. EMERGING

Ask student pairs to take turns reading the labels. Then ask students to discuss what they see in the pictures. Have students share their answers with the class. DEVELOPING

Have students read the labels silently. Then ask them to complete these sentence starters: It is winter in _____. It is summer in _____. Have students share their answers with the class. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

INFORMATIONAL, PROCEDURAL, AND PERSUASIVE TEXTS

Use Lesson 49 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher’s Guide for instruction on identifying informational text.

LEVEL B • READ

Lesson 49 Recognize Types of Text: Informational, Procedural, and Persuasive Texts

DIRECTIONS Follow along as your teacher reads aloud each passage. Look at the pictures.

A Secret Note

Do you want to make some invisible ink? Here is how to do it. You have to get some things. Then, look at the directions. You have to do the steps in order.

What You Need

- half a lemon
- water
- a spoon
- a bowl
- a cotton swab
- white paper
- a lamp

Directions

1. Put some lemon juice into the bowl. Put in one or two drops of water.
2. Mix the water and the juice with a spoon.
3. Then take the cotton swab. Dip it in the mix. Write a note on the white paper.
4. Let the juice dry so you do not see it. There is no note! But you can find out if it is there.
5. When it is time to show the note, set the paper under the lamp. The lamp is hot. It can get the paper hot. Soon, you will see the note.

Question and Investigate Have students use pp. 56–57 in the Student Interactive to generate questions about the seasons and then choose one to investigate. This week, have them conduct research about the question. See Extension Activities pp. 334–338 in the Resource Download Center.

Conferring

3 students / 3–4 minutes per conference

IDENTIFY INFORMATIONAL TEXT

Talk About Independent Reading Ask students to explain how they know the book they are reading is an informational text.

Possible Conference Prompts

- Does the book give you facts about a topic?
- Which pictures helped you understand the text?
- Did the author use labels? How did the labels help you understand the text?

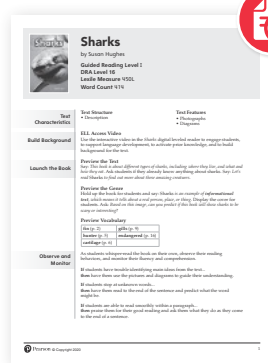

Possible Teaching Point Readers of informational text can use pictures and labels to clarify facts before, during, and after reading.

Leveled Readers

IDENTIFY INFORMATIONAL TEXT

- For suggested titles, see “Matching Texts to Learning,” pp. T88–T89.
- For instructional support on discussing text features, see the Leveled Reader Teacher’s Guide.

Independent/Collaborative

Independent Reading

Students can

- read a self-selected trade book.
- read or listen to a previously read leveled reader or selection.
- begin reading their Book Club text.

Centers

See the myView Literacy Stations in the Resource Download Center.

Literacy Activities

Students can

Phonics: Decode and Write Words with Long i Spelled igh

Minilesson

FOCUS Explain to students that the sound long i can be spelled igh and that they need to see a word written to know how the vowel sound is spelled.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the following words on the board: sight, bright, fight. Say: Long i can be spelled igh as in the word sight. Have students repeat the word with you as you underline the vowel spelling igh. Then point to the word bright and have students say the sounds. Ask: What vowel sound do you hear in the word bright? (/i/) How do you spell the vowel sound /i/ in bright? (igh) Repeat for the word fight. Continue with the words night, high, and sigh.

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have partners read the words at the top of p. 59 in the Student Interactive.

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

OPTION 1 My TURN Have students complete the rest of p. 59 and p. 60 in the Student Interactive.

OPTION 2 Independent Activity Have students use Letter Tiles to spell these words with long i spelled igh: night, light, bright, high, sigh.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Are students able to decode and write words with long i spelled igh?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction for Phonics in Small Group on pp. T104–T105.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction for Phonics in Small Group on pp. T104–T105.

HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS

Write the words done, once, upon, wash, water.

- Say and spell each word and then have students repeat.
- Cover the words and then dictate each word.
- Display the words and have students read the words and then check their spellings.

Introduce the Text

Seasons Around the World

OBJECTIVES

Make, correct, or confirm predictions using text features, characteristics of genre, and structures with adult assistance.

Know and use various text features (e.g., headings, tables of contents, glossaries, electronic menus, icons) to locate key facts or information in a text.

Use the illustrations and details in a text to describe its key ideas.

ELL Access

Background Knowledge

Students make meaning not only from the words they learn but also from their prior knowledge. Tell students to share personal knowledge about the seasons.

Shared Read Plan

First Read Read the text. Pause to discuss the First Read notes with students.

Close Read Use the Close Read notes to guide your instruction for Lessons 3 and 4.

Preview Vocabulary

- Introduce the words dry, rain, snow, and sunlight from p. 70 in the Student Interactive.
- Invite students to share what they already know about the words. Ask questions such as: What do you like to do in the rain? Have you ever seen snow? What is sunlight good for?
- Have students demonstrate what they know about the words. They can draw pictures that describe the words and label them.
- Provide definitions of the vocabulary words as needed. Definitions appear on the selection pages that follow. Say: *These words will help you understand what is happening in the informational text Seasons Around the World.*

Read

Discuss the First Read Strategies with students. Tell students that a prediction, or guess, is something you think might happen. Readers can make predictions by looking for clues in text features such as titles and illustrations. In the text features, readers might find information that will help them guess what might happen next. For the first read, tell students to read for understanding and enjoyment.

FIRST READ STRATEGIES

LOOK Tell students to look at the text features. Ask them to make a prediction about the text. Provide assistance as needed.

READ Have students read to learn about seasons around the world.

ASK Tell students that they should ask questions if they become confused or don't understand something in the text.

TALK Guide students to talk to a partner about what they found interesting in the text.

Students may read the text independently, in pairs, or as a whole class. Use the First Read notes to help students connect with the text and guide their understanding.

ELL Targeted Support Preteach Vocabulary Help students use strategic learning techniques to acquire basic and grade-level vocabulary before reading. Display the words dry, rain, snow, and sunlight.

Discuss the meaning of each of the vocabulary words. Show a picture of each word. Have students repeat each vocabulary word three times. EMERGING

Discuss the meaning of the words. Divide students into groups and give each one a word. Ask them to draw a picture that represents that word and label it with the vocabulary word. Have students share their work with the class. DEVELOPING

Have student pairs create a word web for each vocabulary word. Ask them to fill in their word webs with words that are related to dry, rain, snow, and sunlight. EXPANDING

Have students work in pairs to come up with sentences that include each of the vocabulary words. Ask pairs to share their sentences with the class. BRIDGING

Meet the Author

Ana Galán is an author of books written in both English and Spanish. She was born in Spain and later moved to the United States. Ana loves animals, especially dogs!

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, p. 71

First Read

Look

 THINK ALOUD Before I read the text, I can look at the text features in the book. I see headings when I look through the pages. The headings are Winter, Spring, Summer, and Fall. I can look at the photographs too. I predict that I will learn about what people do in other parts of the world during different seasons.

CROSS-CURRICULAR PERSPECTIVES

Science

The equator is an imaginary line that divides Earth into a northern part and a southern part. In both parts, the hours of daylight change with the seasons. Summer brings longer days, and winter brings longer nights. But on the equator, the night and day are always the same length. They both last for twelve hours all year round.

WINTER

During winter, the days are shorter than they are during other seasons. In many places, the air gets cold and it snows. Most plants and trees stop growing. Some die. Some animals hibernate.

CLOSE READ

Highlight the words that help you make a prediction about the text.

73

Possible Teaching Point

Read Like a Writer | Text Features

Tell students that one text feature of informational text is a Table of Contents. The author places it at the beginning of a book. It shows the important topics that are in the text and gives page numbers that tell where the text for that topic begins. Sometimes the purpose for reading an informational text is to find special facts and information. You don't always have to read the whole book from start to finish. You can just read a section of the book. You can use the Table of Contents to find the topic you are interested in reading about. Model how to find information about winter. Then ask: On what page will you find information about fall? (page 79)

Close Read

Correct and Confirm Predictions

Remind students that a prediction tells what you think the text will be about. You can use text features to make a prediction. Say: Look at the Table of Contents. What do you think you might learn about winter on page 73? (what winter is like in different parts of the world) Ask students to read the Close Read note and highlight the words. DOK 2

OBJECTIVE

Make, correct, or confirm predictions using text features, characteristics of genre, and structures with adult assistance.

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, pp. 74–75

Did You Know?

When it is winter in the northern part of the world, it is summer in the southern part!

Near the North Pole, the sun never shines in winter. It is dark all day!

 SPRING

Spring comes after winter. In many places, baby animals are born. Flowers bloom and leaves appear on the trees. It can rain a lot during spring. The rain and warmer weather help plants grow.

Read

 THINK ALOUD The text box on page 74 says: “When it is winter in the northern part of the world, it is summer in the southern part!” So I understand now that the seasons in these two parts of the world are opposite. In one place it is winter; in the other place it is summer.

Possible Teaching Point

Read Like a Writer | Graphic Features

Use the lesson about graphic features on pp. T112–T113 in the Reading-Writing Bridge to teach students about how using globe illustrations can help them understand the text. Ask them to look at the photographs and illustrations on pp. 74 and 76. Ask students to tell how the globe illustrations helped them understand the text. (The globes show how close the countries are to the North Pole and the equator.)

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, pp. 76–77

Did You Know?

In some parts of the world, there are only two seasons: a rainy season and a dry season!

The seasons don't change much near the equator. Spring is like all the other seasons.

SUMMER

During summer, the days are longer than they are during other seasons. The sunlight helps plants grow in the summer. People like to spend time in the sun too.

Possible Teaching PointRead Like a Writer | Text Features

Tell students that another text feature of informational text is an Index. The author places it at the end of the book. It shows the important words that are in the text and the page numbers where those words appear. The words in the Index are always in alphabetical order. Say: You can use the Index to quickly find the pages where the topic you are interested in reading about is located. Model how to find information about summer. Point out that information about summer appears in other places than just under the heading Summer (see p. 74 in the Student Interactive).

Close ReadUse Graphics

Have students look at the text on p. 80 again. Ask: What does the globe illustration help you understand? (It shows where to find Mexico.) Respond and Analyze

Seasons Around the World

OBJECTIVES

Share information and ideas about the topic under discussion, speaking clearly at an appropriate pace and using the conventions of language.

Respond using newly acquired vocabulary as appropriate.

My View

Use these suggestions to prompt students' initial responses to reading Seasons Around the World.

- Reflect Tell a partner about the part of the text that reminded you of something you experienced. What did it make you think of in your own life?
- Use Labels Have students draw and label a picture showing their favorite season.

Develop Vocabulary

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Remind students that they learned some new words as they read Seasons Around the World: dry, rain, snow, and sunlight. These words tell about the seasons.

- Remind yourself of the meaning of each word.
- Look for photographs and illustrations that help you picture and understand the words.
- Think about why the author chose these words. What information is the author giving the reader?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Have students turn to p. 82 in the Student Interactive. Model how to complete the activity with the word rain. Read the directions aloud and ask students to look at the pictures. Which picture shows rain?

ELL Targeted Support Vocabulary Demonstrate how students can use context to help them understand what words mean.

Choose pictures from a book or magazine that illustrate the words dry, rain, snow, and sunlight. Ask students leading questions about each picture.

EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Ask students to draw a picture that shows the meaning of the words dry, rain, snow, or sunlight. Have them label the picture. Ask students to share their pictures and labels with the class. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

Intervention Activity

DIPHTHONGS AND VOWEL PATTERNS

Use Lesson 26 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on reading words with diphthongs and vowel patterns.

LEVEL B • PRACTICE AND ASSESS

Lesson 26 Diphthongs and Vowel Patterns

REMINDE STUDENTS THAT...

- they can identify words they hear that have the vowel sounds /oi/ and /ow/.
- they can read and spell words with different letter combinations for /oi/ and /ow/.

PRACTICE 1: Letter Combinations for Diphthongs (/oi/ and /ow/)
Listen to these words. Then say them with me: toy, join. Do toy and join have the same vowel sound? (yes) What is the vowel sound in toy and join? (/oi/) Yes! Both words have the vowel sound /oi/. But the words use different letter combinations for this sound.

Display Student Page S152 and have students read the words toy and join as you run your hand under each word. How is /oi/ spelled in toy? (oy) How is /oi/ spelled in join? (oi) Now let's look at other words with these letter combinations for /oi/. As you run your hand under the next row of words, have students read the words with you. Repeat for the next row of words. Then read aloud the passage beside the word lists. Have students raise their hands when they hear an /oi/ word. Ask them to identify the letter combination used in each word for the /oi/ sound. (Roy, oy, coiled, oi)

toy	join	Roy saw a snake. The boy	coin	snake was coiled up. Roy joy	soil	got away fast!

Repeat this procedure for the /ow/ vowel sound and the two spellings for it (ou, ow). Start with the familiar words now and out. Then use the word lists and passage on the bottom of Student Page S152 in the same way suggested above.

now	out	I do not like it when you
how	loud	put. Your mouth turns
town	couch	down in a frown. It is sad!

MONITOR PROGRESS Write these words: coy, cow, cloud, coin. Have students read the words. Ask them to point to two words with the same vowel sound. (coy and coin or cow and cloud) Have them underline the letter combinations that make the vowel sound in each word.

IF... students cannot read the words, identify the words with the same vowel sounds, or identify the letter combinations for the sounds. THEN... read the words aloud, having students repeat them after you. Then say the pairs of words that share the same vowel sound, running your hand under each word as you say it. Guide students to locate and underline the letter pairs in each word that make its vowel sound.

DEVELOP VOCABULARY

Teaching Point Sometimes you might not understand a word used in the text that you are reading. Today we will practice a way to figure out the meaning of an unfamiliar word. You can sometimes use the photographs in the text to help you. Look back at p. 73 in the Student Interactive to demonstrate with the word snow.

ELL Targeted Support

Help students develop the meanings of basic vocabulary used in classroom materials.

Choose photographs from a classroom magazine or book that show the meanings of the basic vocabulary words dry, rain, snow, and sunlight. Ask students questions about each picture. Then have students read the words aloud. EMERGING

Assign student pairs one of these basic vocabulary words: dry, rain, snow, or sunlight. Ask each pair to find a photograph in a magazine that matches their word. Have students share their findings with the class. DEVELOPING

Ask students to find photos of the basic vocabulary words in magazines. Have them paste the photos in a notebook and label each one to make a picture dictionary. EXPANDING

Have students work in pairs to make a picture dictionary of basic vocabulary words that tell about the seasons. BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

myFOCUS READER

Read pp. 56–57 in the myFocus Reader with students. Use the teaching support online at SavvasRealize.com to provide additional information on seasons around the world.

Provide instructional support for decoding, comprehension, word study, and Academic Vocabulary.

Fluency

Assess 2–4 students

PROSODY

Help students choose a short passage in an appropriate leveled reader. Model reading with proper intonation and inflection. Ask pairs to take turns practicing reading their passage. Provide encouragement and feedback.

ORAL READING RATE AND ACCURACY

Use pp. 127–132 in Unit 5 Week 2 Cold Reads to assess students. Have partners practice reading the passage. Use the Fluency Progress Chart to track student progress.

Conferring

DEVELOP VOCABULARY

Talk About Independent Reading Ask students to share their lists of words that tell about the seasons. Have students share the strategies they used to determine word meanings.

Possible Conference Prompts

- What words did the author use to tell about the seasons?
- What helped you understand that word?

Possible Teaching Point Readers can use graphics and labels around an unfamiliar word to figure out the word's meaning and to clarify information.

- complete an activity from the Resource Download Center.

SUPPORT INDEPENDENT READING

Setting a purpose or goal for reading can motivate students and help them get more out of the text. Guide students to set goals for their reading and track their progress.

See the Small Group Guide for additional support and resources to target your students' specific instructional needs.

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Blend spoken phonemes to form one-syllable words, including initial and/or final consonant blends.

Segment spoken one-syllable words of three to five phonemes into individual phonemes, including words with initial and/or final consonant blends.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

Sound-Spelling Cards 165, 176

Phonological Awareness: Segment and Blend Phonemes

SEE AND SAY Point to the picture of the teacher on p. 61 in the Student Interactive. Say: This is a picture of a teacher. Listen to the sounds in teacher: /t/ (pause) /ē/ (pause) /ch/ (pause) /ər/. Say the word with me. Listen carefully to the ending sound in the word. Ask: What sound do you hear at the end of teacher? (/ər/) Continue with the picture of the sailor and the word sailor.

PRACTICE Tell students to listen to the ending sounds in the words you say. If they hear the sound /ər/, they should hop. If they do not hear /ər/, they should stay still. Say these words one at a time: dreamer, act, trainer, actor, sailor, paint, sail, painter.

Phonics: Decode Words with Suffixes -er, -or

Minilesson

FOCUS Use Sound-Spelling Cards 165 (painter) and 176 (sailor) to introduce the suffixes -er and -or. Explain to students that a suffix is a word part added to the end of a word to make a new word. Write the words paint and painter on the board. Read the words and have students repeat them with you. Say: I paint my house. I am a painter. Repeat the sentence, emphasizing the words paint and painter. Say: A person who paints is a painter. The suffix -er means “someone who,” so someone who paints is a painter. I added the suffix -er to say I am someone who paints. Repeat using Sound-Spelling Card 176 to introduce the suffix -or.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write and read the word reader. Say: Raise your hand if you are a reader. Yes, you are all people who read, so you are all readers. Underline the suffix -er. Say: We add the suffix -er to the word read to mean “someone who reads.” Repeat with the word inventor and the suffix -or.

APPLY My TURN Have students read the word on the bottom of p. 61 in the Student Interactive.

High-Frequency Words

Minilesson

FOCUS Write or display the high-frequency words: done, once, upon, wash, water.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write done on the board. Say: This is the word done. It has four letters: d, o, n, e. Have students say and spell the word and then use it in a sentence. Repeat with the remaining high-frequency words.

APPLY My TURN Have students identify, read, and write the high-frequency words on p. 62 in the Student Interactive.

Use Text Features

Seasons Around the World

OBJECTIVES

Recognize characteristics and structures of informational text, including features and simple graphics to locate or gain information.

Discuss with adult assistance the author's use of print and graphic features to achieve a specific purpose.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate As you discuss the text during the Close Read, model using the Academic Vocabulary words:

- This text gives a lot of information about the seasons in different places.
- The author uses photographs so we can sense what the seasons are like in different countries.

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Readers recognize the characteristics and structures of informational text, including features and simple graphics to locate or gain information.

- Look through the text. What types of features and graphics does it have?
- Note the types of text features and graphics. Does the text include photographs and maps?
- Examine the text features and graphics. Do they help you find or learn more information?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Use Every Season from the Student Interactive on pp. 27–43. In an informational text, I can use text features and graphics to help me understand the topic. I can look for photographs that show more information. Read aloud pp. 30–31 to the students. Ask: How do the photographs help you understand the text? Guide students to identify the photographs of the crocuses and the lamb. Then have them go back to the Close Read note on p. 75 and underline the information that the picture and graphic on p. 74 help them understand about Seasons Around the World.

ELL Targeted Support Use Text Features and Graphics Have students look at what they underlined during the Close Read on p. 74 in the Student Interactive. Circle the word Norway on the globe.

Read the underlined sentences aloud. Ask leading questions about the information in the photograph and globe to connect to students' own experiences of winter and snow: Did the author use the word Norway in the text? (no) Did the author want to tell me more information? (yes) Do you think this is a picture of Norway in the winter? (yes) Explain that authors may provide information in a photo or map that is not in the text.

EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students work in small groups and ask one student to read the underlined sentences aloud. Ask students to discuss what they see in the photo and globe. Then have them take turns asking and answering yes/no questions. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies for using text features to increase understanding of a topic.

OPTION 1 MyTURN Have students complete p. 84 in the Student Interactive.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Have students use sticky notes to mark text features in informational texts they are reading.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Can students use text features in informational text to understand the topic?

Use Text Features

Text features and graphics, such as photographs, help readers find and learn information. Photographs show more information about a topic.

 MYTURN What information do you learn from the graphics? Go back to what you underlined in the text to help you answer.

Possible response:

I learned what the North Pole is like.

I learned where Mexico is on a map.

 TURN and TALK Talk about why the author uses graphics in this text.

OBJECTIVE

Discuss with adult assistance the author's use of print and graphic features to achieve specific purposes.

ELL Access

Illustrations Tell students that an author can use illustrations to give more information. After reading aloud p. 76 in the Student Interactive, have students look at the photograph and globe. Ask: What country does the globe show? (Uganda) What is it near? (the equator) Guide students in a discussion of how the globe illustration provides more information and helps the text become clearer to the reader.

Graphic Features

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Authors use pictures and illustrations in texts to help readers learn more information. These images are called graphic features. One type of image is a globe illustration, or a map of the world.

- Use a globe illustration to find a place in the world or how far one place is from another.
- Look for new information that is not written in the text.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Model using the example on p. 88 in the Student Interactive to show how authors use globe illustrations. Say: The author wrote this sentence: "This is the coldest place on Earth." The author used the globe illustration to show that Antarctica is the coldest place on Earth. It shows where Antarctica is located and how big it is. This information is not in the sentence. Provide assistance as you discuss with students an author's use of graphic features to achieve specific purposes.

Handwriting

OBJECTIVE

Develop handwriting by printing words, sentences, and answers legibly leaving appropriate spaces between words.

USE TEXT FEATURES

Teaching Point Say: Pictures, photos, maps, and globes are called text features. Text features can help you understand the text and learn new information about the topic. Photographs can show you more details or help you understand the words the author uses. Guide students to discuss how text features on p. 74 in the Student Interactive clarify the text and provide more information.

ELL Targeted Support

Tell students that text features can provide information and understanding.

Read aloud p. 76 in the Student Interactive. Point to the globe and read the labels. Ask students questions: Is Uganda near the equator? (yes) Does Uganda have four seasons? (no) Where are the children in the photo? (Uganda) What season do you think it is? (dry) EMERGING

Have students read p. 76 and look at the text features. Then have them work in small groups to answer the yes/no questions above. DEVELOPING

Intervention Activity

UNDERSTAND ILLUSTRATIONS IN A TEXT

Use Lesson 52 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on understanding illustrations in a text.

LEVEL B • READ

Lesson 52 Understand Illustrations in a Text

DIRECTIONS Look at the passage and study the illustrations. Follow along as your teacher reads aloud "Change of Season."

Change of Season

There are four seasons. They are spring, summer, fall, and winter. What happens in each season? The magic of nature happens. Each season is special.

In spring, the air gets warmer. It rains. The rain feeds the plants. Everything turns green. People plant seeds in their gardens. Seeds sprout and plants start to grow. Flowers bloom. Grass covers your yard. Trees get their leaves. Birds lay and hatch their eggs. Animal babies are born. Days get longer.

Next comes summer. The sun shines bright and warms the air. Oceans and lakes warm up as the sun hits the water. Flowers keep blooming. Vegetables grow and soon they are ready to eat.

Trees give shade from the hot sun. Sometimes it thunders and rains hard. Lightning strikes. Weather can be hot and sunny. It can be rainy and wild, too.

Phonics: Decode and Write Words with Suffixes -er, -or

Minilesson

FOCUS Tell students that suffixes are added to words to make new words. The suffixes -er and -or are added to words to make words that mean “someone who does” the action of the base, or root, word.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the following words on the board: play, player. Say: I play baseball. I am a player. Have students repeat the sentences with you as you underline the suffix -er. Ask: *What is the base word in the word player? Yes, the base word is play. What did I add to the base word play? Yes, I added the suffix -er. What does the word player mean?* (someone who plays) Repeat for the words sail and sailor. Then write the word farm on the board and read it aloud. Have students repeat the word with you. Add the suffix -er. Have students read the new word and tell what it means. Repeat with the words lead, sing, act, and invent.

OBJECTIVES

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

ELL Access

Students may need more practice understanding how suffixes change words and their meanings. Begin by writing the word sailor. Erase the suffix -or. Segment and blend the sounds in sail. Ask yes/no questions to help students determine what sail means. Add the suffix -or and tell students its meaning. Lead students to understand what sailor means.

Read The Sailor

FOCUS Have students turn to p. 65 in the Student Interactive. Say: *We are going to read a story today about a girl named Jen and her friend. Point to the title of the story. The title of the story is The Sailor. I see the suffix -or in the word sailor. What is a sailor? Yes, a sailor is someone who sails. In this story, we will read words with long i spelled igh and other words with the suffix -or or -er.*

IDENTIFY AND READ HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS Before reading, review this week's high-frequency words: done, once, upon, wash, water. Display the words. Have students read them with you. Tell them that they will also practice reading the high-frequency words in the story The Sailor.

Correct and Confirm Predictions

OBJECTIVE

Make, correct, or confirm predictions using text features, characteristics of genre, and structures with adult assistance.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate As you discuss the text during the Close Read, model using the Academic Vocabulary words:

- What new information did you learn as you read Seasons Around the World?
- What process can you use to correct or confirm a prediction?

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Readers can use text features to help them correct and confirm predictions as they read.

- Look at headings, labels, and other text features.
- Confirm your prediction if it matches the text features.
- Correct, or change, your prediction if it does not match the text features.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Say: *I used the title Seasons Around the World to predict that this text will be about what seasons are like in different places. The globe feature on page 74 helps me confirm my prediction about different places around the world.* Have students go back to the Close Read notes on pp. 73 and 77 in the Student Interactive to review what they highlighted. Discuss how the text features helped them.

ELL Targeted Support Correct and Confirm Predictions Guide students to use support from peers and teachers to correct or confirm predictions.

Ask students leading questions to help them make a prediction about the text. Then direct students' attention to the text features. Model how to confirm or correct the prediction using the text features. EMERGING

Read the text with students. Then ask them to work with a partner to make a prediction about the text. Guide them to confirm or correct the prediction using the text features. DEVELOPING

Have students take turns reading the text with a partner. Then ask pairs to make a prediction about the text. Prompt students to share with the class how the text features helped them either confirm or correct their predictions. EXPANDING

Ask partners to find a text feature in the text and make a prediction about the text using only that feature. Have them explain to their peers how they can correct or confirm the prediction. BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Intervention Activity

PREFIXES AND SUFFIXES

Use Lesson 29 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on words with prefixes and suffixes.

LEVEL B • PRACTICE AND ASSESS

Lesson 29 Prefixes and Suffixes

PRACTICE 2: Suffixes -er and -or Explain that a suffix is a word part found at the end of a word. Say: Since suffixes have their own meanings, they change a base word's meaning. For example, the suffixes -er and -or both mean "one who," so it turns an action word into a word that names a person. For example, the action word lead becomes leader when the suffix -er is added. Leader means "one who leads." The suffix -or works the same way. You just have to remember whether to use -er or -or.

Distribute Student Page S165. Read aloud the words on the word cards. Have students repeat each word after you and say its meaning.

actor	farmer	governor	player
rancher	speaker	teacher	visitor

Have students work in pairs to cut apart the word cards and sort them into two categories: suffix -er and suffix -or. Then have them shuffle the cards and turn them face down. One partner draws a card and says the word, and the other identifies which suffix the word uses.

MONITOR PROGRESS Have students look at the following short passages from Student Page S165. Read each passage aloud as students follow along. Ask them to identify the word that has a suffix and to say what the word means.

All TV shows and movies have a director. This is the person who makes sure everything is done right. (one who directs)

Dad says I am a good thinker. He feels proud when I do the right thing. It makes me happy. (one who thinks)

IF... students cannot identify a word with a suffix, THEN... focus on the word, running your hand under it as you say the word slowly in two parts. Then guide students to underline the suffix, recall its meaning, and finally define the word.

Phonics, Morphology, and Spelling T • 165

REMINDE STUDENTS THAT...

- they know words can be made of different parts.
- they have learned one type of word part is called a suffix, which comes at the end of a word.
- they know the suffixes -er and -or both mean "one who."

DIRECTIONS Look at the title and think what this story might be about. Then follow along as your teacher reads aloud "Ready to March."

Ready to March

Jade got paper. Where were her crayons? She could not find them. So she got her markers.

Jade had one day to finish, but the picture had to look good. She made a picture of a dog. She wrote "Dog Club" at the top of the paper.

"Look at my sign, Mom," said Jade. "It is ready for tomorrow."

"I see," said Mom. "But the sign is too little. No one will be able to see it."

Jade did not have time to make a big, new sign. She thought about it. Then she said, "Mom, you had to make a big sign for your job."

"That is right. I did," Mom said.

Then Mom said, "I can help you." She went to her office. She made a big, big copy of Jade's sign.

Minilesson

FOCUS Write the words coat, row, and toe on the board. Point to and read aloud the word coat. Ask: What vowel sound do you hear in the word coat? Yes, long o. How is the long o sound spelled in the word coat? Yes, long o is spelled oa. Underline the letters oa. Continue with the words row and toe.

Write the words splint, street, and spring. Explain to students that consonant blends can have three letters. Ask: What three letters make up the consonant blend in the word splint? Underline the letters spl. Repeat with the words street and spring.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write these words and have students decode them: slow, boat, splash, street, doe, toad, sprint, snow.

ELL Targeted Support Letter-Sound Relationships

Provide practice for students to listen to individual sounds and represent them phonetically in writing.

Say the following sentence: I am a teacher. Point out that the first three words in the sentence are high-frequency words. Then say the word teacher again. Ask yes/no questions about the sounds in the word. For example, ask: Does the word teacher begin with the sound /t/ or /d/? What letter spells the sound /t/? For the long e sound spelled ea, provide spelling options for students to choose from. For example, write ea and ai. Guide students to know that ea can spell the long e sound, not ai. Continue with other simple sentences with target sounds for the week. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Say simple, decodable sentences for students to write in a notebook. Ask them to say each sound they hear in a word and write the letter or letters that spell the sound. After students have written the sentence, review what they wrote with them. Identify letter-sounds they did correctly, and provide feedback and corrective actions for letter-sounds that need to be fixed. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS

Write this week's high-frequency words on the board: once, done, upon, wash, water. Ask students to copy each word on a note card. Then have partners take turns displaying a word card for the other partner to read and use in a sentence. Ask partners to switch roles. For practice with spelling the high-frequency words, ask the first partner to read one word aloud for his or her partner to spell. The first partner can check the spelling using the card.

Reflect and Share

Seasons Around the World

OBJECTIVES

Listen actively, ask relevant questions to clarify information, and answer questions using multi-word responses.

Share information and ideas about the topic under discussion, speaking clearly at an appropriate pace and using the conventions of language.

Write brief comments on literary or informational texts.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate Offer students oral practice using the unit Academic Vocabulary words with the Weekly Question and unit theme. Ask students:

- What process do butterflies undertake in the fall?
- What new information did you learn about seasons around the world?

Write to Sources

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Students have read texts about the seasons. Students can compare the texts they have read by writing their opinions. Students should

- think about what they liked or disliked in what they read, and why.
- look for details and information in the texts that support their opinion.
- write their opinion and how it is supported by text evidence.
- provide closure by restating their opinion.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Model forming an opinion while comparing texts. Have students look at the Reflect and Share prompt on p. 86 in the Student Interactive. Say: *I would like to live near the equator because the weather is never too cold or too hot. In Seasons Around the World, I read that the seasons don't change much by the equator. In the infographic "Seasons Here and There," I saw that it gets cold in Chicago and hot in Sydney. Those places are far from the equator. I would like to live near the equator where the temperature stays nearly the same all year.* As students form an opinion about where they would like to live, remind them to compare texts and use text details. Have them repeat their opinion at the end of their writing to give readers a sense of closure.

ELL Targeted Support Text Evidence Model sharing an opinion using supporting text evidence.

As students listen to you read p. 77 in the Student Interactive, ask questions about summer days and how the text supports your opinion. Write this sentence on the board: "People like to spend time in the sun too." Say: This shows support for my opinion that summer is the best season because you can have fun in the sun. Then, have students complete these sentence starters: The text says, "People like to _____." (spend time in the sun too) This supports my opinion that summer is the best season because _____. (you can have fun in the sun) DEVELOPING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies for sharing an opinion and supporting it using text evidence.

OPTION 1 Use the Shared Read Have students form opinions by comparing texts, and then have them write their opinions.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Ask students to write their opinions about seasons around the world using text evidence from their self-selected independent reading informational book.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Can students write using text evidence to share an opinion?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction for writing to sources in Small Group on pp. T130–T131.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction for writing to sources in Small Group on pp. T130–T131.

WEEKLY QUESTION Have students use evidence from the texts they read this week to respond to the Weekly Question. Tell them to discuss in small groups.

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, p. 86

RESPOND TO TEXT

Reflect and Share

Write to Sources
You read about the seasons in different parts of the world. On a separate sheet of paper, write about in which part of the world you would like to live and why.

State an Opinion
When stating your opinion, you should:

- Share what you think or believe.
- Use text evidence to support your opinion.

Use the word because to show your reasons that support your opinion.

Weekly Question
What are seasons like around the world?

COMPARE TEXTS

Teaching Point Today I want to remind you how you can support your opinion about what you have read in informational texts. One thing you can do is compare information from different texts to find text evidence that supports what you think. Look back at Seasons Around the World and Every Season. Help students compare information about the seasons in both texts to determine which season they like best.

ELL Targeted Support

Scaffold the Reflect and Share activity for English learners. Help them compare the seasons and develop an opinion.

Review Seasons Around the World. Ask leading questions about the features of each season. Have students respond orally.

EMERGING

Have students work in small groups to review Seasons Around the World. Ask each group to vote on their favorite season. Have volunteers present their groups' opinions to the class. DEVELOPING

Ask students to review Seasons Around the World. Have them complete this sentence frame:

I like the _____ season best because

_____. Then have small groups share their opinions on the best season.

EXPANDING/BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

myFOCUS READER

Reread pp. 56–57 with students. Use the teaching support online at SavvasRealize.com to engage students in writing about how the texts they read this week support their understanding of what the seasons are like around the word. Encourage students to use the Academic Vocabulary words.

On-Level and Advanced

INQUIRY

Organize Information and Communicate Help students organize the information they collected on a season into a format they can share with others.

Critical Thinking Talk with students about what they learned about supporting opinions and ask them to explain the process they used.

See Extension Activities pp. 334–338 in the Resource Download Center.

Conferring

COMPARE TEXTS

Talk About Independent Reading Ask students to share their opinions about seasons around the world and explain how they formed those opinions, based on their independent reading.

Possible Conference Prompts

- What seasons did you read about?
- Which season is your favorite? Why?
- What information from the text helped you decide on your favorite season?

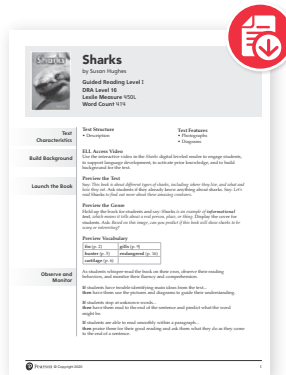

Possible Teaching Point Remind students that they need to support their opinions with text evidence. When they write their opinions, they can use the word because to show the reasons that support their opinions.

Whole Group

Share Bring the class back together as a whole group. Invite one or two students to share their opinions about a favorite season. Congratulate them on sharing ideas.

Independent/Collaborative

Independent Reading

Students can

- reread or listen to Seasons Around the World with a partner.
- read a self-selected text.
- reread or listen to their leveled reader.

WEEK 3 LESSON 1 READING WORKSHOP GENRE & THEME

Listening Comprehension

OBJECTIVES
Listen actively. Use relevant strategies to clarify information, and answer questions with a clear word response.
Use appropriate body cues, facial expressions, and gestures to help you understand what you are reading.

Read Aloud
Tell students you are going to read aloud a persuasive text. Explain that authors of persuasive texts want to persuade, or convince, the reader to do something or think in a certain way. Have students listen as you read aloud "Fall Is the Best Season." Tell students to be active listeners by looking at you and thinking about what you are reading.

START-UP
READ-ALOUD ROUTINE
Purpose: Have students listen actively for elements of persuasive text.
READ the text aloud, pausing to model Think Aloud strategies related to the genre.

FLUENCY
After comparing the Read Aloud Routine Strategy, think to have students read aloud the text, with you modeling the strategy. Then have students read aloud the text, with you modeling the strategy. Then have students read aloud the text, with you modeling the strategy.

Fall Is the Best Season
I love all the seasons, but fall is definitely the best one in my town! There are many fun things to do, inside and out.
The weather gets cool and crisp in the fall. The leaves change color and fall to the ground. I love the reds, yellows, and oranges.
My family bundles up in jackets and jeans, and we gather leaves outside. My brother and I rake the leaves into a big pile and jump into it. Then we roast marshmallows together.
School starts in the fall too. Meeting my new teacher is fun, and I always make new friends.

READ ALOUD TRADE BOOK LIBRARY

Interactive Read Aloud

Fiction Lesson Plan

WHY
Interactive Read Aloud:
• enables students to learn about their independent reading levels.
• allows students to understand the text.
• provides an opportunity to model fluency and expression reading.
• fosters a love and enjoyment of reading.

PLANNING
Select a text from the Read Aloud Trade Book Library or the school or classroom library.
• Select the text to be read.
• Determine the Teaching Point.
• Write your own questions and model Think Aloud as you read, and pose to the class at the points where you plan to stop to think with students.
• Determine how you will assess.

BEFORE READING
• Show the cover of the book to introduce the title, author, illustrator, and genre.
• Ask the big idea or theme of the story.
• Point out interesting artwork or photos.
• Gather prior knowledge and build essential background necessary for understanding.
• Discuss key vocabulary essential for understanding.

DURING READING
• You can choose to stop and model thinking to students just before you begin to read, and again. Think Aloud and open-ended questioning for a longer time into the text.
• Read with expression to draw in listeners.
• Ask questions to guide the discussion and draw attention to the teaching point.
• Use Think Aloud to model strategies and students use to monitor comprehension and construct meaning from text.
• Help students draw connections to their own experiences, text they have read or learned in the past, or the world.

AFTER READING
• Summarize and allow students to share thoughts about the story.
• Engage in a discussion by modeling the teacher's big idea of the story.
• Choose and assign a Student Response Form available on Read.com.

ASSESSMENT GUIDE

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Blend spoken phonemes to form one-syllable words, including initial and/or final consonant blends.

Segment spoken one-syllable words of three to five phonemes into individual phonemes, including words with initial and/or final consonant blends.

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

Sound-Spelling Cards 68, 102, 103

Phonological Awareness: Segment and Blend Phonemes

SEE AND SAY Point to the picture of the suit on p. 96 in the Student Interactive. Say: This is a picture of a suit. Listen carefully to each sound in the word suit: /s/ (pause) /ü/ (pause) /t/. Repeat the sounds in suit with students. Then repeat the activity with the pictures for screw and blue.

PRACTICE Say the following words and have students segment and blend the phonemes: dew, clue, fruit, true, juice, knew, bruise, flew, glue.

Phonics: Decode Words with Vowel Teams ue, ew, ui

Minilesson

FOCUS Use Sound-Spelling Cards 68 (newt), 102 (glue), and 103 (fruit) to introduce the sound /ü/ spelled by the vowel teams ew, ue, and ui. Explain to students that a vowel team is two or more letters that work together to spell a vowel sound. Display Sound-Spelling Card 68. Tell students that the vowel sound they hear in the word newt, /ü/, is spelled ew. Write the word newt on the board. Say the word again as you underline ew. Repeat using Sound-Spelling Cards 102 (glue) and 103 (fruit) to introduce /ü/ spelled ue and ui.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write and read the word blue, emphasizing the vowel sound. Say: The word blue has the vowel sound /ü/. Point to the letters ue. Say: In the word blue, the sound /ü/ is spelled ue. Have students repeat the word and the spelling. Repeat with the words suit and knew.

APPLY MyTURN Direct students to decode the words on the bottom of p. 96 in the Student Interactive.

ELL Targeted Support Vowel Spellings Have students build words with vowel teams ue, ew, and ui using Letter Tiles. Give each student two u's, two e's, one i, and one w.

Build these words with Letter Tiles: suit, few, blue. Guide students to match the Letter Tiles for the vowel team in each word by placing their Letter Tiles on top of your tiles. Then read the words with students. Ask them to point to the letters that spell the vowel sound /ü/. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Build these words with Letter Tiles, leaving space for the vowel team ue, ew, or ui: suit, few, blue. Guide students to add the correct Letter Tiles to complete the words. Then read the words with students.

EXPANDING

HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS

Write the high-frequency words off, open, laugh, because, sentence. Tell students that they need to practice these words.

- Point to each word as you read it.
- Then spell the word and read it again.
- Have students spell and say the words with you.
- Tell students to write the words in a notebook.

Interact with Sources

OBJECTIVES

Interact with sources in meaningful ways such as illustrating or writing.

Identify characteristics of the seasons of the year and day and night.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Language of Ideas Academic language helps students access ideas. After you discuss the infographic, ask: What kind of information does each picture give about a season? What do you expect will happen after you plant a seed during the spring?

- information
- expect
- sense
- process

Point out that these words will be important as students read and write about the Essential Question.

Songs and Poems Big Book

See the Songs and Poems Big Book for selections that relate to the unit's theme.

Explore the Infographic

Remind students of the Essential Question for Unit 5: How do the seasons affect us? Point out the Weekly Question: What do people like about the seasons?

Direct students' attention to the infographic on pp. 94–95 in the Student Interactive. Have them follow along as you read it aloud. Then place students in groups and ask them to discuss some of the reasons people like each season.

Display the following questions as ideas that groups might discuss:

- Which season do you like the best? Why?
- Why don't people go sledding in the summer?
- What is the weather like during the spring?

My TURN Have students interact with the infographic source. Explain that interacting with a text in a meaningful way means reading and then responding to what you read. Writing and drawing are two ways to interact with a text. Say: Now that we have read the text, let's respond to it by writing and drawing. Circle your favorite season. Then draw a picture to show an activity you like to do during that season. Be sure it's an activity you can do during the weather of the season.

WEEKLY QUESTION Remind students of the Weekly Question: What do people like about the seasons? Explain that all the pictures show activities people enjoy during each season. Explain that students will learn more about the seasons this week.

EXPERT'S VIEW Jim Cummins, Professor Emeritus, University of Toronto

“The results of standardized tests may be misleading for evaluating English language learners' progress. Because it typically takes at least four to five years for ELLs to get on grade level academically, it may appear that students are not making adequate progress. Keep in mind that native speakers of English are increasing their literacy skills every year and so ELLs have to 'run faster' to catch up.”

See SavvasRealize.com for more professional development on research-based best practices.

ELL Targeted Support Visual Support Have students look closely at the visuals in the infographic for support.

Have students discuss what is happening in the visuals and name the season in which each activity occurs. Then choral read each section of text. EMERGING

State the name of each season and assist students to read the corresponding text in the infographic. Provide additional visuals to show activities that are typical of each season. Have students draw a picture to show something people do in the spring. Repeat for each season. DEVELOPING

Have small groups read the infographic together. Then have groups divide a sheet of paper into four squares of equal size. Tell students to label each section with the name of one of the seasons, showing the seasons in order. Have students draw visuals in each section to show typical activities during the season. Then have students work together to write a sentence to describe each activity. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

WEEKLY LAUNCH: INFOGRAPHIC

Read Together

Seasonal Activities

MY TURN When you interact with a text, you read and respond to it in a way that helps you understand it. Interact with this text by circling the name of a season.

Spring

People can plant flowers and watch them bloom.

Summer

People can cool off in the hot summer by swimming in a pool, lake, or ocean.

Autumn

Some people jump in the colorful leaves that fall off the trees.

Weekly Question

What do people like about the seasons?

MY TURN Draw a picture of an activity you might do in the season you circled.

Possible response: drawings will show an activity connected to the season that is circled.

Winter

Many people go sledding, skiing, and snowboarding.

WEEK 3

Listening Comprehension

OBJECTIVES

Listen actively, ask relevant questions to clarify information, and answer questions using multi-word responses.

Use appropriate fluency (rate, accuracy, and prosody) when reading grade-level text.

Recognize characteristics of persuasive text with adult assistance and state what the author is trying to persuade the reader to think or do.

FLUENCY

After completing the Read-Aloud Routine, display “Fall Is the Best Season.” Model reading aloud the first two paragraphs of the text, asking students to pay attention to the way you read. Explain that fluency in reading a persuasive text is about reading aloud with phrasing and intonation to get readers to agree with the author. Tell students that they will read persuasive texts this week. Point out that, when it is time to read the texts, students should practice reading with appropriate phrasing and intonation.

 THINK ALOUD Analyze Persuasive Text After you reread the first paragraph, say: *In this paragraph, I read the words love and best. These are persuasive words. Authors use words like these to tell how they feel and to get you to think the same way. Finding persuasive words helps me identify this text as persuasive.*

Read Aloud

Tell students you are going to read aloud a persuasive text. Explain that authors of persuasive texts want to persuade, or convince, the reader to do something or think in a certain way. Have students listen as you read aloud “Fall Is the Best Season.” Tell students to be active listeners by looking at you and thinking about what you are reading.

START-UP

READ-ALOUD ROUTINE

Purpose Have students listen actively for elements of persuasive text.

READ the entire text aloud without stopping for the Think Aloud callouts.

REREAD the text aloud, pausing to model Think Aloud strategies related to the genre.

Fall Is the Best Season

The weather gets cool and crisp in the fall. The leaves change color and fall to the ground. I love the reds, yellows, and oranges.

My family bundles up in jackets and jeans, and we gather leaves outside. My brother and I rake the leaves into a big pile and jump into it. Then we roast marshmallows together.

School starts in the fall too. Meeting my new teacher is fun, and I always make new friends.

The squirrels and other animals in my neighborhood get ready for the cold weather. I love to watch them scurry around, gather food, and prepare for winter.

But my favorite thing about fall is snuggling up with my family after dinner each night. We get out blankets to keep us warm as we sit on the sofa, and my grandpa tells us stories about growing up. It makes me grateful for what we have and for the time we can spend together. Now you must agree that no other season is quite like fall!

THINK ALOUD Analyze Persuasive Text After you reread the paragraphs on this page, say: In this text, the author tells his or her thoughts and feelings about why fall is the best season. The author wants me to agree. That makes this a persuasive text.

ELL Targeted Support Use Support Prepare students for the oral reading of “Fall Is the Best Season.”

Read aloud this short explanation: Weather is not the same in seasons in all places. Fall is a cooler season in some places. It is a time when leaves fall from the trees and people begin to wear warmer clothes. Then ask students to add information they know about fall. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Author's Opinion

Why Author
Feels This Way

Ask students: What is the opinion of the author? Why does the author feel this way? Record student responses in a chart.

Persuasive Text

LEARNING GOAL

I can read about the seasons.

OBJECTIVE

Recognize characteristics of persuasive text with adult assistance and state what the author is trying to persuade the reader to think or do.

LANGUAGE OF THE GENRE

As you review the anchor chart, check to make certain students understand the words that help them talk about persuasive texts.

- persuade
- opinion
- reasons

FLEXIBLE OPTION ANCHOR CHARTS

To make your own anchor chart to go with this lesson, begin with the genre, persuasive text.

- Have students discuss the ways they can tell a text is persuasive text.
- Ask students to look for an opinion.
- Tell students to look for reasons for the opinion.
- Add to the anchor chart as students learn about the genre.

ELL Language Transfer

Cognates Point out Spanish cognates related to persuasive text.

- persuade : persuadir
- opinion : opinión
- reason : razón

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES In a persuasive text, the author writes to persuade, or convince, the reader to think or do something.

- Ask yourself whether the author states an opinion. A persuasive text tells an opinion. This is the way the author thinks or feels.
- Notice whether the author gives reasons for the opinion. A persuasive text tells reasons why the reader should think or feel the same way the author does.
- Remember that the author of a persuasive text wants the reader to think or do something.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Model determining whether a text is persuasive. Display “Reading Is Fun!” from p. 106 in the Student Interactive, and read the text aloud. I want to figure out if this text is persuasive text. The first sentence has the word like. I know the word like tells a feeling, so this is the author’s opinion. Next, the author writes: You should like to read too. The author uses the word should to get the reader to like reading. Then the author states reasons that tell why: It is fun. You can learn. You can see pictures you like. At the end, the author states what the reader should do. The reader should like to read. All of this means this text is persuasive.

Review the anchor chart on p. 107 with students.

ELL Targeted Support Retell Reread “Reading Is Fun!” on p. 106 in the Student Interactive. Then have students demonstrate listening comprehension by retelling the author’s opinion and reasons.

Ask students leading questions, such as: What does the author think? Why does he or she feel this way? Allow students to point to the text to respond. Then guide students to retell the text. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students retell the opinion and the reasons in “Reading Is Fun!” to a partner. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies to identify persuasive text.

OPTION 1 TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have students work with a partner to complete the Turn and Talk activity on p. 106 in the Student Interactive. Circulate as students work to determine whether they are able to distinguish between persuasive text and informational text.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Have students find and list characteristics of persuasive text in their independent reading text.

QUICK CHECK

GENRE: PERSUASIVE TEXT

My Learning Goal I can read about the seasons.

Persuasive Text

A persuasive text gives an opinion and reasons to persuade, or convince, readers to think something or do something.

Reading Is Fun!

Opinion — I like to read. You should like to read too. It is fun to Reasons — read. You can learn new things. You can see pictures you like. We should all like to read.

Academic Vocabulary

LEARNING GOAL

I can make and use words to connect reading and writing.

OBJECTIVES

Use illustrations and texts the student is able to read or hear to learn or clarify word meanings.

Respond using newly acquired vocabulary as appropriate.

ELL Access

ELLs may want to ask about each word they do not understand when reading, but remind students that they can get a general sense of a word's meaning by using surrounding words and pictures. After students figure out the word's meaning using context clues, confirm the word's meaning for them.

Context Clues

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Remind students of the Academic Vocabulary for the unit: information, sense, expect, and process. Say: Context clues are words and pictures that can help you understand what a word means.

- Read the sentence with the unfamiliar word again.
- Look for clues about the word's meaning. Read the nearby words. Examine the pictures, such as the illustrations and photos, and think about what you see.
- When you think you know the meaning, read the sentence again. Does what you think the word means make sense in the sentence?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Model using context clues to find a word's meaning. Write the following on the board: I see a flock of birds. Also draw birds flying in a V. Then say: I'm not sure what flock means. I'll look for nearby words and pictures that can help me with the meaning. In the illustration, there are many birds, so I think flock means "group." I will reread the sentence to see if that meaning makes sense.

Handwriting

OBJECTIVE

Develop handwriting by printing words, sentences, and answers legibly leaving appropriate spaces between words.

IDENTIFY PERSUASIVE TEXT

Teaching Point Persuasive text tells an opinion. An opinion is something someone feels or thinks. The author of persuasive text tells the reader what to do or think. Then the author gives reasons that tell why. Look back at “Fall Is the Best Season,” pp. T140–T141, and discuss the ways students can tell this text is persuasive text.

ELL Targeted Support

Have students use support from peers and teachers to enhance and confirm their understanding of persuasive text.

Ask the following yes/no questions to help students identify persuasive text: Does the text tell the way the author thinks or feels? (yes) Does the text explain how to do something? (no) Does the author give reasons that tell why the reader should think or do something? (yes) Is “Fall Is the Best Season” persuasive text? (yes) EMERGING

Have students support each other as they complete the sentence frame: I can tell “Fall Is the Best Season” is a persuasive text because _____ and _____. DEVELOPING

Ask student pairs to examine “Fall Is the Best Season.” Then have partners support each other as they share with the class how they know it is persuasive text. EXPANDING

Have partners support each other as they discuss how they know “Reading Is Fun!” and “Fall Is the Best Season” are both persuasive texts. BRIDGING

DIRECTIONS Follow along as your teacher reads aloud each passage. Look at the pictures.

A Secret Note

Do you want to make some invisible ink? Here is how to do it. You have to get some things. Then, look at the directions. You have to do the steps in order.

What You Need

- half a lemon
- water
- a spoon
- a bowl
- a cotton swab
- white paper
- a lamp

Directions

1. Put some lemon juice into the bowl. Put in one or two drops of water.
2. Mix the water and the juice with a spoon.
3. Then take the cotton swab. Dip it in the mix. Write a note on the white paper.
4. Let the juice dry so you do not see it. There is no note! But you can find out if it is there.
5. When it is time to show the note, set the paper under the lamp. The lamp is hot. It can get the paper hot. Soon, you will see the note.

Phonics, p. 277

Phonics: Decode and Write Words with Vowel Teams ue, ew, ui

Minilesson

FOCUS Explain to students that the sound /ü/ can be spelled ue, ew, and ui. They will need to see the word written to know how the vowel sound is spelled.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the following words on the board: true, chew, cruise. Say: The sound /ü/ can be spelled ue as in the word true. Have students repeat the word with you as you underline the letters ue. Then point to the word chew and have students decode it. Ask: What vowel sound do you hear in the word chew? (/ü/) How do you spell the sound /ü/ in chew? (ew) Repeat for the word cruise. Then write the words clue, stew, bruise, juice, glue, new, screw, flew, and have students decode them.

Create a three-column chart with the headings ue, ew, and ui. Ask students to sort the words they decoded according to the spelling of the vowel sound /ü/. Invite volunteers to write the words in the appropriate columns.

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have partners read the words at the top of p. 97 in the Student Interactive.

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Make, correct, or confirm predictions using text features, characteristics of genre, and structures with adult assistance.

ELL Access

Background Knowledge

Students make meaning from the words they learn and their prior knowledge. Have students share their personal experiences or ideas from texts they have read about fawns, squirrels, worms, and springtime.

Shared Read Plan

First Read Read the text. Pause to discuss the First Read notes.

Close Read Use the Close Read notes to guide your instruction for Lessons 3 and 4.

Preview Vocabulary

- Introduce the vocabulary terms fawns, worms, and squirrels from p. 108 in the Student Interactive.
- Display images that depict each of the vocabulary words. Have students echo each word as you use it to identify an image.
- Ask: What is the same about all of these words? (They all name animals.)
- Invite students to share what they already know about the words. You can, for example, ask students to pretend they are fawns, worms, and squirrels and act out how each animal behaves.
- Provide definitions as needed. Definitions appear on the selection pages that follow. Say: These words will help you understand the persuasive text In Spring.

Read

Discuss the First Read Strategies with students. Prompt them to read for understanding and enjoyment during the first reading of the text.

FIRST READ STRATEGIES

LOOK Ask students to look through the text. Then have each student make a prediction about the text.

READ Have students read the text to learn about spring.

ASK Prompt students to ask questions to confirm whether their predictions are correct.

TALK Have students identify and discuss the author's opinion about spring.

Students may read the text independently, in pairs, or as a whole class. Use the First Read notes to help students connect with the text and guide their understanding.

ELL Targeted Support Use Vocabulary to Express Ideas Display the vocabulary words fawns, worms, and squirrels.

Read aloud one of the vocabulary words. Have students draw a picture to illustrate the word. Guide students to write the vocabulary word below the picture. Then have students take turns saying a sentence with the word to describe the picture and its connection to spring. Repeat with the remaining vocabulary words.

EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have small groups work together to draw a scene that illustrates all the vocabulary words. Ask students to label the animals in the picture. Then have students discuss how all of the creatures named by a vocabulary word are connected to spring.

On page 117, the author writes that there are many reasons to like spring. I think I need to correct, or adjust, my prediction. This text is about persuading readers that spring is the best season.

Foundational Skills Extension

Prefixes re-, un-

Remind students that prefixes are letters added to the beginning of a word to change the word's meaning. Read aloud the first sentence on p. 114. Display the word coil. Then say: The word coil means "to wind into a spring shape." Draw a simple sketch of a coiled worm. Then say: You can add the prefix un- to the word coil. Below coil, write and read aloud uncoil. Circle the prefix un- and explain: The prefix un- can mean "not," so what does the word uncoiled mean? ("not coiled") Draw a simple sketch to show an uncoiled worm.

Then ask them how the vowel sound /ü/ is spelled in each word.

ELL Targeted Support

Tell students that pictures can help them become more familiar with sound-letter relationships.

Have students tell words they know with the sound /ü/ spelled ue, ui, or ew, such as glue, newt, and fruit. Have them choose one word to illustrate. Then help them label their drawings and read the word for the group. EMERGING

Ask students to list words they know with the sound /ü/ spelled ue, ui, or ew. Then have them choose a word to illustrate and label. DEVELOPING

Have partners list words they know with the sound /ü/ spelled ue, ui, or ew. Then have each student choose two words with different spelling patterns to illustrate, label, and use in a sentence. Have them share their work with their partners. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

LONG VOWEL PATTERNS

Use Lesson 21 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on reading words with long vowel patterns.

LEVEL B • MODEL AND TEACH

Lesson 21 Long Vowel Patterns

INTRODUCE Remind students that long vowel sounds sound like the letter name. Remind students they have learned to recognize and say words with long vowel sounds in words with a silent final e. Today we will learn to recognize words with these long vowel sounds—ie, oi, and ir—that are spelled differently.

MODEL Display Student Page S127. Read aloud the first two sentences in the passage. Point to the word She, read it aloud, and have students repeat after you. Point to the letter e. She is a word with a long e sound that is spelled differently from the word Pete.

OBJECTIVES:

- Learn sound-letter correspondences besides the silent e rule for long e (e and y), long i (i, y, and igh), and long o (o).
- Use knowledge of these correspondences to decode long vowel words in isolation and in context.
- Apply knowledge of these correspondences to spell long vowel words properly.

Hi!

She is a young girl.
Pete is a cold boy.
The young girl says hi to the cold boy.
The boy is too cold to say hi back!

e	o	i
she	cold	hi

TEACH Direct students' attention to the chart and run your finger under relevant letters and words as you read it aloud. Draw out and blend the sounds. Say the long e sound with me: /ē/. Say the word with me: /Shē/. Point to the drawing of snowflakes falling. Is it warm outside? No! It is cold. /ō/. Cold uses a long o sound, but it is spelled differently from bone. Say the long o sound with me: /ō/. Now say the word with me: /kōld/. Point to the word hi in the last column. Hi uses a long i sound, but it is spelled differently from kite. Say the long i sound with me: /ī/. Now say the word with me: /hī/.

Word Work Activity

BUILD WORDS WITH LETTER TILES

Form these words with Letter Tiles, leaving out ue, ui, and ew: glue, suit, new, juice, clue, newt. Students can use the Letter Tiles ue, ew, and ui to complete the words. They can then tell a partner how the sound /ü/ is spelled in each word.

Students can also play the Letter Tile game in the myView games at SavvasRealize.com.

Decodable Reader

Have students practice reading high-frequency words and words with vowel teams ue, ew, and ui before reading and listening to the Decodable Reader The Mix-Up.

After students finish, have them find a word in the story with the vowel sound /ü/ or a high-frequency word. Have students draw a picture of or write a sentence with their chosen word.

High-Frequency Words

Have students practice reading this week's high-frequency words: off, open, laugh, because, sentence.

DEVELOP VOCABULARY

Teaching Point When you are reading a persuasive text, and you find a word you do not understand, you can use nearby words and pictures to help you. Direct students' attention to p. 112 of In Spring. Have students choral read the last sentence with you. I see the girl pointing to the tree, and I see the squirrels darting around. This picture shows me the meaning of darting. Have students use the illustration on p. 114 in the Student Interactive to determine the meaning of the word puddles.

ELL Targeted Support

Explain that students might find words they do not understand when they read persuasive text. Point out that using nearby words and pictures can help them figure out word meanings.

Direct students' attention to p. 112 of In Spring. Read aloud the page. Ask: What is the girl pointing at? (squirrels) What are the squirrels doing? (running up the tree) The text says they are darting. Using the picture, what must darting mean? (moving quickly). EMERGING

Have students work in pairs. One student can point out an unfamiliar word. The other can point to clues that will help the student figure out its meaning. Then have students reverse roles.

DEVELOPING

Have students orally complete the following sentence frame about a new word they learned in the text: I know the word _____ means _____ because _____. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

myFOCUS READER

Read the text on pp. 58–59 in the myFocus Reader with students. Use the teaching support online at SavvasRealize.com to provide additional insight for students regarding seasons.

PROSODY

Guide students to choose a short passage from a persuasive text. Have them take turns reading with appropriate phrasing and intonation to persuade the reader. If necessary, model reading with appropriate phrasing and intonation.

ORAL READING RATE AND ACCURACY

Use pp. 133–138 in Unit 5, Week 3 Cold Reads to assess students. Have partners practice reading the passage. Use the Fluency Progress Chart to track student progress.

Conferring

DEVELOP VOCABULARY

Talk About Independent Reading Have students share their list of words and tell what they learned from the words.

Possible Conference Prompts

- How did you find the words' meanings?
- What do these words tell about the author's opinion?
- Why do you think the author chose these words?

Possible Teaching Point Readers remember to look at text features, such as graphics and labels, to find clues about the meanings of unfamiliar words.

Independent Reading

Students can

- reread or listen to In Spring and note the persuasive words the author uses.
- read a self-selected persuasive text or the Book Club text.

Centers

See the myView Literacy Stations in the Resource Download Center.

Literacy Activities

Students can

- work with a partner to discuss and complete the activity on p. 119 in the Student Interactive.
- play the myView games.
- partner-read sections of a persuasive text with appropriate phrasing and intonation.

SUPPORT PARTNER READING

Students can often better understand unfamiliar texts through partner reading. This activity allows students to guide each other through difficult passages.

See the Small Group Guide for additional support and resources to target your students' specific instructional needs.

Whole Group

Share Bring the class back together as a whole group. Have students share new words they found in persuasive texts. Celebrate the new knowledge and understanding they have acquired.

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Blend spoken phonemes to form one-syllable words, including initial and/or final consonant blends.

Segment spoken one-syllable words of three to five phonemes into individual phonemes, including words with initial and/or final consonant blends.

Demonstrate and apply phonetic knowledge.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

Picture Cards

Sound-Spelling Cards 162, 163

FOUNDATIONAL SKILLS EXTENSION

See p. T156 for a prefixes re- and un- extension activity that can be used as the text is read.

Phonological Awareness: Segment and Blend Phonemes

SEE AND SAY Point to the picture of the brick on p. 99 in the Student Interactive. Segment the sounds in brick: /b/ /r/ /i/ /k/. When you segment sounds, you separate the word into each of the sounds. Then say the word brick. When you blend sounds, you combine the sounds to say the word. Have students segment and blend the picture names plant and snow.

PRACTICE Display the block Picture Card. Have students segment the sounds in the picture name, and then blend the sounds to name the picture. Continue with the boat, clock, dress, green, and nest Picture Cards.

Phonics: Decode Words with Prefixes re-, un-

Minilesson

FOCUS Tell students that a prefix is a word part added to the beginning of a word that changes the word's meaning.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Use Sound-Spelling Cards 162 (replant) and 163 (unwrap) to introduce the prefixes re- and un-. Say: The prefix re- means "again." The prefix re- is added to the word plant to make the word replant. The word replant means "to plant again." Repeat with the word unwrap on Card 163. Then write the words remake and unsafe for students to decode and tell the meanings.

APPLY My TURN Have students read the words on the bottom of p. 99 in the Student Interactive.

High-Frequency Words

Minilesson

FOCUS Write or display the high-frequency words: off, open, laugh, because, sentence.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write off on the board. Say: This is the word off. It has three letters. The letters in off are o, f, and f. Have students say and spell the word. Then ask them to tell you a sentence using the word. Repeat with the remaining high-frequency words.

APPLY MyTURN Have students identify, read, and print the high-frequency words on p. 100 in the Student Interactive.

Identify Persuasive Text

OBJECTIVE

Recognize characteristics of persuasive text with adult assistance and state what the author is trying to persuade the reader to think or do.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate As you discuss identifying persuasive text, model using the Academic Vocabulary words.

- The author of In Spring uses words that relate to the five senses.
- What does the author expect readers to think or do?

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Authors of persuasive texts state opinions and reasons to try to convince readers to think or do something.

- Notice whether the author states an opinion in the text.
- Ask yourself: Does the author give reasons to support the opinion?
- Notice persuasive words the author uses, such as best or should.

MODEL AND PRACTICE To model recognizing persuasive text, display and read aloud “Fall Is the Best Season” on pp. T140–T141. Guide students to identify the opinion and the reasons the author gives. Explain that these elements make the text persuasive. Then have students follow the Close Read notes on pp. 113, 115, and 117 of In Spring in the Student Interactive to practice finding the author’s opinion and reasons that support them.

ELL Targeted Support Identify Genre Guide students to identify the elements of persuasive text in “Fall Is the Best Season.” Reread the text aloud.

Ask simple questions to help students determine the genre. Does the author tell what he or she thinks or feels? (yes) Does the author give reasons why he or she thinks that way? (yes) What are some reasons the author gives? EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have partners write the author’s opinion and the reasons provided by the author to support the opinion. Then have pairs exchange papers and compare the reasons they included. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

EXPERT’S VIEW Judy Wallis, Literacy Specialist and Staff Developer

“When doing multiple readings of an anchor text, the first reading is about the whole—the genre, the key ideas, the author’s purpose. The second reading is about the parts, and students may only need to reread parts of the text, not the whole text. You might focus on the structure of the text, author’s word choice, or perhaps the problem and resolution. Then return to the whole text for application and practice: What is the author of this text trying to communicate?”

See SavvasRealize.com for more professional development on research-based best practices.

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Ask students to use the strategies for identifying characteristics of persuasive text.

OPTION 1 MyTURN Have students complete p. 120 in the Student Interactive.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Ask students to complete a two-column chart with the following headings to tell about their independent text: Author's Opinion; Reasons the Author Gives.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Are students able to recognize characteristics of persuasive text?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction for identifying persuasive text in Small Group on pp. T170–T171.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction for identifying persuasive text in Small Group on pp. T170–T171.

Identify Persuasive Text

Persuasive text has opinions and reasons that try to convince readers to think something or do something.

MYTURN What is the author trying to persuade readers to think? Go back to what you underlined in the text to help you answer.

The author wants readers to think that spring is the best season.

What is one reason the author uses?

Possible responses:

Days are longer. Plants start growing again.

Read Like a Writer, Write for a Reader

OBJECTIVE

Discuss how the author uses words that help the reader visualize.

ELL Access

Visualize Guide students to understand that when you speak of readers making pictures in their minds, they are not actually making or drawing these pictures. Instead, they are having the experience the author wants them to have. They are seeing what the author would show if the author were showing pictures.

Word Choice

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Authors often choose words that will help readers visualize—or see in their minds—information in the text.

- Look for sensory words, or words relating to the five senses, to help you visualize information in the text.
- Ask yourself why an author used a certain word. For example, instead of using walk, an author could use race, dash, tiptoe, skip, or another word to show the reader exactly what the author means. How does the word help you visualize?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Read aloud the example at the top of p. 124 of the Student Interactive. Say: The author could have written, “You see worms move.” This sentence would not have helped readers visualize, or see in their minds, what the author wants them to see. So, the author wrote, “You can see worms coil up.” The words coil up help readers visualize exactly what the author wants to show. Guide students to develop ideas about spring before beginning the activity on p. 124 in the Student Interactive.

Handwriting

OBJECTIVE

Develop handwriting by printing words, sentences, and answers legibly leaving appropriate spaces between words.

Write Sentences

FOCUS Tell students that it is important to include the right amount of space between words when writing a list of words or a sentence. It is also important to print legibly, or clearly, so others can read your writing.

MODEL Model printing the following words and sentences, leaving the appropriate space between words: big red pen; I am happy. We are in our room. Model how to place a finger at the end of one word to use as a “spacer” before writing the next word. Model writing slowly so your words are legible.

Lesson 53 Determine Author’s Purpose and Reasons

DIRECTIONS Follow along as your teacher reads aloud “Breakfast Is Best.” Look for important points and the reasons that support them.

Breakfast Is Best

Breakfast is the best meal of the day. Breakfast gets my day off to a great start. A healthy breakfast gives my body what it needs to grow. Breakfast gives me energy to get ready for school. Eating breakfast helps keep me awake. With a full stomach, I can listen and learn.

I can eat my favorite foods at breakfast. Some mornings I eat cereal with milk. Some mornings I eat toast with jelly. Some mornings I eat eggs and fruit. I can drink my favorite drinks, too. Some mornings I drink orange juice. Some mornings I drink apple juice. Some mornings I drink milk. These are my favorite foods and drinks.

It does not take too long to eat breakfast. I can eat a bowl of cereal or a piece of toast quickly. I make sure to chew every bite!

Correct and Confirm Predictions

OBJECTIVE

Make, correct, or confirm predictions using text features, characteristics of genre, and structures with adult assistance.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate Provide oral practice with unit Academic Vocabulary words as students discuss ways to make predictions about a text.

- The process for making predictions includes confirming or changing a prediction.
- The information I have already read in a text helps me make and correct or confirm predictions.

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Before reading, readers can make predictions. Then readers can use text structure, or how text is organized, to correct and confirm predictions. They can change their prediction or check that the prediction is right. Thinking about the characteristics of the genre they are reading can also help a reader correct and confirm predictions.

- Determine the text structure. Is there an opinion and reasons? Is there a sequence?
- Think about the genre. Is the author trying to make you think or do something?
- Use the text structure and genre to help correct or confirm a prediction.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Use the Read Aloud “Fall Is the Best Season” on pp. T140–T141 to correct or confirm a prediction using text structure and genre. Say: I predicted that this text is going to be about fall. As I read the first paragraph, I read that the author thinks fall is the best season and she has many reasons. So now I know that the text structure has an opinion and reasons. I also know that a persuasive text is written by an author who is trying to make me do or think something. This author must be trying to make me think that fall is the best season. So I can use text structure and genre to correct, or change, my prediction. I predict this text is about reasons fall is the best. Have students return to the Close Read note on p. 111 in the Student Interactive to highlight words that help them make a prediction. Then they will use text structure to correct and confirm that prediction. Provide assistance as needed.

ELL Targeted Support Predictions Guide students to correct or confirm their predictions.

Present a prediction about a new leveled text using text features or characteristics of genre. As you read the text, stop to point out places in the text that lead you to correct or confirm your prediction. Discuss with students. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Guide partners to make predictions about a new leveled text using text features or characteristics of genre. Then have them read and discuss details that help them correct or confirm their predictions.

EXPANDING/BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Ask students to use the strategies for correcting and confirming predictions.

OPTION 1 MyTURN Have students complete p. 121 in the Student Interactive.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Have students record a prediction they made about their independent text. Then have them use text structure to correct or confirm their predictions.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Are students able to use text structure to correct and confirm predictions?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction for correcting and confirming predictions in Small Group on pp. T180–T181.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction for correcting and confirming predictions in Small Group on pp. T180–T181.

Read Together READING WORKSHOP

Correct and Confirm Predictions

During reading, readers can correct, or adjust, a prediction. After reading, they can confirm, or check, if their prediction was right. Looking at how text is organized, or text structure, will help you correct and confirm predictions. What is the text structure? Do you see an opinion and reasons?

MYTURN What did you predict about the text? Look back at what you highlighted. I predicted this text would be about Possible response:
spring
Possible response:

spring.

Was my prediction correct? Yes No

TURNandTALK Talk with your partner about how the structure helped you correct or confirm your prediction.

Word Work Strategy Group

PREFIXES re-, un-

Sound-Spelling Cards

Display Sound-Spelling Card 162. Say: The word replant has the prefix re-. What does replant mean? Yes, to plant again. Repeat with Sound-Spelling Card 163 (unwrap) for the prefix un-.

Have partners make a picture book featuring images or drawings of words with the prefixes re- and un-. Images might include someone unwrapping a present or retying a shoelace. Make sure students label their pictures. Then ask pairs to share their picture books with the group.

ELL Targeted Support

Have students work in small groups to discuss words with prefixes re- and un-.

Provide a list of words such as redo, undo, unwrap, and replay. Ask students to share how they can use these words in conversation. Demonstrate with the word untie.

EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Ask small groups to generate a list of words with prefixes re- and un-. If necessary provide base words, such as paint, shape, able, and happy, for students to create words. Then have them tell how and when they can use these words. Have each student choose a word to demonstrate.

EXPANDING/BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

PREFIXES AND SUFFIXES

Use Lesson 29 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on prefixes and suffixes.

LEVEL B • PRACTICE AND ASSESS

Lesson 29 Prefixes and Suffixes

PRACTICE 2: Suffixes -er and -or Explain that a suffix is a word part found at the end of a word. Say: Since suffixes have their own meanings, they change a base word's meaning. For example, the suffixes -er and -or both mean "one who," so it turns an action word into a word that names a person. For example, the action word lead becomes leader when the suffix -er is added. Leader means "one who leads." The suffix -or works the same way. You just have to remember whether to use -er or -or.

REMINDE STUDENTS THAT...

- they know words can be made of different parts.
- they have learned one type of word part is called a suffix, which comes at the end of a word.
- they know the suffixes -er and -or both mean "one who."

Distribute Student Page S165. Read aloud the words on the word cards. Have students repeat each word after you and say its meaning.

actor	farmer	governor	player
rancher	speaker	teacher	visitor

Have students work in pairs to cut apart the word cards and sort them into two categories: suffix -er and suffix -or. Then have them shuffle the cards and turn them face down. One partner draws a card and says the word, and the other identifies which suffix the word uses.

MONITOR PROGRESS Have students look at the following short passages from Student Page S165. Read each passage aloud as students follow along. Ask them to identify the word that has a suffix and to say what the word means.

All TV shows and movies have a director. This is the person who makes sure everything is done right. (one who directs)

Dad says I am a good thinker. He feels proud when I do the right thing. It makes me happy. (one who thinks)

IF... students cannot identify a word with a suffix, THEN... focus on the word, running your hand under it as you say the word slowly in two parts. Then guide students to underline the suffix, recall its meaning, and finally define the word.

BUILD WORDS WITH LETTER TILES

Distribute Letter Tiles so that students can form these words:

undo, redo, unpack, repack.

Students can then read each word and identify its prefix.

Students can also play the Letter Tile game in the myView games at SavvasRealize.com.

Decodable Reader

When students read and listen to the Decodable Reader The List, they can practice reading words with the prefixes re- and un- and high-frequency words.

Before reading, review high-frequency words used in the text. Display the words for students to read aloud.

Pair students for reading and listen carefully as they use letter-sound relationships to decode. One student begins. Students read the entire story, switching readers after each page. Partners reread the story. This time the other student begins.

CORRECT AND CONFIRM PREDICTIONS

Teaching Point Readers use what they know about text features, text structure, and types of texts to make a prediction. Then readers can read to confirm, or find out, if the prediction was right. If the prediction was wrong, the reader can correct, or adjust, the prediction.

Guide students to make, correct, and confirm predictions using an independent text.

ELL Targeted Support

Guide students to use an appropriate leveled, independent text to make, correct, and confirm predictions.

Prompt students to use the following sentence frames to make and check their predictions: I think ____ will happen in this text. I know that my prediction was ____ because ____. EMERGING

Have students use a four-column chart with the headings Prediction, Keep, Change, Why to help them check predictions about their text. Tell them to write a prediction in the first column, then mark whether to keep it or change it as they read. They should note what helped them decide. DEVELOPING

Have small groups work together to make and then confirm or correct predictions.

Have each group share their work with the others. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

MAKE, CORRECT, AND CONFIRM PREDICTIONS

Use Lesson 43 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on predictions.

LEVEL B • READ

Lesson 43 Make, Correct, or Confirm Predictions

DIRECTIONS Look at the title and think what this story might be about. Then follow along as your teacher reads aloud "Ready to March."

Ready to March

Jade got paper. Where were her crayons? She could not find them. So she got her markers.

Jade had one day to finish, but the picture had to look good. She made a picture of a dog. She wrote "Dog Club" at the top of the paper.

"Look at my sign, Mom," said Jade. "It is ready for tomorrow."

"I see," said Mom. "But the sign is too little. No one will be able to see it."

Jade did not have time to make a big, new sign. She thought about it. Then she said, "Mom, you had to make a big sign for your job."

"That is right. I did," Mom said.

Then Mom said, "I can help you." She went to her office. She made a big, big copy of Jade's sign.

Independent/Collaborative

Independent Reading

Students can

- reread or listen to an appropriate leveled reader.
- discuss predictions with a partner as they read.
- discuss with a partner whether making, correcting, and confirming predictions seemed easier or harder with the Book Club text than with In Spring.

Centers

See the myView Literacy Stations in the Resource Download Center.

Literacy Activities

Students can

- write about a book they are reading.
- play the myView games.
- build words using the Letter Tile activity on p. T179.

SUPPORT INDEPENDENT READING

It is important to build students’ confidence. As students read, provide any necessary support and point out aspects of students’ reading that have improved since the start of the year.

See the Small Group Guide for additional support and resources to target your students’ specific instructional needs.

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Manipulate phonemes within base words.

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Decode words with inflectional endings, including -ed, -s, and -es.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

ADDITIONAL PRACTICE

For additional student practice with high-frequency words, use My Words to Know p. 287 from the Resource Download Center.

My Words to Know p. 287

Phonological Awareness: Manipulate Phonemes

MODEL Tell students that when you manipulate sounds in a word, you move, or switch, the sounds to different places. Say: We are going to manipulate the sounds in a word. Let's say the sounds in bat: /b/ /a/ /t/. Now let's switch the first sound, /b/, and the last sound, /t/: /t/ /a/ /b/, tab.

PRACTICE Have students manipulate the first and last phonemes in each word to say a new word: bus /b/ /u/ /s/, to sub /s/ /u/ /b/; tip /t/ /i/ /p/, to pit /p/ /i/ /t/; sum /s/ /u/ /m/, to muss /m/ /u/ /s/.

Phonics: Spiral Review Long i Spelled igh; Suffixes -er, -or

Minilesson

FOCUS Write the word light on the board. Tell students that long i can be spelled igh. Point to and read aloud the word light. Ask: How is the long i sound spelled in the word light? Underline the letters igh.

Display the words teacher and actor. Underline the suffixes -er and -or. Say: The suffixes -er and -or can mean "someone who ___." Have students tell what the words teacher and actor mean.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Display the following sentences. Have students read them with a partner.

1. The painter uses light blue paint.
2. I met a baseball player on my flight.
3. I might not see a sailor at night.

ELL Targeted Support High-Frequency Words Provide extra practice for students to spell high-frequency words. Provide students with Letter Tiles to spell this week's high-frequency words and any previously learned high-frequency words that require more practice.

Spell each high-frequency word with students. First say the word and have students repeat. Then begin spelling the word, letter by letter. As you name a letter, hold up the letter and ask students to find the letter in their Letter Tiles. Model arranging the letters left to right to spell the words. After the word is spelled, chorally name the letters. EMERGING

Display the high-frequency words students will spell and read. Point to each word and read it with students. Then have students spell the words with Letter Tiles. Monitor students' spelling. Prompt students with questions and suggestions if you notice spelling errors.

DEVELOPING

Review the high-frequency words that students will be spelling. Then tell students they will listen to you say a word. Students will spell the word using their Letter Tiles. Have partners check each other's work. To extend the practice, have partners read words to each other to spell. EXPANDING

Have partners take turns reading high-frequency words to each other to spell. The student who reads the word will check his or her partner's spelling. Then they can switch roles. BRIDGING

HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS

Tell students that high-frequency words are words that they will hear, read, and use over and over. Display the words off, open, laugh, because, sentence. Have partners take turns

- spelling the words.
- using the words in sentences.

Reflect and Share

In Spring

OBJECTIVES

Write brief comments on literary or informational texts.

Use text evidence to support an appropriate response.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate Connect the Academic Vocabulary back to the Weekly Question and unit theme.

- The information I read tells what people like about spring.
- I expect to read more about the different seasons.

Write to Sources

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Explain to students that they can compare texts by writing about how the topics are alike and different. When students compare and contrast texts in this way, they should

- remember that the topic of an informational text has to do with the text's main idea.
- know that the topic of a persuasive text has to do with the author's opinion.
- use writing as a way to express how the topics of two texts compare.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Model comparing In Spring to last week's text, Seasons Around the World using the prompt on p. 122 in the Student Interactive. Both In Spring and Seasons Around the World tell about seasons. In Spring states the author's opinion about why one season is the best. Seasons Around the World tells what different seasons are like without expressing an opinion.

ELL Targeted Support Informational and Persuasive Texts Students must be able to distinguish between informational and persuasive texts. To guide their understanding, provide a short example of each that students have already read.

Present this simple informational sentence to students: Winter is the cold season. Guide students to understand that this is an informational sentence that states a fact. Erase or change the word cold to best. Guide students to see how the purpose of the sentence is different. Ask: What does the word best tell us? EMERGING

Pair students to say one fact and one opinion about winter. Encourage them to tell how they know which sentence is an opinion. DEVELOPING

Have student pairs complete a Venn diagram by comparing and contrasting the informational and persuasive texts. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies for comparing and contrasting texts.

OPTION 1 Use the Shared Read Have students compare the topics of this week’s text and an informational text they have read.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Ask students to take notes comparing and contrasting two independent reading texts. Tell them to identify the genre and use evidence from both texts in their writing.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Can students make comparisons across texts?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction for comparing texts in Small Group on pp. T186–T187.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction for comparing texts in Small Group on pp. T186–T187.

WEEKLY QUESTION As students respond to the Weekly Question, have them use evidence from this week’s texts to tell what people like about the seasons. Have them discuss their responses in small groups.

Reflect and Share

Write to Sources
You have read informational texts and a persuasive text about the seasons. On a separate sheet of paper, tell how the topics of these texts are similar and different.

When comparing and contrasting two texts, it is important to:

- Use text evidence from both texts.
- Explain how the text evidence shows ways in which the texts are alike and different.

COMPARE TEXTS

Teaching Point When readers read two or more texts, they can take notes and write comments to compare and contrast them.

Remind students of one of the informational texts they have read in this unit. Have them consider how that text is like In Spring and how it is different. Then ask them to think about how they would write about the comparison. Ask volunteers to give a beginning sentence. Then ask another volunteer to give a second sentence, and so on.

ELL Targeted Support

Students need to be able to use text to support comparisons across texts.

Discuss with students what each text is about. Then ask them to find one piece of evidence that shows how the texts are similar. The evidence can be a picture or words from the text.

EMERGING

Ask students to find one piece of evidence that tells the main idea of the informational text, and one piece that tells the author's opinion in In Spring. Remind them that supporting text evidence can be pictures as well as words.

DEVELOPING

Have students work in pairs to find all the pieces of text evidence that show how the two texts are similar. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

myFOCUS READER

Reread the text on pp. 58–59 in the myFocus Reader with students. Use the teaching support online at SavvasRealize.com to engage students in a conversation that demonstrates how comparing texts they have read this week helps them support opinions about seasons. Encourage students to use the Academic Vocabulary words.

WEEKLY LAUNCH: POEM Read Together

Season to Season
In springtime, I smell the sweet air.
In summer, I feel the sun's glare.
In autumn, I hear the crisp leaves blow.
In winter, I see the falling snow.

Weekly Question
How do we know when the seasons are changing?

MY TURN Interacting with a text means you read and respond to it in a way that helps you understand it. Interact with this poem by writing about a season using one of the five senses.

Possible response: In springtime, I see pretty flowers.

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Recognize the change in spoken word when a specified phoneme is added, changed, or removed.

Demonstrate and apply phonetic knowledge.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

Sound-Spelling Cards 79, 83

FOUNDATIONAL SKILLS EXTENSION

See p. T216 for a long i extension activity that can be used as the text is read.

Phonological Awareness: Remove Phonemes

SEE AND SAY Point to the picture of the pants on p. 132 in the Student Interactive. Say: This is a picture of pants. Listen carefully to each sound in the word pants: /p/ (pause) /a/ (pause) /n/ (pause) /t/ (pause) /s/. We can remove, or take away, the beginning sound /p/ to make a new word. Listen to the sounds again: /a/ /n/ /t/ /s/. What new word did we make? Yes, the word ants. Repeat with the pictures for ball (all) and cup (up).

PRACTICE Tell students to listen to the word pairs you say. Ask them to tell the sound that was removed, or taken away. Use these word pairs: hold/old, chair/air, land/and, nice/ice, pinch/inch.

Phonics: Decode Words with Long i, Long o

Minilesson

FOCUS Use Sound-Spelling Cards 79 (child) and 83 (gold) to introduce long i spelled i and long o spelled o. Say: *When the letter i is followed by the consonant blend ld or nd, the vowel i is often the long i sound. When the letter o is followed by the consonant blend ld or st, the vowel o is often the long o sound.*

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write and read the word kind, emphasizing the vowel sound. Say: *When I see the pattern _ind, I will use the sound /i/. This word is kind.* Repeat with long i pattern _ild and the long o patterns _ost and _old. Then write the words find, mild, most, and hold for students to decode.

APPLY My TURN Direct students to the bottom of p. 132 in the Student Interactive to practice blending and decoding the words with long i and long o.

ELL Targeted Support Long Vowel Spelling Patterns The long vowel spelling patterns _ild, _ind, _ost, and _old may be confusing to students because words with one vowel tend to have the short vowel sound. Give each student Letter Tiles to make the patterns _ild, _ind, _ost, and _old.

Tell students which letter to add to each pattern to make the words wild, find, most, and fold. Read the words with students, emphasizing the vowel sound. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Say these words one at a time: mild, blind, host, sold. Have students make the words with Letter Tiles and point to the letters that help them know the vowel sound is long. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS

Write the high-frequency words move, only, learn, eight, house. Display the words. Tell students to practice these words.

- Point to each word as you read it.
- Then spell the word and read it again.
- Have students spell and say the words with you.
- Tell students to write the words in a notebook.

Remove Sounds

SEE and SAY Name the pictures. Remove, or take away, the first sound in each picture name. Then say the new words.

Students should say pants, ball, cup. Then they should say ants, all, up.

Long i, Long o

Words that end in i plus the consonant blend ld or nd often have the long i sound, as in mild or mind. Words that end in o plus the consonant blend ld or st often have the long o sound, as in hold or host.

MY TURN Read these words.

Interact with Sources

OBJECTIVES

Interact with sources in meaningful ways such as illustrating or writing.

Identify characteristics of the seasons of the year and day and night.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Language of Ideas Academic language helps students access ideas. After you discuss the poem, ask: How does the poem use the senses to tell about seasons? What is the information the poem tells about leaves in autumn?

- information
- expect
- sense
- process

Make the point that these words will be important as students read and write about the Essential Question.

Songs and Poems Big Book
See the Songs and Poems Big Book for selections that relate to the unit's theme.

Explore the Poem

Direct students' attention to the poem on pp. 130–131 in the Student Interactive. Explain that a poem is a text that has a least one stanza, or set of lines. Tell students that authors often write about the senses in poems, which helps the reader connect to and enjoy the text. Write the five senses on a display surface, using the language of the poem: smell, feel, hear, see. Then add touch to the list. Ask students to read the poem and discuss the things people smell, feel, hear, and see during each season.

Display the following statements and questions as ideas the group might discuss:

- What else can you smell in springtime?
- What else can you feel in summer?
- What else can you hear in autumn?
- What else can you see in winter?

My TURN Tell students that when they interact with a text, they read it and respond to it in a meaningful way that helps them better understand it. One way to interact with a text is to write about it. Say: You can interact with this poem now that you have discussed it with your group. Circle each word that names one of the five senses. Write about your experiences with one of your senses during a particular season.

WEEKLY QUESTION Remind students of the Weekly Question: How do we know when the seasons are changing? Explain that the senses help us tell when seasons are changing. Point out that students will learn more about autumn this week.

ELL Targeted Support Learn a New Expression Read aloud the poem as students listen. Point out and discuss the expression crisp leaves.

To help students learn the new expression, explain what the word crisp means. Then ask: What is this word in your native language? How do we say that in English?

EMERGING

Help students use the following sentence frames to learn the new expression: Crisp means _____. Leaves are crisp during the season of _____. DEVELOPING

Have student pairs use the expression in their own sentences that show meaning.

EXPANDING

Tell student pairs to work together to learn the new expression by creating a drawing or concept map that supports its meaning. BRIDGING

Weekly Question

WEEK 4

Season to Season

In springtime, I smell the sweet air.

In summer, I feel the sun's glare.

In autumn, I hear the crisp leaves blow.

In winter, I see the falling snow.

How do we know when the seasons are changing?

MY TURN Interacting with a text means you read and respond to it in a way that helps you understand it. Interact with this poem by writing about a season using one of the five senses.

Possible response: In springtime, I see pretty flowers.

Listening Comprehension

OBJECTIVES

Listen actively, ask relevant questions to clarify information, and answer questions using multi-word responses.

Use appropriate fluency (rate, accuracy, and prosody) when reading grade-level text.

Recognize and analyze literary elements within and across increasingly complex traditional, contemporary, classical, and diverse literary texts.

FLUENCY

After completing the Read-Aloud routine, display “Winter Food.” Model reading several paragraphs of the text, asking students to pay attention to the way you read. Explain that in fiction, some text may be dialogue between characters. Reading aloud with expression and phrasing makes the characters come to life. Tell students that this week, they will read more fiction texts. Point out that when it is time to read aloud, students should practice reading with appropriate expression and phrasing.

THINK ALOUD

Analyze Fiction After you reread the first six paragraphs say: I understand that animals are speaking and thinking like people do. I know this can not happen in real life, and I can see that this is the beginning of a story, so I think this is fiction.

Read Aloud

Tell students you are going to read aloud a fiction text. Have them listen as you read “Winter Food.” Encourage students to be active listeners by looking at you and thinking about what you are reading.

START-UP

READ-ALOUD ROUTINE

Purpose Have students listen actively for elements of fiction that they can use to make predictions.

READ the entire text aloud, without stopping for the Think Aloud callouts.

REREAD the text aloud, pausing to model Think Aloud strategies related to the genre.

Winter Food

Squirrel was scurrying so fast that she bumped right into Wren.

“What are you doing there, Squirrel?” asked Wren.

“Mmmmfph mmph mrph,” mumbled Squirrel.

Wren looked confused, but he could see that something was in Squirrel’s mouth. It was full!

Squirrel held up one paw and then hurried off up her tree. She was back just a few minutes later, panting.

“Sorry, Wren!” she exclaimed. “I didn’t mean to be so rude. I’ve been helping my family gather as many acorns as we can find. Auntie heard it’s going to be a long, cold winter!”

“Aaaahh,” said Wren. “But why don’t you just go south with me? It’s nice and cozy warm there!”

“You’re lucky you have wings. We squirrels could never travel that far. And we have all our food here. We save it up all fall, and when it gets too cold, we stay in our snug den and sleep.”

Wren looked up to the darkening sky. “My family will have to leave soon. But I will be back when the weather warms up again.”

“Safe travels,” said Squirrel. “Stay warm!”

“You too!” called Wren as she flew away.

THINK ALOUD

Analyze Fiction After you reread the paragraphs on this page, say: I understand that this text is a story with a beginning, middle, and end. I also know that there is a setting, the time and place when and where story events happen. These help me know that this is fiction.

ELL Targeted Support Use Background Knowledge Some students may not have experienced cold winters in the past. Call on their background knowledge to help them connect to the story.

Ask students to tell or draw where they store food in their homes. Display a picture of a squirrel in winter. Tell students that squirrels store nuts in fall to eat in winter. Have students draw pictures of where they think squirrels might store their food. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have small groups discuss where they store food in their homes. Then show students pictures of a winter landscape, and ask them to come up with reasons how and why some animals like squirrels store food.

Guide students to provide details for each column of the graphic organizer. When the graphic organizer is complete, point out that this is a fiction text; it has a beginning, middle, and end.

Fiction

LEARNING GOAL

I can read about the seasons.

OBJECTIVE

Recognize and analyze literary elements within and across increasingly complex traditional, contemporary, classical, and diverse literary texts.

LANGUAGE OF THE GENRE

As you review the anchor chart, check to make certain students understand the words that help them talk about fiction.

- characters
- setting
- plot
- theme

FLEXIBLE OPTION ANCHOR CHARTS

To make your own anchor chart to go with this lesson, begin with the genre, fiction.

- Ask students to discuss the ways they can tell a text is fiction.
- Have students identify characters.
- Tell students to identify the time and place of story events.
- Ask students to explain whether the text has a clear beginning, middle, and end.

ELL Language Transfer

Cognates Point out Spanish cognates related to fiction.

- fiction : ficción
- event : evento

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES A fiction text is a made-up story with a beginning, middle, and an end. A fiction text has characters who are not real people. The things the characters do are the plot of the story. The setting is the time and place of the story. The characters, plot, and setting all connect to the story's theme, or big idea.

- Are the characters in the text real people?
- Does the text tell a story with a beginning, middle, and end?
- Do the characters, setting, and plot connect to one big idea (the theme)?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Model determining whether a text is fiction by reviewing the Read Aloud, “Winter Food.” I want to figure out if this text is fiction. First, I’ll check to see if there are characters who are not real people. Read aloud the first three paragraphs. Yes, the text does have characters who are not real people. They are talking animals, so I know this is a made-up story. Complete the reading of the story. This text has a beginning, middle, and an end. Everything that happens in the text is about a big idea: Animals talk about how they prepare for the winter season. I can tell this is a fiction text.

Review the model fiction text and the anchor chart on pp. 142–143 in the Student Interactive.

ELL Targeted Support Identifying Genre Have students reference the anchor chart and “A Fall Day” from pp. 142–143 in the Student Interactive to explain how they can tell whether the text is fiction.

Ask students the following questions, one at a time: Who is the character? What is the setting? What happens in the beginning? What happens in the middle? What happens at the end? Permit students to point to the text to indicate their responses. After each correct response, have students echo-read each sentence of the corresponding part of the text with you. After students have responded to all of the preceding questions, ask: Is this a fiction text? (yes) EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Ask student pairs to discuss how they can figure out the genre of “A Fall Day.” EXPANDING/BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies to identify fiction.

OPTION 1 TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have students work with a partner to complete the Turn and Talk activity on p. 142 in the Student Interactive. As students work to contrast fiction and informational text, circulate to be certain they are identifying elements of each kind of text in their discussions.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Have students use a Venn diagram to compare and contrast a fiction text they have read with their independent reading texts.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Can students identify fiction?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction about fiction in Small Group on pp. T204–T205.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction about fiction in Small Group on pp. T204–T205.

Academic Vocabulary

LEARNING GOAL

I can make and use words to connect reading and writing.

OBJECTIVE

Respond using newly acquired vocabulary as appropriate.

ELL Access

Speakers of monosyllabic languages, such as Cantonese, Hmong, Khmer, Korean, and Vietnamese, may have difficulty understanding that multisyllabic words are single words. Have students read a short paragraph and circle words with prefixes and suffixes. Help students practice saying and writing the words with prefixes and suffixes as single words.

Word Parts

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Remind students of the Academic Vocabulary for the unit: information, sense, expect, and process. Tell students that word parts change the meaning of a word in different ways.

- Look for the base word and the word part. When a word part is added, the word has a new meaning.
- If a word has the word part un- at the beginning, then the word means “not ____.”
- If a word has the word part -ible at the end, then the word means “able to be ____,” or “able to have ____.”

MODEL AND PRACTICE Model an example by writing the word unhappy on the board. Say: I see the word happy and the word part un-, which means “not.” Unhappy means “not happy.” That is the same as sad. Point out that the word part un- changes the word expected in a similar way. Repeat the process for the word sensible and the word part -ible.

Handwriting

OBJECTIVE

Develop handwriting by printing words, sentences, and answers legibly leaving appropriate spaces between words.

Write Answers

FOCUS Display these sentences: What kind of bird is it? The bird is a wren.

MODEL Model writing the second sentence, using appropriate spacing between words. Point out that the space between words is greater than the space between letters within each word.

Have students write the sentence on their own papers, making certain to leave appropriate spaces between words.

Guided Reading Instruction Prompts

To support the instruction in this week's minilessons, use these prompts.

Identify Fiction

- Does the text tell a story with a beginning, middle, and an end?
- Are there characters who speak and do things as part of a plot?
- Can you tell where and when the story takes place?

Develop Vocabulary

- Are there any photographs or illustrations that help you understand what a word means?
- What does the word ____ tell us about the big idea, or theme, of the text?
- Why did the author use this particular word to tell about this character?

Identify Theme

- Does the title of the book give you clues about the theme of the text?
- What message do you think the author wants to share?

IDENTIFY FICTION

Teaching Point Fiction texts have characters that are not real, and events that happen in a setting that is not real. Everything in a fiction text is connected to the big idea, or theme, of the text. Use a short fiction text to discuss the characteristics of the fiction genre. Use a graphic organizer to record students' responses.

ELL Targeted Support

Review the content area vocabulary necessary to speak about the fiction genre, such as: character, setting, event, real, theme.

Ask the following yes/no questions about fiction:

Does fiction have characters? (yes) Is fiction about real events that really happen? (no) Does fiction tell facts? (no) Does fiction have a theme, or big idea? (yes) Then have students use content area vocabulary in one sentence about fiction. EMERGING

Have partners talk about the fiction genre using the content area vocabulary. Monitor the discussion to check that students are describing the genre correctly. DEVELOPING

Have students take turns describing one characteristic of the fiction genre using the content area vocabulary. Use questions to guide students in using the words while speaking. EXPANDING

Have partners discuss the fiction genre. Ask them to use content area vocabulary and examples to help explain the characteristics. Students can create their own examples or use examples from texts they have heard or read. BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

LEVEL B • READ

Lesson 39 Genre: Fiction

DIRECTIONS Follow along as your teacher reads aloud "The Green Kite" and "The Stubborn Horse." Look at the pictures.

The Green Kite

It was summer. Tom was at the park with his pal Max. Tom had a new green kite.

"We can have fun with my kite," Tom said. Tom got the kite up. It was fun to fly his kite. He could see his kite up in the sky.

"Now you try, Max," said Tom. He gave the kite to Max. Max got the kite up, but then he let go of the string. The kite went up, up, up. Soon it was a dot of green. The kite went way up over the park.

"How can we find my kite?" said Tom. He was sad.

"Let me take a look under this bush," said Max. He had a look.

"Do you see the kite?" Tom said. Max did find a bug, but he did not find the kite.

Max said, "We can take a look over at the lake." They did find a duck, but they did not find the kite.

Then Tom saw a boy on a bike. The boy had a green kite. "Is this your kite?" said the boy. "It was in a tree over there in the park."

"Yes!" said Tom. "That kite is mine. Thank you!"

IDENTIFY FICTION

Talk About Independent Reading Ask students to discuss the Venn diagrams they made to compare and contrast their texts to a fiction text.

Possible Conference Prompts

- How are the texts alike? How are they different?
- Can you identify the characters, setting, plot, and theme of a fiction text?

Possible Teaching Point To help determine the theme of a text, readers can ask themselves “What does the author want us to learn from this text? How can we use that idea in our own lives?”

Leveled Readers

IDENTIFY FICTION

Phonics, p. 279

Phonics: Decode and Write Words with Long i, Long o

Minilesson

FOCUS Explain that when the letter i is followed by ld or nd, the vowel sound is long. When the letter o is followed by st or ld, the vowel sound is long. Say: When you see the letters _ild or _ind, the vowel sound is /ī/. When you see the letters _ost or _old, the vowel sound is /ō/.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the following words on the board: mild, mind, post, told. Point to the word mild. Have students read it. Ask: *What letters come after the i in mild that help you know the i should have the long sound, /ī/? (ld)* Repeat for the words mind, post, and told. Continue with the words child, find, most, and hold.

Create a four-column chart with the headings _old, _ost, _ild, and _ind. Ask students to take turns adding a word to the chart in any column. If necessary, prompt students with clues about words, such as this is a word for a young kid (child), this is another word for nice (kind), this word is the opposite of hot (cold), this is a word for almost all of something (most). Then read the completed columns with students. Ask them to name the vowel sound for the words in each column.

- Introduce the vocabulary terms crisp, chilly, and breeze from p. 144 in the Student Interactive.
- Have students show or tell what they know about each word. Ask: How do you feel when it's chilly outside? What does crisp air feel like? What does a breeze sound and feel like?
- Provide definitions as needed. Definitions appear on the selection pages that follow. Say: These words will help you understand what is happening in the fiction text, My Autumn Book.

Read

Discuss the First Read Strategies with students. Prompt students to establish the point that the purpose for reading this selection is understanding and enjoyment.

FIRST READ STRATEGIES

THINK Tell students to think about the characteristics of fiction. Have them use those characteristics to make a prediction about the text.

READ Have students read to learn more about the theme of the story.

ASK Tell students to ask themselves what ideas in the text are the most important.

TALK Direct students to talk about what in the text they found interesting.

Students may read the text independently, in pairs, or as a whole class. Use the First Read notes to help students connect with the text and guide their understanding.

EXPERT'S VIEW Pamela Mason, Harvard University

“We assume that kids know when to use reading strategies because as skilled readers, we don't necessarily think about applying a specific skill or strategy to a specific text until we are immersed in reading the text. Strategies do need to be taught, but we also need to help students bring what they know to the text to help them access the text.”

See SavvasRealize.com for more professional development on research-based best practices.

ELL Targeted Support Use Accessible Language Help students use words they already know to learn new and essential language. Display the words crisp, chilly, and breeze.

Discuss the meaning of each word. Ask students to share words in their home language that relate to the vocabulary words. Then guide them to say the words in English.

EMERGING

Prompt students with questions to help them use words they already know to figure out the meanings of the vocabulary words. DEVELOPING

Have partners discuss the meanings of the vocabulary words by using words they already know. EXPANDING

Ask students to create a word web for each vocabulary word. They can draw or write in the outer circles, and then share their web with the group. BRIDGING

Think

THINK ALOUD I know we are reading a fiction book. I know about that kind of text. It is a made-up story. The picture on the cover and the title are clues that can help me predict what the story will be about. I predict it will be about a girl who reads a book about autumn.

CROSS-CURRICULAR PERSPECTIVES

Science

The character in the story sees a spider building a web. It is common to see some types of spiders in early autumn. These types of spiders have particular life cycles. The spiders hatch from their eggs in spring. They eat and grow larger in early summer. They build larger webs in late summer and early autumn. The new eggs will hatch the following spring. The life cycle begins again.

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, pp. 146–147

The air is crisp.
The sky turns gray.
Is autumn really on the way?
Downstairs I rush.
I can hardly wait,
To go outside and investigate.

Possible Teaching Point

Read Like a Writer | Word Choice

Use the lesson on p. T228 in the Reading-Writing Workshop Bridge to teach students how authors use sensory words. Point out that authors often use words that appeal to readers' senses and help them create mental images to deepen their understanding. Assist students with creating mental images by having them identify phrases in the text that are sensory words, and name the senses they appeal to. (touch: crisp air; sight: gray sky, silken thread; hearing: crickets chirruping)

Determine Theme

Remind students that the topic is what the text is about. Authors use details to describe and tell about the topic. Then say: The topic and most important details are also part of a big idea or theme. We can tell that the big idea in this text has something to do with the girl and autumn coming. Have students read the Close Read note and complete the underlining activity. DOK 2

Talk

THINK ALOUD The author uses words that make the trees seem as though they are dressed up in colorful clothes. The dogwood wears a crimson gown. The oak tree wears a brown suit. The aspen wears a gold crown. These are strong descriptions that help me imagine the beauty of the trees. What an interesting way to describe trees! Talk to a partner about something that you found interesting in the story.

Possible Teaching Point

Read Like a Writer | Word Choice

Have students echo-read p. 153 with you. Point out the words sway, swirling, twirling, and whirlwind. Ask: What are these words talking about? (moving) Why do you think the author used those words instead of the word moving? Have students pantomime moving, then twirling to show the difference. Guide students to recognize that authors often use strong, descriptive words to paint word pictures for readers and to make a text more interesting.

Use text evidence to support an appropriate response.

Interact with sources in meaningful ways such as illustrating or writing.

Respond using newly acquired vocabulary as appropriate.

My View

Use these suggestions to prompt students' initial responses to reading My Autumn Book.

- Discuss How do you think the child felt when winter was coming? Do you think the child will make a winter book?
- Brainstorm What would you put in your own autumn book?

Develop Vocabulary

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Remind students of the new words in My Autumn Book: crisp, chilly, breeze. Tell students that they can use what they already know and other words in a sentence to help them understand new words.

- Look at other words in the sentence to help you figure out a word's meaning.
- Think about similar words you already know that can help you figure out a word's meaning.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Model completing the first sentence on p. 160 in the Student Interactive. The first sentence says: The air feels ____. I know that breeze is a thing. It is not a way that something feels. The other two words are crisp and chilly. I know that air can feel crisp or chilly. The story told about air feeling crisp, so I will choose crisp to complete the sentence. Then I'll read the sentence: The air feels crisp. This makes sense.

ELL Targeted Support Develop Vocabulary Show how students can use contextual support to help them understand and use new words.

Read the vocabulary words and have students echo. Then work with students to complete sentence frames, such as I put on a sweater because it was ____. (chilly) EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have student pairs read each vocabulary word. Then ask them to write a new sentence for one or more of the vocabulary words, leaving a blank where the vocabulary word should go. Students should exchange and try to complete each other's sentences. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

Intervention Activity

LONG VOWEL PATTERNS

Use Lesson 21 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on long vowel patterns.

LEVEL B • MODEL AND TEACH

Lesson 21 Long Vowel Patterns

INTRODUCE Remind students that long vowel sounds sound like the letter name. Remind students they have learned to recognize and say words with long vowel sounds in words with a silent final e. Today we will learn to recognize words with these long vowel sounds—/ī/, /ō/, and /ī/—that are spelled differently.

MODEL Display Student Page S127. Read aloud the first two sentences in the passage. Point to the word She, read it aloud, and have students repeat after you. Point to the letter e. She is a word with a long e sound that is spelled differently from the word Pete.

OBJECTIVES:

- Learn sound-letter correspondences besides the silent e rule for long e (e and y), long i (i, y, and igh), and long o (o).
- Use knowledge of these correspondences to decode long vowel words in isolation and in context.
- Apply knowledge of these correspondences to spell long vowel words properly.

Hi!

She is a young girl.
Pete is a cold boy.
The young girl says hi to the cold boy.
The boy is too cold to say hi back!

e	o	i
she	cold	hi

TEACH Direct students' attention to the chart and run your finger under relevant letters and words as you read it aloud. Draw out and blend the sounds. Say the long e sound with me: /ē/. Say the word with me: /Shē/. /ē/. Point to the drawing of snowflakes falling. Is it warm outside? No! It is cold. /ō/. /ō/. Cold uses a long o sound, but it is spelled differently from bone. Say the long o sound with me: /ō/. Now say the word with me: /kōld/. /ō/. Point to the word hi in the last column. Hi uses a long i sound, but it is spelled differently from kite. Say the long i sound with me: /ī/. Now say the word with me: /hī/. /ī/.

DEVELOP VOCABULARY

Teaching Point Readers can find other words in the text to use as clues to help them understand unknown words. Direct students' attention to the second sentence on p. 149 of My Autumn Book in the Student Interactive. Have students choral read the sentences with you. Then do a think-aloud showing how to use text clues to understand new words. I'm not sure what bury means. I can use nearby words to help me figure out the meaning. The sentence has the words hole and treasure. I know that people sometimes dig a hole to hide treasure, so bury must have to do with hiding something under ground. I think that the word bury means "to hide under ground."

ELL Targeted Support

Display the words chilly and breeze.

Tell students you will act out each word and they must guess which word you are showing. Mime each word and have students identify that word orally. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students work in small groups. Tell each group to choose one vocabulary word. Have each group mime that word for the class and see if they can guess which word it is.

DEVELOP VOCABULARY

Talk About Independent Reading Ask students to share the strategies they used to figure out the meanings of unfamiliar words in their text.

Possible Conference Prompts

- Which words were new to you?
- What did they describe?
- How did you figure out what the words mean?

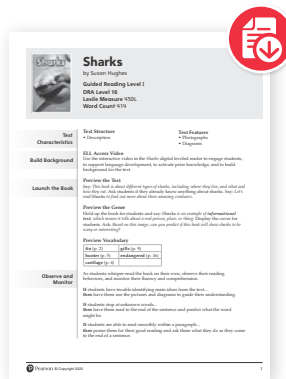

Possible Teaching Point Authors choose strong words to help readers visualize. For example, instead of writing the word said, an author might choose yelled, whispered, or screamed to help the reader imagine the story better.

Determine Theme

OBJECTIVE

Discuss topics and determine theme using text evidence with adult assistance.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate As you discuss theme, model using the Academic Vocabulary words:

- What information can you use to figure out a story's theme?
- As you read a fiction text, think about what the details lead you to expect.

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES In fiction, the theme is the big idea, or central message, of the text. Readers can use text evidence and their own experiences to determine the theme of the text.

- Look for important details as you read the text.
- Figure out how these important details connect to one another.
- Think about the big idea that these connections support.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Use “Winter Food” on pp. T196–T197 to model identifying theme. *When I read “Winter Food,” I paid attention to important details. One important detail explained that squirrels were preparing for winter by gathering nuts. It reminded me of a time my family prepared for a storm. I can use text evidence and my experience to determine that the theme is Preparing now can make things easier later.* Have students go back to the Close Read notes on pp. 147 and 157, and assist them with underlining the words that helped them determine the topic and theme.

ELL Targeted Support Identify Important Details Use “Winter Food” to show students how to identify important details in a text.

Provide simple yes/no questions to guide students in identifying important details. Are details about birds flying away important? (yes) Are details about squirrels being rude important? (no) EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have pairs list important details from the Read Aloud. Tell them to come up with a theme that is supported by the details. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

EXPERT'S VIEW Lee Wright, Teacher Specialist, Houston, TX

“Small group instruction has many advantages. One advantage is that it is much easier to differentiate instruction for each learner within a small group setting than it is within whole group. Differentiating instruction is a highly effective way to both better engage students in the content and to target their individual needs. Through small group instruction you can strategically differentiate the questions you ask, the activities you assign, and the feedback you provide.”

Read Like a Writer, Write for a Reader

OBJECTIVES

Discuss how the author uses words that help the reader visualize.

Identify words and phrases that suggest feelings or appeal to the senses.

ELL Access

Visualize Explain that the five senses are touch, smell, taste, sound, and sight. Have students look through My Autumn Book to find words that tell how something feels, smells, tastes, sounds, or looks. Record the words in a five-column chart. Discuss how each column of words helps them visualize, or see, what is happening in the story.

Word Choice

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Explain that writers often use words that help readers “see” story events in their minds. The words help readers visualize, or imagine, what the writers describe. Writers often use words that tell how things look, feel, smell, taste, or sound. These words appeal to the senses.

- As you visualize, imagine feelings and experiences.
- Look for words that tell how things feel, smell, taste, sound, and look. Use the words to imagine what something is like.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Read aloud the example at the top of p. 166 of the Student Interactive. The writer could have written these sentences: There is a noise. I hear it. But those sentences do not help readers imagine what is happening. So, the writer writes: The buzzing gets louder. It fills the air. These sentences have words that help readers visualize the events.

Handwriting

OBJECTIVE

Develop handwriting by printing words, sentences, and answers legibly leaving appropriate spaces between words.

Write Answers

FOCUS Display these sentences: What season is it? The season is autumn.

MODEL Model writing the second sentence, using appropriate spacing between words. Remind students that the space between words in a sentence is greater than the space between letters within each word. Explain that if the space between words is too great or too small, it is hard to tell where one word ends and the next begins.

Have students write the sentence on their own paper, making certain to leave appropriate spaces between words.

AUTHOR'S CRAFT

Read Like a Writer, Write for a Reader

Authors choose words that make readers use their senses. The words help readers visualize, or imagine, how things feel, sound, taste, smell, and look.

The buzzing gets louder.
It fills the air.

The author uses these words to help readers imagine what the buzzing sounds like.

TURN and TALK Talk about other words the author uses in the text to help readers visualize.

MYTURN Write sentences about the weather. The words should help you use your senses. Possible response:

The leaves crunch
when I step on them.
The colors are bright.

DETERMINE THEME

Teaching Point Fiction texts can have a theme, which is the big idea of the story. Writers use important details about the setting, characters, and plot to show the theme. Connecting important details is one way readers can understand the big idea and figure out the theme. Revisit My Autumn Book on p. 158 in the Student Interactive. Have students connect details on that page to arrive at the theme “seasons change.”

ELL Targeted Support

Help students understand the difference between the topic and theme of a fiction text. Refer to “Winter Food” on pp. T196–T197.

Read the title of the Read Aloud to students. Tell them that the title usually tells the topic of a story. (winter food) Reread the story and ask students what theme, or big idea, the story is telling. (It’s good to be prepared.) Explain that the theme is the message of the text.

EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Ask students to identify the topic of the Read Aloud. Direct their attention to the title if necessary. Then ask students what message the story is telling. Write the theme for “Winter Food” on the board. (It’s good to be prepared.) Have students work together to determine the themes of other fiction texts they’ve read. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

STORY ELEMENTS

Use Lesson 45 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher’s Guide for instruction on story elements.

LEVEL B • PRACTICE AND ASSESS

Lesson 45 Story Elements

PRACTICE 2: Use Key Details to Describe Characters, Settings, Major Events, and Theme Tell students that they can use important details in a story to help them understand more about the characters, setting, major events, and theme. Display or distribute Student Page S261 and read the top excerpt aloud.

Benny stopped. He sniffed the air. He smelled something. Now Jack barked. It was a warning. “Look out for the bear!” it said. A bear! Benny didn’t wait. He ran as fast as he could. So did Jack. They ran up a hill and past a big rock. At first they could hear the bear running, too. But the bear could not catch up to them.

REMINDE STUDENTS THAT...

- a story contains characters, settings, major events, and a theme.
- authors use names to identify characters.
- authors use descriptive words to depict settings and major events.
- authors show theme through characters’ words and actions.
- they can write brief responses to understand a text.

Tell students that this passage gives some key details about the story’s characters. You already know that Benny and Jack are dogs, and Benny is big and that Jack is little. Now you can tell some more things about them. Benny smells the air to learn about the world around him. Jack barks to warn Benny about a bear. What else can you learn about the dogs? Have students look at the third paragraph of the above excerpt. Guide students to recognize that these details suggest the dogs are fast runners and that the dogs help each other.

Repeat with the setting and the major event of the dogs encountering a bear. Invite students to write a brief response about how Benny and Jack likely felt during this event.

✓ MONITOR PROGRESS Have students read the bottom excerpt on Student Page S261. Ask students what they learn about the setting from this text.

“The river!” Together they ran down the path. There were ducks. There were fish.

IF... students cannot identify details about the setting.
THEN... ask students to draw a picture of the setting, emphasizing the animals described, and point out that students can use these details to help them understand the setting.

DETERMINE THEME

Talk About Independent Reading Ask students to discuss how they used important details in their independent reading text to determine the theme.

Possible Conference Prompts

- Which details in the story seemed most important to you?
- What big idea did those details support?
- What do you think is the theme of the story?

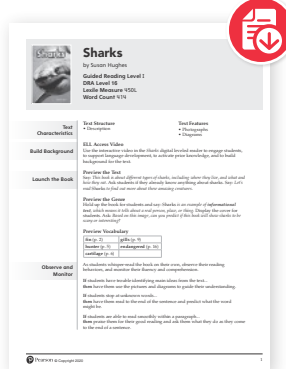

Possible Teaching Point A fiction author uses strong words to help readers understand the details and big idea of the story.

Independent/Collaborative

Independent Reading

Students can

- reread or listen to My Autumn Book.
- read or listen to fiction in a previously read reader that has a clear, strong theme.
- continue reading the Book Club text.

Literacy Activities

Students can

- work in pairs to complete the activity on p. 162 in the Student Interactive.
- play the myView games.
- work in small groups to find important details in a text and explain how those important details support the theme of a text.

SUPPORT INDEPENDENT READING

One way to support independent reading is to have students set goals for their reading. Help students set a purpose and a plan for reading. Tell them they should track progress toward their goals.

See the Small Group Guide for additional support and resources to target your students’ specific instructional needs.

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Demonstrate and apply phonetic knowledge.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

ADDITIONAL PRACTICE

For additional student practice with suffixes -ly and -ful, use Phonics p. 280 from the Resource Download Center.

Phonics, p. 280

Phonics: Decode and Write Words with Suffixes -ly, -ful

Minilesson

FOCUS Tell students that suffixes are word parts added to base words to make new words with new meanings. Then review the meanings of the suffixes -ly, “in a ___ way,” and -ful, “full of.”

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the word quickly on the board: Say: I finished my chores quickly. Have students repeat the sentence with you as you underline the suffix -ly. Ask: What is the base word in the word quickly? Yes, the base word is quick. What suffix is added to the base word quick? Yes, the suffix -ly is added to quick. What does the word quickly mean? (in a quick way) Write the word hopeful on the board: Say: I am hopeful that I will get a good grade. Have students repeat the sentence with you as you underline the suffix -ful. Ask: What is the base word in the word hopeful? Yes, the base word is hope. What suffix is added to the base word hope? Yes, the suffix -ful is added to hope. What does the word hopeful mean? (full of hope) Repeat with the words gladly, sadly, helpful, and cheerful.

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have partners read the words at the top of p. 137 in the Student Interactive.

ELL Targeted Support Suffixes -ly, -ful Help students understand how suffixes add meaning to base words.

Say: If I am full of cheer, I am ___. Help students finish the sentence. Write cheer and cheerful. Have students say them with you. Continue with help/helpful, thanks/thankful. Then say: If I do something in a slow way, I do it ___. Help students finish the sentence. Write the words slow and slowly. Have students say them with you. Continue with safe/safely, quiet/quietly.

EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Write and read the words loud, slow, grace, and play. Add the suffixes -ly and -ful one at a time to each word. Discuss which suffix makes sense for each base word. Use the phrases tell what it is like and tell how it is done to help students decide on the correct suffix and what the new words mean.

Find Important Details

OBJECTIVES

Evaluate details to determine what is most important with adult assistance.

Discuss topics and determine theme using text evidence with adult assistance.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate Provide oral practice with unit Academic Vocabulary words as students discuss important details that can be used to determine theme.

- Once I figure out important details, I can expect them to lead me to the theme.
- Using important details to determine theme is a process that will make my understanding stronger.

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Readers can use the important details in a fiction text to help them determine the theme.

- Ask yourself whether a detail is important. Does the story need this detail to make sense?
- Try to find the big idea that connects the important details. This will be the story's theme.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Read aloud the first line on p. 148 of My Autumn Book in the Student Interactive as you model finding important details. I read two details here. One detail says that a chilly wind blows. The other detail tells me the girl zips her jacket. I want to figure out whether these details are important. Does it matter that a chilly wind blows? Yes. This detail helps the story make sense. Does it matter that the girl zips her jacket? She zips her jacket because of the chilly wind, so this detail is not as important as the other one. Have students go back to the Close Read notes on pp. 149, 153, and 159 and highlight the words that helped them find important details.

TURN AND TALK Have students complete the Turn and Talk activity at the bottom of p. 163 in the Student Interactive by discussing the topic and theme using text evidence. Provide assistance as needed.

ELL Targeted Support Use Graphic Organizers Give students a simple stair-step graphic organizer, with four steps, allowing space to write text on each “step.” Students can use the organizer to show important details that will lead them to the theme.

Reread the first two lines on p. 148 of My Autumn Book. Ask students which is the most important detail. Have them sketch or write about that detail on the first step. Repeat the process with other sections of the story. Once the organizer is filled, work with the group to figure out the theme from the details. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have small groups work to fill the steps with important details, and then write the theme at the top of the graphic organizer.

PREFIXES AND SUFFIXES

Use Lesson 29 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on prefixes and suffixes.

LEVEL B • PRACTICE AND ASSESS

Lesson 29 Prefixes and Suffixes

PRACTICE 2: Suffixes -er and -or Explain that a suffix is a word part found at the end of a word. Say: Since suffixes have their own meanings, they change a base word's meaning. For example, the suffixes -er and -or both mean "one who," so it turns an action word into a word that names a person. For example, the action word lead becomes leader when the suffix -er is added. Leader means "one who leads." The suffix -or works the same way. You just have to remember whether to use -er or -or.

REMINDE STUDENTS THAT...

- they know words can be made of different parts.
- they have learned one type of word part is called a suffix, which comes at the end of a word.
- they know the suffixes -er and -or both mean "one who."

Distribute Student Page S165. Read aloud the words on the word cards. Have students repeat each word after you and say its meaning.

actor	farmer	governor	player
rancher	speaker	teacher	visitor

Have students work in pairs to cut apart the word cards and sort them into two categories: suffix -er and suffix -or. Then have them shuffle the cards and turn them face down. One partner draws a card and says the word, and the other identifies which suffix the word uses.

MONITOR PROGRESS Have students look at the following short passages from Student Page S165. Read each passage aloud as students follow along. Ask them to identify the word that has a suffix and to say what the word means.

All TV shows and movies have a director. This is the person who makes sure everything is done right. (one who directs)

Dad says I am a good thinker. He feels proud when I do the right thing. It makes me happy. (one who thinks)

IF... students cannot identify a word with a suffix, THEN... focus on the word, running your hand under it as you say the word slowly in two parts. Then guide students to underline the suffix, recall its meaning, and finally define the word.

FIND IMPORTANT DETAILS

Teaching Point Readers know that as they read fiction, they can find important details that will help them figure out the theme of the text. One way to tell if a detail is important is to ask if it helps the story make sense. Refer students to pp. 154–155 of My Autumn Book in the Student Interactive. Guide them to find the two lines that contain important details. (Summer is leaving, fall's on its way. The seasons are changing.) Ask how they know these details are important.

ELL Targeted Support

Help students sort story details to identify those that are most important.

Display p. 154 of My Autumn Book. Tell students they will sort the details on that page into two groups: important and not important. After you read each line, ask: Does this detail help the story make sense? Have students circle those that do, and tell students these are the most important details. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Display p. 154 of My Autumn Book. Have students work in pairs to sort the details on that page into two lists: important and not important. Lesson 50 Identify Main Ideas and Key Details

DIRECTIONS Follow along as your teacher reads "The Truth About Koalas" aloud. Look at the subtitles in bold and view the picture.

The Truth About Koalas

What Do Koalas Look Like?
Some people think koalas are bears, but this is not true! Koalas are from the same family as the wombat. They look a lot like wombats. Koalas can be brown or grey. They have large black noses and thick fur. They have claws for climbing trees.

What Makes Koalas So Special?
A koala is a marsupial. A marsupial is an animal with a pouch. Koala mothers have a pouch to carry their young. The pouch keeps the growing koala warm and safe. A baby koala is called a joey.
When a joey is born, it is tiny. It can't see. It has no fur. It is about the size of a jellybean! The joey crawls into its mother's pouch to stay safe. It stays in the pouch for the next six months.

PRACTICE Have students manipulate the first and last phonemes in each word to say a new word: tame /t/ /ā/ /m/ to mate /m/ /ā/ /t/; tub /t/ /u/ /b/ to but /b/ /u/ /t/; pat /p/ /a/ /t/ to tap /t/ /a/ /p/.

Minilesson

FOCUS Review the spellings of the sound /ü/ spelled ue, ew, and ui. Then review the prefixes re- and un- and their meanings. Tell students that prefixes are added to base words to make new words with new meanings.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the following words on the board and read them aloud. Have students identify the words with the vowel sound /ü/ and sort them by the spelling of the vowel sound. Then have students identify and sort the words with prefixes according to the prefix.

redo	clue	chew	unlock	fruit	replay	due

ELL Targeted Support Prefixes Some English prefixes have equivalent forms in other languages. Create word cards with these prefixes and base words: un-, re-, like, heat, use, lucky, lock, read, fold. Review the meanings of the prefixes re- (“again”) and un- (“not” or “the opposite of”).

Display a prefix card and a base word card, such as re- and use. Guide students to put the parts together to read the word reuse. Discuss the meaning of the word, using the meanings of the prefix and base word. EMERGING

Have partners use the cards in different combinations to make words that have prefixes. Then have them show you a base word, add a prefix, say the new word, and tell you what the new word means.

DEVELOPING

Have students use the word cards to make new words with prefixes. Ask them to write the new words they make on a sheet of paper, underline the prefixes, and circle the base words. Then have them tell what the new words mean. If time allows, have them use some of the new words in sentences. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS

Remind students that there are some words that they will read, hear, and write over and over. Display the words move, only, learn, eight, and house. Ask partners to take turns spelling and then reading the words.

Reflect and Share

OBJECTIVES

Retell stories, including key details, and demonstrate understanding of their central message or lesson.

Identify basic similarities in and differences between two texts on the same topic (e.g., in illustrations, descriptions, or procedures).

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate Provide oral practice with the unit Academic Vocabulary words when asking students to reflect on the text and its theme. Ask:

- What information should you include as you retell the story?
- Did you expect the story events to happen the way they did?

Talk About It

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Tell students that retelling can help them better understand how one text they have read compares with another. Point out that retelling can also make the theme of a text clearer.

- Choose only the most important ideas when you retell a story.
- Start at the beginning. Then tell events that happened in the middle and at the end. Make sure to retell the events so they have the same meaning as the text.
- Think about what the theme of the text is.
- Think about how the text is like another text you read. How are the themes the same or different?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Use “Winter Food” on pp. T196–T197 to model retelling and comparing themes. *I’m going to retell the story “Winter Food.” “Winter Food” is about two characters: Squirrel and Wren. They talk about what they will do to prepare for the winter. Squirrel is preparing by gathering nuts. Wren is preparing by getting ready to fly somewhere warm. The theme of the text is how different animals prepare for winter. The theme of My Autumn Book was about what it is like when autumn starts. So both texts have themes about the seasons. But one is about winter, and the other is about autumn.* Then have students use the Talk About It prompt on p. 164 in the Student Interactive to retell the text and then compare its theme to another text.

ELL Targeted Support Retell Guide students in their retelling as they work to complete the activity on p. 164 in the Student Interactive.

Have students go through My Autumn Book and place a sticky note next to each detail they want to include in their retelling. Let them refer to the notes as they retell the story. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have pairs jot notes to prepare for the retelling. Then have them retell the story to each other and discuss their reasons for selecting the details they did in their retelling. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies for retelling and comparing texts.

OPTION 1 Use the Shared Read Have students use a section from this week’s text to retell the most important details in the story, and draw comparisons between the story’s theme and the themes of other texts they have read.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Ask students to list important details from the fiction text they are reading, and use that list to retell the story to a reading partner.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Can students retell texts and make comparisons?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction for making text comparisons in Small Group on pp. T246–T247.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction for making text comparisons in Small Group on pp. T246–T247.

WEEKLY QUESTION Have students use evidence from the texts they have read this week to respond to the Weekly Question. Have them write their responses on a separate sheet of paper.

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, p. 164

RESPOND TO TEXT

Read Together

Reflect and Share

Talk About It
Retell My Autumn Book. How is the theme of My Autumn Book similar to themes in other texts you have read?

Retell a Text
When retelling a text, you should:

- Tell the important events in your own words.
- Use important details from the text.

Use the words on the note to help you retell the text.

In the beginning . . .

Now retell the text.

Weekly Question
How do we know when the seasons are changing?

COMPARE TEXTS

Teaching Point When readers read two or more fiction texts, they can look for the big idea or theme in each one. Then they can compare the themes of the texts and say how they are the same or different. Remind students of fiction texts they have read. Have them select two texts to retell and compare. Guide them to focus on theme.

ELL Targeted Support

Help students compare themes across fiction texts.

Help students choose an appropriate fiction text to compare to My Autumn Book. Work with students to identify the big idea, or theme, of each text. Then guide students to compare the themes of the two books.

EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Make a two-column table on the board: one column for My Autumn Book and the other for a fiction text students have read. Have students work in groups to determine the themes of both stories. Record student responses in the table, then have them list the similarities and differences between the themes of the texts.

EXPANDING/BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

myFOCUS READER

Reread the text on pp. 60–61 with students. Use the teaching support online at SavvasRealize.com to engage students in a conversation that demonstrates how finding important details to determine theme in two or more texts helps them better understand the texts and improve their writing. Encourage students to use the Academic Vocabulary words.

On-Level and Advanced

INQUIRY

Organize Information and Communicate Help students organize what they have learned about autumn and winter into a format to share with others.

Critical Thinking Talk with students about what they learned and the process they used.

See Extension Activities pp. 334–338 in the Resource Download Center.

Conferring

COMPARE TEXTS

Talk About Independent Reading Have students use the list of important details about their fiction book to retell the story. Ask them to explain how they decided which details were important.

Possible Conference Prompts

- Why is each detail you chose important?
- How can you tell a detail is not important?
- How is this text similar to another text you have read?

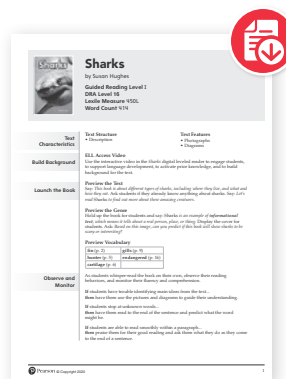

Possible Teaching Point Readers pay attention to the text. They stop and think about the details they have read. They ask themselves: Is this detail important for understanding the text?

Animals in Winter
Migrate
 Some animals move to a warm place. Monarch butterflies fly from Canada to Mexico each winter—that is about 3,000 miles!
Hibernate
 Certain animals hibernate, or sleep through winter. This painted turtle will bury itself in mud and stay there all winter.

Weekly Question
 What do living things do in the winter?
Change
 Some animals' bodies change to survive through the winter. American bison grow thick fur for warmth.

 Use the text to preview the content of the text, including where they live, and what they eat. Ask students if they already know anything about sharks. Say, "Let's read 'Sharks' to find out more about these amazing animals."

Preview the Content
 Read up the text to students and say, "Sharks is an example of informational text. Ask students to identify and point to the title, chapter, and section headings. Ask, 'Based on the image, can you predict what this text will be about?'"

Preview Vocabulary
 Use the text to preview the vocabulary words: shark, predator, prey, hunt, swim, catch, eat.

Observe and Monitor
 As students begin to read the text on their own, observe their reading behaviors and discuss their thinking and comprehension.
 If students have trouble identifying main ideas from the text, have them read the text and discuss the main ideas and details to guide their understanding.
 If students stop at a sentence early, ask, "What does this sentence mean?"
 If students are able to read fluently within a paragraph, have them read the text and discuss what they think they do as they come to the end of a sentence.

Listening Comprehension

OBJECTIVES
Listen actively. Use relevant questions to clarify information, and answer questions about main ideas and details.
Use appropriate fancy dress, costumes, and props to enhance your role-play.
Recognize the structure and structure of informational text.

FLUENCY
Model reading a short section of the text aloud to students. Use the text to model the structure and structure of the text. Encourage students to read the text aloud to you. Encourage students to read the text aloud to each other. Encourage students to read the text aloud to each other.

THINK ALOUD
Model thinking aloud to students. Use the text to model the structure and structure of the text. Encourage students to think aloud to you. Encourage students to think aloud to each other. Encourage students to think aloud to each other.

Read Aloud
Explain to students that you are going to read aloud an informational text. Ask them to listen closely as you read to help them better understand the text.

START UP
Purpose Have students listen for the characteristics of an informational text.
READ "What Animals Do in the Winter" aloud without stopping for the Think Aloud aloud.
REAP the text aloud. This time pause to model the Think Aloud strategies related to the genre.

What Animals Do in the Winter
Animals don't have homes with heaters like people do, so they have to adapt, or make changes, to stay safe through the winter.
Many birds and other animals migrate, or travel, to warmer environments during the winter. They travel long distances in flocks or alone. Some mammals, such as bats, elk, and even whales, also migrate.
Other animals adapt to stay in the same habitat they live in all year long. They grow thicker fur or even change color to blend into the snow. Animals that don't migrate collect and store lots of food to eat during the coldest months.

Interactive Read Aloud

Interactive Read Aloud Lesson Plan

WHY
Interactive Read Aloud:
• enables students to learn about their independent reading level.
• builds students' comprehension.
• enhances students' overall language development.
• provides an opportunity to build fluency and improve reading.
• fosters a love and enjoyment of reading.

PLANNING
• Select a text from the Read Aloud Trade Book Library or the school or classroom library.
• Read the text aloud to the students.
• Determine the Teaching Point.
• Write your own questions and model Think Alouds on sticky notes and place in the book at the points where you plan to stop to think aloud.
• Gather any vocabulary essential for understanding.

BEFORE READING
• Show the cover of the book to introduce the title, author, illustrator, and genre.
• Ask the students to share their thoughts on the cover.
• Point out interesting artwork or photos.
• Gather prior knowledge and build essential background necessary for understanding.
• Discuss key vocabulary essential for understanding.

DURING READING
• You can choose to stop and think aloud to students just to get the story and enjoy. Think Aloud and open-ended questions for a deeper dive into the text.
• Read with expression to draw in listeners.
• Ask questions to guide the discussion and draw attention to the teaching point.
• Use Think Aloud to model strategies and students use to monitor comprehension and construct meaning from text.
• Help students make connections to their own experiences, text they have read or learned in the past, or the world.

AFTER READING
• Summarize and allow students to share thoughts about the story.
• Request student comprehension by modeling the Think Aloud strategy of the story.
• Choose and assign a Student Response Form available on ReadAloud.com

Finals Teaching Points
• Monitor the story.
• Monitor the characters.
• Monitor the Teaching Point.
• Monitor the Theme.
• Monitor the Genre.
• Monitor the Point of View.

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Blend spoken phonemes to form one-syllable words, including initial and/or final consonant blends.

Segment spoken one-syllable words of three to five phonemes into individual phonemes, including words with initial and/or final consonant blends.

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

Sound-Spelling Cards 148, 149

FOUNDATIONAL SKILLS EXTENSION

See p. T273 for an open and closed syllables extension activity that can be used as the text is read.

Phonological Awareness: Segment and Blend Phonemes

SEE AND SAY Point to the picture of the slide on p. 174 in the Student Interactive. Tell students to listen as you segment and blend the phonemes to say the word: /s/ /l/ /ī/ /d/, slide. Then have students repeat with the pictures for clown and train.

PRACTICE Say each of the following words and have students segment and then blend the phonemes: shake, land, clock, break, moon, blue, find, gold.

Phonics: Decode Words with Open and Closed Syllables

Minilesson

FOCUS Explain to students that they can figure out long words by dividing them into syllables. Say: Words are made up of syllables and each syllable has only one vowel sound. There are open syllables and closed syllables. An open syllable ends in a vowel and usually has a long vowel sound. A closed syllable ends in a consonant and usually has a short vowel sound.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Use Sound-Spelling Cards 148 (lemon) and 149 (tiger) to introduce open and closed syllables in VCV words. Point to the word tiger. Say: If a two-syllable word has one consonant between two vowels, like the word tiger, the consonant usually goes with the second syllable and the first vowel sound is long: /tī/ /gēr/. Point to the word lemon. Sometimes, a two-syllable word with one consonant between two vowels, like the word lemon, must be divided so the consonant goes with the first syllable. Then the vowel sound in the first syllable is short: /lem/ /ən/. Write the words pilot and wagon for students to decode using what they learned about the vowel-consonant-vowel pattern and open and closed syllables.

APPLY My TURN Direct students to read the words on the bottom of p. 174 in the Student Interactive.

ELL Targeted Support Distinguishing Sounds Students may need more practice distinguishing syllables as well as vowel sounds in two-syllable words.

Say the word raven. Guide students to name the first syllable they hear in the word. Work with students to say the vowel sound they hear in the first syllable. (/ā/) Repeat with the word seven. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Say the words raven and seven. Have students name the syllables they hear in each word. Then ask them to name the vowel sound in the first syllable of each word. Explain that open syllables end in a long vowel sound, and closed syllables are closed off by a consonant sound and often have a short vowel sound. Have students identify the type of first syllable in each word. EXPANDING

HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS

Write the high-frequency words warm, today, world, years, and should. Tell students they need to practice these words.

- Point to each word as you read it.
- Then spell the word and read it again.
- Have students spell and say the words with you.
- Tell students to write the words in a notebook.

Ask students to follow along in their Student Interactive while you read “Animals in the Winter” out loud. Have students get into groups to discuss the infographic. Ask them if they can think of the ways that different kinds of animals deal with winter. Encourage students to ask any questions they may have while they are discussing the infographic.

Use the following statements as prompts to guide discussion:

- Some animals hide in warm or cozy places during the winter to avoid the cold.
- Some animals travel very long distances to stay in places where it's warm.

Then ask students: What kinds of things do animals do to survive in the winter? Ask them to go back to the infographic and come up with a response as a group. Have them present the answers to the class.

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have students interact with the infographic source by asking them to discuss which animal in winter they think is the most interesting.

WEEKLY QUESTION Revisit the Weekly Question with students: What do living things do in the winter? Tell students that all animals get through winter in different ways. They will learn more about what animals do in the winter as the week progresses.

ELL Targeted Support Visual and Context Support Ask students to pay attention to clues provided by the words and pictures used in the infographic as you read. These will help students gain a better understanding of the text.

Ask students to identify one clue that helped them better understand the text. EMERGING

Have students identify one visual element of the text that provided them with a better understanding of a word from the corresponding section of text. DEVELOPING

Have students find and read a word aloud in the text that corresponds to one of the visuals in the infographic. EXPANDING

Ask students to pick a context clue they found in the text, and create a drawing to go along with it. BRIDGING

Listening Comprehension

OBJECTIVES

Listen actively, ask relevant questions to clarify information, and answer questions using multi-word responses.

Use appropriate fluency (rate, accuracy, and prosody) when reading grade-level text.

Recognize characteristics and structures of informational text.

FLUENCY

Model reading a short section of the text aloud for students, and have them pay attention to the rate at which you read. Explain that when they read, they should read at an appropriate pace. By doing so, students can strengthen their comprehension of a text.

 THINK ALOUD Analyze Informational Text Once you reread the first paragraph, stop and say: I read that animals have to adapt, or make changes, to stay safe through the winter. This is a topic about something real. Informational texts have topics about real things, so I know this is an informational text.

Read Aloud

Explain to students that you are going to read aloud an informational text. Ask them to listen actively as you read to help them better understand the text.

START-UP

READ-ALoud ROUTINE

Purpose Have students listen for the characteristics of an informational text.

READ “What Animals Do in the Winter” aloud without stopping for the Think Aloud callouts.

REREAD the text aloud. This time pause to model the Think Aloud strategies related to the genre.

What Animals Do in the Winter

Animals don’t have homes with heaters like people do, so they have to adapt, or make changes, to stay safe through the winter.

Many birds and other animals migrate, or travel, to warmer environments during the winter. They travel long distances in flocks or alone. Some mammals, such as bats, elk, and even whales, also migrate.

Other animals adapt to stay in the same habitat they live in all year long. They grow thicker fur or even change color to blend into the snow. Animals that don’t migrate collect and store lots of food to eat during the coldest months.

Some animals will hibernate, or sleep all winter. They eat a lot in the fall to fatten up, then find a cozy space, like a den, to sleep until it warms up outside. These animals live off the fat they gained in the fall.

Animals have many ways to take care of themselves through the cold months of winter.

THINK ALOUD Analyze Informational Text After you reread the fourth paragraph say: I just read about how some animals hibernate, or sleep all winter. These details tell facts about real animals. Informational texts have facts about real people, places, and things. So, this is an informational text.

ELL Targeted Support Listening Comprehension Have students respond to questions or requests to demonstrate listening comprehension of the Read Aloud.

Ask students to draw a picture that summarizes the Read Aloud. Have them talk about their drawings with a partner. EMERGING

Provide sentence starters for students to use as they summarize to demonstrate listening comprehension of the Read Aloud. For example: Some animals ___ in winter. DEVELOPING

Ask students to demonstrate comprehension by answering these questions: Why do some animals have to adapt in winter? What do animals do so they can stay in their homes during winter? EXPANDING/BRIDGING

Ask students: How do animals migrate, change, and hibernate during the winter? Record their responses in the chart.

FLEXIBLE OPTION

INTERACTIVE Trade Book Read Aloud

Conduct an interactive read aloud of a full-length trade book.

- Choose a book from the Read Aloud Trade Book Library or the school or classroom library.
- Select an INTERACTIVE Read Aloud Lesson Plan Guide and Student Response available on SavvasRealize.com.
- Preview the book you select for appropriateness for your students.

SPOTLIGHT ON GENRE

Informational Text

LEARNING GOAL

I can read informational text.

OBJECTIVES

Use appropriate fluency (rate, accuracy, and prosody) when reading grade-level text.

Recognize characteristics and structures of informational text, including features and simple graphics to locate or gain information.

Distinguish between information provided by pictures or other illustrations and information provided by words in a text.

LANGUAGE OF THE GENRE

While you go over the anchor chart with students, review words that can help them talk about informational texts.

- graphics
- visual
- details
- information

FLEXIBLE OPTION ANCHOR CHARTS

To make an anchor chart that supports your instruction, start with the genre, informational text.

- Have students discuss the elements of informational texts.
- Ask them what kinds of headings and graphics would be appropriate.
- Build up your anchor chart as students learn more about the genre.

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES An informational text often has graphics, or pictures, that add details or show information in a visual way.

- Look at the pictures. What do they tell you about the topic?
- How do the words and pictures work together to help you understand the topic?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Ask students to turn to p. 184 in the Student Interactive. Use the photo and caption to show students how graphics and words work together to tell about a topic. I read the text: Squirrels gather food to prepare for winter. Then I look at the picture. I see a squirrel and I see some nuts. I know that squirrels like to eat nuts. The squirrel must be getting food to prepare for winter. The picture and text help me understand how squirrels prepare for winter. Have students point out what information they learned from the pictures and what different information they learned from the text.

Review the anchor chart. Guide students to discuss graphics used in informational texts they have read in the past.

ELL Targeted Support Respond to Questions Display Seasons Around the World. Have students respond to questions about Seasons Around the World to help them understand the characteristics of informational text.

Ask students leading questions about Seasons Around the World, such as: What do the pictures tell you about the seasons in different places?

EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have student pairs use reasons from the text to write three sentences that answer the question: What are seasons like around the world? EXPANDING/BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies to identify informational text.

OPTION 1 Use the Anchor Chart Have students work with a partner to discuss the characteristics of informational text. Circulate to determine if students show understanding.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Have students place sticky notes beside words and pictures that help them identify the text as an informational text.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Can students identify the elements of an informational text, such as graphics?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction about informational texts in Small Group on pp. T264–T265.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction about informational text in Small Group on pp. T264–T265.

Be a Fluent Reader Explain that fluent readers can read accurately, or read every word in a text without making a mistake. Have students work with a partner to complete the fluency activity on p. 184 in the Student Interactive.

Academic Vocabulary

LEARNING GOAL

I can make and use words to read and write informational text.

OBJECTIVE

Respond using newly acquired vocabulary as appropriate.

ELL Access

ELLs have limited exposure to Academic Vocabulary and therefore do not have opportunities to practice using the language. Provide time for classroom interactions that allow students to read, write, and listen to the many forms of the Academic Vocabulary words for the unit. Once students have more exposure, have them create a chart to record when they hear Academic Vocabulary in the classroom.

Oral Language

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Revisit the Academic Vocabulary for the unit: information, sense, expect, and process. Explain that using oral language (saying words aloud) can help students understand word meanings and how to use the words.

- Say the word aloud a few times to hear how it sounds.
- Read the sentence in which the word appears to hear the word in the appropriate context.
- Read a sentence with the word to a partner. Then talk about the word's meaning with your partner.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Have students turn to p. 203 in the Student Interactive. Demonstrate the activity using the word information. Say: Some information I learned about seasons is . . . Guide students to complete the sentence using details they learned from the unit. (Possible answer: Squirrels store food in autumn.)

Handwriting

OBJECTIVE

Develop handwriting by printing words, sentences, and answers legibly leaving appropriate spaces between words.

Write Answers

FOCUS When writing answers to questions, it is important to print legibly and leave spaces between words.

MODEL Display the question: What day is today? Ask students for the answer and then model how to write the answer legibly with appropriate spaces between words. Use the sentence frame: Today is ____. Point out the appropriate spaces as well as the uppercase letter at the beginning of the sentence.

IDENTIFY INFORMATIONAL TEXT

Teaching Point When you read an informational text, you can use the words and pictures in the text to help learn more about the topic. Guide students back to the infographic “Animals in Winter,” and talk with students about what the pictures add to the text.

ELL Targeted Support

Guide students to tell about one detail—from the text or pictures—that helped them understand the topic of the infographic. EMERGING

Ask students to explain how the pictures and text help them understand the topic of the infographic. Use sentence starters, such as: The map shows me . . . DEVELOPING

Have student pairs create a visual, such as a poster, that shows how the pictures and text details work together to tell about the topic of the infographic. Prompt students to share their visuals with the class. EXPANDING

Have students present a detailed explanation of how the text and pictures help them understand the topic of the infographic. BRIDGING

A Secret Note

Do you want to make some invisible ink? Here is how to do it. You have to get some things. Then, look at the directions. You have to do the steps in order.

What You Need

- half a lemon
- water
- a spoon
- a bowl
- a cotton swab
- white paper
- a lamp

Directions

1. Put some lemon juice into the bowl. Put in one or two drops of water.
2. Mix the water and the juice with a spoon.
3. Then take the cotton swab. Dip it in the mix. Write a note on the white paper.
4. Let the juice dry so you do not see it. There is no note! But you can find out if it is there.
5. When it is time to show the note, set the paper under the lamp. The lamp is hot. It can get the paper hot. Soon, you will see the note.

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

ADDITIONAL PRACTICE

For additional student practice with open and closed syllables, use Phonics p. 281 from the Resource Download Center.

Grade 1, Unit 5, Week 5
281

Phonics, p. 281

Phonics: Decode and Write Words with Open and Closed Syllables

Minilesson

FOCUS Explain to students that words are made up of syllables and that each syllable has only one vowel sound. When a word has a vowel-consonant-vowel pattern, the word can be divided into syllables before or after the consonant. The word is usually divided before the consonant so that the consonant goes with the second syllable. This makes the first syllable have a long vowel sound. It is called an open syllable. Sometimes a word is divided so the consonant goes with the first syllable. Then the vowel in the first syllable is the short sound. This is called a closed syllable.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the word robot. The word robot is a two-syllable word. Remember, if a word has one consonant between two vowels, the consonant usually goes with the second syllable and the first vowel sound is long. Draw a line between o and b. This is how I segment and blend the word: ro-bot, robot. Continue with the words never, baby, melon, and lazy

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have partners read the words at the top of p. 175 in the Student Interactive.

EXPERT'S VIEW Pat Cunningham, Wake Forest University

“Rather than introducing words in isolation, conduct a picture walk and introduce words in the context of the text. For example, if you want to introduce the word gorilla, you could ask children to find a long word that starts with a g and that names an animal that is pictured on the page. Or if you want to introduce the word frightened, say: On this page there is a long word, frightened. What is the first letter of frightened? Find the word on the page. When you teach words in the context of the text, they have more relevance and meaning for students.”

See SavvasRealize.com for more professional development on research-based best practices.

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

OPTION 1 My TURN Have students complete the rest of p. 175 and p. 176 in the Student Interactive.

OPTION 2 Independent Activity On cards, write the words hotel, rapid, robin, lemon, and paper. Have students read the words and sort them into categories: words whose first syllable has a short vowel sound and words whose first syllable has a long vowel sound.

Introduce the Text

OBJECTIVES

Use the illustrations and details in a text to describe its key ideas.

Distinguish between information provided by pictures or other illustrations and information provided by words in a text.

Monitor comprehension and make adjustments such as re-reading, using background knowledge, checking for visual cues, and asking questions when understanding breaks down.

ELL Access

Prereading

Taking the time to study vocabulary words and looking at the illustrations or pictures in a text can help students gain a better understanding of the text before they start reading. Have students practice prereading strategies whenever they are introduced to a new text.

Shared Read Plan

First Read Read the text. Pause to discuss the First Read Notes with students.

Close Read Use the Close Read notes to guide instruction for Lessons 3 and 4.

Preview Vocabulary

- Guide students to p.186 in the Student Interactive, and introduce the words seasons, weather, daylight, and temperature.
- Have students share what they already know about the words. Ask questions, such as: How many seasons are there in a year? Which season usually has the coldest weather?
- Have students demonstrate what they know about the words. They can act out some activities they might do in daylight. They can show you how it feels when the temperature is high.
- Provide definitions if needed. Definitions can be found on the following selection pages. These words will help us understand the informational text, Signs of Winter.

Read

Explain that readers monitor their comprehension as they read a text. Readers can make adjustments by using their background knowledge, or what they already know, when their understanding breaks down.

Talk about the First Read Strategies with students. Have them read for understanding and enjoyment during this first read.

FIRST READ STRATEGIES

READ Have students monitor their comprehension as they read to learn the big idea in the text. If students' understanding of the text breaks down, prompt them to make adjustments by using their background knowledge.

LOOK Ask students to look at the photos and use them to build on their understanding of the text.

ASK Prompt students to generate questions about confusing parts of the text before, during, and after reading to deepen their understanding and gain information about the topic.

TALK Have students talk about how the illustrations and text work together.

Students may read the text independently, in pairs, or as a whole class. Use the First Read notes to help students connect with the text and guide their understanding.

ELL Targeted Support Preteach Vocabulary Display the vocabulary words seasons, weather, daylight, and temperature.

Model reading each of the vocabulary words. Have students draw a picture that illustrates the word. Prompt them to write the vocabulary word as a label beneath their illustration. EMERGING

Have students use sentence frames to practice using the vocabulary words in sentence form. For example, provide students with the following sentence frame: Winter is one of the four ____. (seasons) DEVELOPING

 THINK ALOUD I don't understand why winter happens in places farthest from the sun. When I don't understand something in a text, I think about what I know. I know that it's colder outside when it's winter, and I know that sunlight warms things up. So, I guess it makes sense that it would be colder in places that don't get as much sunlight. Now I understand the text better.

CROSS-CURRICULAR PERSPECTIVES

Science

Each season does not always start on the same date every year. In the United States, winter either starts on December 21 or 22. Spring begins on March 20 or 21. The start of summer happens on June 20, 21, or 22. Autumn, or fall, begins on September 22 or 23.

- Draw or find a picture that goes with the word. How does the picture help you remember the word's meaning?
- How does this word help readers understand the text?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Have students turn to p. 188 in the Student Interactive. Model how to complete the activity using the word seasons.

ELL Targeted Support Visual Connections Tell students that visuals can help them make connections to new vocabulary.

Provide images commonly associated with each vocabulary word (e.g., a thermometer for temperature). Point to one word, read it aloud, and have students repeat. Guide students to point to the picture associated with the word. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students draw their own pictures that represent the vocabulary words. Have them trade pictures with a partner. Ask partners to guess the word that each picture represents. EXPANDING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Ask students to use the strategies for developing vocabulary.

OPTION 1 My TURN Ask students to complete p. 198 in the Student Interactive.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Have students draw pictures to help them remember the meaning of new words they find in a text. Have them label their pictures.

OPEN AND CLOSED SYLLABLES

Sound-Spelling Cards Share Sound-Spelling Card 149. Write the word tiger on the board. Say: There are two syllables in this word. I wonder if the first syllable has a long vowel or a short one. I will try each one. Oh, I know the word tiger and see that this is a picture of a tiger. The word is tiger.

Use Sound-Spelling Card 148 (lemon) to review closed syllables. Work with students to break the words remix, compact, spider, and never into syllables and tell whether the vowel in the first syllable of each word is long or short.

ELL Targeted Support

Tell students that using pictures is a way to learn new words. Display words with open and closed syllables, such as pilot, tiger, lemon, bacon, and wagon.

Have students choose one word to illustrate. Then have them label their drawings. EMERGING

Have students choose one word to illustrate. Then ask them to label their drawing and say a sentence using the word. DEVELOPING

Have students choose two words to illustrate. Then have them trade drawings with a partner and label each other's work. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

Intervention Activity

SYLLABLE PATTERNS

Use Lesson 24 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on syllable patterns.

LEVEL B • MODEL AND TEACH

Lesson 24 Syllable Patterns

INTRODUCE Remind students that words have small parts, or syllables. They have already practiced clapping the syllables in words. Today we will look at spelling patterns to learn how some words are broken into syllables.

MODEL Display or share copies of the following passage "Find the Dragons" from Student Page S141, and read it aloud. Some words in this passage have the patterns we will learn for finding syllables.

Find the Dragons

Seven little dragons are hidden in a picture.
One peeks from under a table.
Find the rest.
You will get a bonus.

TEACH Remind students that they have been identifying syllables and vowels in syllables. Explain that some syllable patterns will help them read words. The word hidden shows one pattern. Write hidden. When I see a word with two consonants in the middle, I divide the word after the first consonant. Cover den. Say the first syllable with me: hid. Then cover hid and read the final syllable aloud: den. Now read the syllables one after the other to say the word. The syllables are hid and den. I read: hid, den, hidden.

Use the routines that follow to review the spelling pattern VC/CV, and to introduce the V/CV (specifically, the final stable syllable ending in -le) and the V/CV and VC/V patterns.

BUILD WORDS WITH LETTER TILES

Spread out Letter Tiles for students to see. Have them form the following words using the Letter Tiles: baby, lemon, finish, paper, even, wagon. They can then tell whether the first syllable in each word has a short vowel or a long one.

Students can also play the letter tile game in the myView games at SavvasRealize.com.

Decodable Reader

Have students use the Decodable Reader Time for Bed to practice reading high-frequency words and decoding words with open and closed syllables.

After students finish reading, ask them to find a word in the story with an open or a closed syllable and a high-frequency word. Have students draw a picture of or write a sentence about their chosen word.

DEVELOP VOCABULARY

Teaching Point Readers can use pictures to help them remember the meaning of new words. Refer students back to Signs of Winter, and demonstrate using the word weather.

ELL Targeted Support

Have students use support from peers and teachers to develop vocabulary.

Support students in developing vocabulary by first writing weather on the board and displaying a picture associated with weather, such as rain. Then say the word aloud before pointing to the image. Have students echo. EMERGING

Draw or display a picture commonly associated with the word weather. Then support students in developing vocabulary by providing the following sentence frame: The picture reminds me of _____ because _____. DEVELOPING

Have students use peer support to develop their vocabulary by asking pairs to draw pictures that will help them remember the meanings of the vocabulary words. EXPANDING

Have students use peer support to develop their vocabulary by asking pairs to create a poster with definitions and drawings of the vocabulary words. Prompt students to share their posters with others. BRIDGING

Fluency

Assess 2–4 students

PROSODY

Have students select a passage in a leveled reader. Ask students to work in pairs to practice reading aloud until they can read without stopping or pausing to think about the words they are reading. Guide students as needed.

ORAL READING RATE AND ACCURACY

Use pp. 145–150 in Unit 5, Week 5 Cold Reads to assess students. Have partners practice reading the passage. Use the Fluency Progress Chart to track student progress.

DEVELOP VOCABULARY

Talk About Independent Reading Have students share the pictures they created to help them recall the meaning of new vocabulary words.

Possible Conference Prompts

- How did the pictures help you understand the words?
- Do these pictures help you remember the meaning of the words more easily?
- Can you think of other pictures that could also help you remember the meaning of the words?

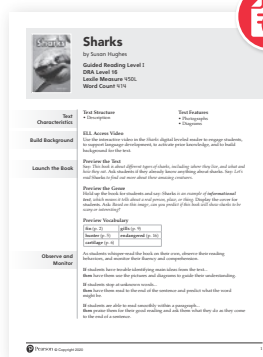

Possible Teaching Point Readers can write a sentence that includes a new vocabulary word to help them remember the word’s meaning.

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Manipulate phonemes within base words.

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

Sound-Spelling Cards 90, 95

FOUNDATIONAL SKILLS EXTENSION

See p. T275 for a vowel teams oo, ou extension activity that can be used as the text is read.

Phonological Awareness: Manipulate Sounds

SEE AND SAY Point to the picture of a net on p. 177 in the Student Interactive. Say: This is a picture of a net. Listen as I say the sounds in net: /n/ /e/ /t/. Now let's manipulate the sounds. When you manipulate sounds, you move, or switch, the sounds to different places. Let's switch the first sound /n/ and the last sound /t/: /t/ /e/ /n/, ten. Then repeat the activity with the pictures for step (pets) and bus (sub).

PRACTICE Have students manipulate the phonemes in each word to say a new word: back (cab), mug (gum), stop (pots).

Phonics: Decode Words with Vowel Teams oo, ou

Minilesson

FOCUS Use Sound-Spelling Cards 90 (moon) and 95 (soup) to introduce the vowel teams oo and ou. Remind students that a sound can have more than one spelling. Display the Sound-Spelling Cards and say the words moon and soup. Point out the spellings of the sound /ü/ in each word. Say: The letters oo and ou can both spell the vowel sound you hear in the word moon, /ü/. Have students repeat the sound with you. Then have them repeat the words moon and soup, emphasizing the vowel sound /ü/.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write and read the word loop. Say the word sound by sound. Ask: What vowel sound do you hear in the word loop? Yes, you hear the vowel sound /ü/. How is the sound /ü/ spelled in the word loop? Yes, the sound /ü/ is spelled oo in the word loop. Continue with the words troop, you, room, group, youth, and pool.

APPLY My TURN Have students read the words on the bottom of p. 177 in the Student Interactive.

Use Pictures and Text

OBJECTIVES

Use illustrations and texts the student is able to read or hear to learn or clarify word meanings.

Distinguish between information provided by pictures or other illustrations and information provided by words in a text.

Use the illustrations and details in a text to describe its key ideas.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate Model the Academic Vocabulary for the unit as you discuss the text during the Close Read.

- What kind of information do you get from the pictures?
- How do the pictures help you process information in the text?

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Pictures and words in a text give information about the topic and describe key ideas in the text.

- See what the pictures and words tell you about the topic.
- Find which words and pictures describe key ideas in the text.

MODEL AND PRACTICE To model using pictures and text, display p. 75 of Seasons Around the World. Say: The text tells me that flowers bloom in spring. I know that when flowers bloom, it means they come out of their buds. The picture shows flowers that have bloomed. So, both the picture and the text tell me what spring is like. Then have students go back to the Close Read notes on pp. 189 and 191 in the Student Interactive and underline the text features they used to understand the text.

ELL Targeted Support Visual and Contextual Support Tell students that they can use pictures and text to confirm their understanding of what they are reading.

Have students use sentence frames to help them discuss key ideas they find in the pictures and text in Signs of Winter: The picture shows ____, and the text says ____. Both the picture and text tell about _____. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Prompt student pairs to list key ideas related to the topic of Signs of Winter they learn from the pictures and text. Have them discuss how these details help them understand the topic. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

EXPERT'S VIEW Sharon Vaughn, University of Texas at Austin

“Instructional feedback is as important as instruction, but what should feedback look like? It doesn't just mean telling the student, “Good job!” Feedback means asking questions about what students are learning from text and asking them to demonstrate how the text supports their response. Good feedback is asking students to engage in purposeful activities through oral expression or in writing.”

See SavvasRealize.com for more professional development on research-based best practices.

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

OBJECTIVE

Discuss with adult assistance the author's use of print and graphic features to achieve specific purposes.

ELL Access

Visual Support Authors use pictures to provide clues about the topic and words that may be unfamiliar to readers. Encourage students to look at the pictures when they read something they do not understand.

Graphics

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Authors use graphics, or pictures, to help readers understand a topic. The pictures can provide examples. They can also give more information.

- How do pictures in the text help you understand the topic?
- Do the pictures have a clear connection to the text?
- Can the pictures help you understand specific ideas in the text?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Have students refer back to Signs of Winter. Say: The text talks about making a snowman. It said the first step is making a huge snowball. The picture on the page shows two kids making a large snowball. I think they're making a snowman.

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have students talk with a partner about the author's use of graphics.

Handwriting

OBJECTIVE

Develop handwriting by printing words, sentences, and answers legibly leaving appropriate spaces between words.

Write Answers

FOCUS When writing answers to questions, it is important to print legibly and leave spaces between words.

USE PICTURES AND TEXT

Teaching Point Today we will talk about how pictures and words can help you understand the topic of a text. These pictures and words describe key ideas. Guide students back to the “Animals in Winter” infographic on pp. 172–173 in the Student Interactive, and demonstrate using pictures and text to understand the topic.

ELL Targeted Support

Prompt students to examine the picture of the American bison in the infographic. Guide them to find text that relates to the picture. EMERGING

Have student pairs find an example from the infographic in which pictures and text work together to help them better understand the topic. DEVELOPING

Ask students to work in pairs to find words that tell about a key detail in the infographic. Have them draw their own pictures that support the connection between the text and the key detail.

EXPANDING

Ask students to create a list of words and a separate collection of pictures that help them better understand the topic. Then have students trade lists and pictures with a partner. Tell them to try to match the pictures to the words.

Intervention Activity

UNDERSTAND ILLUSTRATIONS IN A TEXT

Use Lesson 52 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher’s Guide for instruction on understanding illustrations in a text.

LEVEL B • READ

Lesson 52 Understand Illustrations in a Text

DIRECTIONS Look at the passage and study the illustrations. Follow along as your teacher reads aloud “Change of Season.”

Change of Season

There are four seasons. They are spring, summer, fall, and winter. What happens in each season? The magic of nature happens. Each season is special.

In spring, the air gets warmer. It rains. The rain feeds the plants. Everything turns green. People plant seeds in their gardens. Seeds sprout and plants start to grow. Flowers bloom. Grass covers your yard. Trees get their leaves. Birds lay and hatch their eggs. Animal babies are born. Days get longer.

Next comes summer. The sun shines bright and warms the air. Oceans and lakes warm up as the sun hits the water. Flowers keep blooming. Vegetables grow and soon they are ready to eat.

Trees give shade from the hot sun. Sometimes it thunders and rains hard. Lightning strikes. Weather can be hot and sunny. It can be rainy and wild, too.

FOCUS The vowel teams oo and ou both spell the vowel sound you hear in the word moon.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the following words: spoon, group. Point to the word spoon. Say: The sound /ü/ can be spelled oo as in the word spoon. Have students repeat the word with you as you underline the letters oo. Then point to the word group and have students decode it. Ask: What vowel sound do you hear in the word group? (/ü/) How do you spell the sound /ü/ in the word group? (ou) Continue with the words soup and broom.

APPLY TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Have partners read the words at the top of p. 179 in the Student Interactive.

ELL Targeted Support Vowel Teams Some English learners may have difficulty distinguishing the differences in vowel teams with the same spelling but different sounds such as /ü/ spelled oo (moon) and /ü/ spelled oo (book), /ü/ spelled ou (soup) and /ou/ spelled ou (mouse). Have students practice saying word pairs that contain the different sounds and spellings. Write the words moon and book on the board.

Pronounce each word for students and then have them repeat the words. Point out to students that the spelling oo can sound like the vowel sound in moon and it can sound like the vowel sound in book. The only way to know is to try both pronunciations to see which one sounds correct. Have students practice with the following word pairs: soon/book, boot/hook, loop/look. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Ask student volunteers to read each word. Review the vowel sound in each word. Then have student pairs practice with these word pairs: soon/book, boot/hook, loop/look. Decodable Story

OBJECTIVES

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

ELL Access

Speakers of monosyllabic languages such as Cantonese, Korean, and Vietnamese may pronounce two-syllable words as two separate words. Provide additional practice with pronouncing the two-syllable words used in the decodable story, first in isolation and then in context of a sentence from the story. Correct students as necessary.

Read In Winter

FOCUS Have students turn to p. 181 in the Student Interactive. Say: We are going to read about the winter. Point to the title of the story. Say: The title of the story is In Winter. Point to the word Winter. Say: Winter is a two-syllable word. It has two consonants between two vowels, so we can divide between the consonants. The vowel sound is short in the first syllable.* Then tell students they will read other two-syllable words and words with vowel teams ou and oo in the story.

IDENTIFY AND READ HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS Before reading, review this week's high-frequency words: warm, today, world, years, should. Display the words. Have students read them with you. Tell them that they will also practice reading the high-frequency words in the story In Winter.

Then have students highlight the words and tell them that these words begin with a closed syllable.

Have students turn to pp. 182–183. Ask: What words have a vowel between two consonants? Students should supply the words frozen and major. How should we divide those words into syllables to read them? (fro/zen; ma/jor) Do the first syllables have a long vowel sound or a short vowel sound? (long vowel sound) Have them underline the words and tell students that these words begin with an open syllable. Ask: Which words on page 183 have the same vowel sound as moon? Students should supply the words soup, spoons, and boots. Have students underline the words.

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, pp. 182–183

DECODABLE STORY

FOUNDATIONAL SKILLS

Should moose leave too?
Their world is frozen solid.
So, bark is their major food.

Underline the two two-syllable words that begin with an open syllable.

182

Today we stay warm in our cabin.
We sip hot soup
with spoons.
We put on boots and coats.
It feels like years until spring.

Underline the three words with the same vowel sound as moon.

Make Inferences

Signs of Winter

OBJECTIVE

Make inferences and use evidence to support understanding with adult assistance.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate Model the Academic Vocabulary words as you discuss the text during the Close Read.

- What do you expect to learn from this text?
- What do animals do when they sense winter is coming?

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Readers can make inferences by using what they already know and what they read to figure out something about a text.

- Ask yourself what you already know about the topic. Can you think of any signs of winter?
- What text evidence can you find that tells you some of the signs of winter?
- What conclusions can you make based on what you know and what you've read?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Refer students to p. 191 of Signs of Winter in the Student Interactive. Say: I read that there is very little daylight in the winter. I already know that there is a lot of daylight in the summer. I can make an inference from these details. My inference is that the amount of daylight changes with the seasons. Have students go back to the Close Read note on p. 195 and highlight the text evidence that helps them make an inference about what bison do in cold temperatures.

ELL Targeted Support Prior Experiences Tell students that readers use prior experiences, or things that have happened to them, to help them make inferences about a text.

Using p. 189 of Signs of Winter in the Student Interactive, ask simple questions to guide students. Is it winter in France in December? (yes) Is it winter in New Zealand in July? (yes) Do we have winter in December or July? (December) Guide students to make an inference from the answers to the questions. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students talk with a partner about a prior experience that helped them connect to the text. Then have them share how remembering that experience helped them make an inference about the text. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT OPTIONS

Apply

Have students use the strategies for making inferences.

OPTION 1 My TURN Ask students to complete the activity on p. 201 in the Student Interactive.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Ask students to make inferences about the text. Have them record their inferences in a chart.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Can students make inferences about an informational text?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction for making inferences in Small Group on pp. T298–T299.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction for making inferences in Small Group on pp. T298–T299.

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, p. 201

Read Together READING WORKSHOP

Make Inferences

Readers make inferences. They use what they know and what they read to figure out something about the text.

MY TURN Make an inference about bison in Signs of Winter. Go back to what you highlighted in the text.

What I Read Possible response: Bison grow thick coats in winter.	What I Already Know Possible response: Thick coats can keep animals warm.
My Inference Possible response: Bison don't leave for warmer places during the winter.

Use the  QUICK CHECK on p. T291 to determine small group instruction.

Teacher-Led Options

Word Work Strategy Group

VOWEL TEAMS oo, ou

Sound-Spelling Cards

Display Sound-Spelling Card 90. Have students name the image on the card (moon). Say: The word moon has the vowel sound /ü/ spelled oo. Repeat with Sound-Spelling Card 95 (soup) for /ü/ spelled ou.

Have student pairs make a picture book featuring images or drawings of words with the sound /ü/ spelled oo and ou (e.g., soup, moon, room, group). Make sure students label their pictures. Then ask pairs to share their picture books with the group.

ELL Targeted Support

Help students practice reading and writing words with /ü/ spelled oo and ou by using the words they included in their picture books.

Prompt student pairs to take turns decoding the words from their picture books. Then ask them to identify the vowel teams that spell the sound /ü/.

EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students write a list of words with /ü/ spelled oo and ou that they did not include in their picture books. Ask them to share their lists with the group. Invite the group to try saying each word in a sentence.

EXPANDING/BRIDGING

 For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

DIPHTHONGS AND VOWEL PATTERNS

Use Lesson 26 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on diphthongs and vowel patterns.

LEVEL B • MODEL AND TEACH

Lesson 26 Diphthongs and Vowel Patterns

INTRODUCE Remind students that they know vowel sounds besides short or long vowel sounds. You have learned about the /oi/ sound in oil and the /ow/ sound in cow. What is the vowel sound in look? (/oo/) Today you will learn how to read and spell words with these sounds. You will also learn words with two other vowel sounds. You will see different letter combinations for these vowel sounds.

MODEL Display Student Page S151. Say: I will read this story aloud. You follow along. Listen carefully to the vowel sounds in the highlighted words. These are the sounds we will focus on today. Read aloud the passage as students follow along. Slightly emphasize the highlighted words.

OBJECTIVES:

- Learn different sound-letter correspondences for diphthongs (/oi/, /ow/) and for the vowel sounds in ball (/aw/), foot (/oo/), and new (/oo/).
- Use knowledge of these correspondences to decode words with these vowel sounds, in isolation and in context.
- Apply knowledge of these correspondences to properly spell words with these vowel sounds.

New Toys

We went to the toy store. I got a ball. Sam got a new game. It is a good game. Now we play it all the time. Will you join us? Or we could play with my ball outside!

/oi/	/ow/	/aw/	/oo/	/oo/
toy	Now	ball	good	new
join	outside

TEACH Read the first sentence again. Direct students to look at the chart below the story and find the word toy. What is the vowel sound in toy? Yes, it is /oi/ and it is spelled o-y in toy. But there is another spelling for /oi/. See the word join below toy in the chart? How is /oi/ spelled in this word? (-i) Have students find join in the story.

Repeat these steps for words Now and outside. Then introduce the other three sounds, reading the sentence with the target word and referring to the chart each time. See if students can find another word in the story with the same sound and spelling as ball (all). You will learn other letter combinations for this vowel sound later in the lesson. You will also learn other letter combinations for the vowel sounds in good and new.

PHONOLOGICAL AWARENESS

For students who need support, Phonological Awareness lessons are available in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide, Lessons 1–13.

Independent/Collaborative

Word Work Activity

BUILD WORDS WITH LETTER TILES

Distribute Letter Tiles to students. Have students form these words: you, food, boots, and group. They can then read each of the words and tell how the sound /ü/ is spelled.

Students can also play the Letter Tile game in the myView games at SavvasRealize.com.

Decodable Reader

When students read and listen to the Decodable Reader My Youth Troop, they can practice reading words with the sound /ü/ spelled oo and ou and high-frequency words.

Before reading, display the high-frequency words that are in the story. Tell students to practice reading these words because they will see them in My Youth Troop.

Pair students to read the Decodable Reader. Have them take turns reading each page. Circulate to observe students' understanding of the letter-sound relationships and knowledge of high-frequency words. Tell partners to reread the story with the other student starting this time.

MAKE INFERENCES

Teaching Point Readers can make inferences about the text they are reading. To make an inference, think about what you already know about the topic of a text, and then think about what you read in the text. Revisit Signs of Winter and help students make inferences using what they already know and what they read.

ELL Targeted Support

Guide students to cooperatively share information as a way to help each other make inferences about a text.

Have student pairs share information by pointing out words in the text that helped them make an inference about Signs of Winter. EMERGING

Have student pairs share information about the inferences they made by completing sentence frames, such as: I read that _____. I already knew that _____. DEVELOPING

Ask students to share the information about the text that helped them make inferences. Have them put the details into a chart so others can practice forming similar inferences. EXPANDING

Have students work in pairs to make an inference about the text. Then ask them to write or draw the steps they followed when making their inference. Prompt students to share this information with others. BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

MONITOR COMPREHENSION

Use Lesson 47 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on monitoring comprehension.

LEVEL B • READ

Lesson 47 Monitor Comprehension

DIRECTIONS Look at the title and illustration. Then follow along as your teacher reads aloud "The Field Trip."

The Field Trip

Cole's class was going on a field trip. They were going to the science museum in the city. The teacher Ms. Peg told the kids to line up. She said, "The bus is here. Please find a seat with a friend."

Cole got on the bus. He sat with his friend, Ed. They sat in the back. Cole told Ed a joke. "Why did the melon jump into the lake? It wanted to be a water-melon!"

Ed told Cole a joke. "How can the ocean say hello? It can wave!"

"You may have a snack now," said Ms. Peg. Cole had grapes and Ed had pretzels. Cole ate some of Ed's pretzels. And Ed ate some of Cole's grapes.

Then, all the kids sang songs and played a game. It was fun.

"Are we there yet?" said Kate.

"It will be a little while until we get there," said Ms. Peg. "You can have a nap now."

"A nap?" Cole said. "We are not babies." But he closed his eyes and soon he was asleep. Ed fell asleep too.

MAKE INFERENCES

Talk About Independent Reading Ask students to share the chart they used to make inferences.

Possible Conference Prompts

- What did you already know about the topic?
- What did you learn from reading the text?
- How did you make an inference?

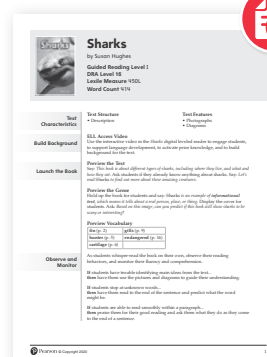

Possible Teaching Point Readers can make inferences by using ideas they learned from other texts. As they think about what they already know, have them consider not only their experiences, but also information in texts they have read.

Leveled Readers

MAKE INFERENCES

- For suggested titles, see “Matching Texts to Learning,” pp. T262–T263.
- For instructional support on making inferences, see the Leveled Reader Teacher’s Guide.

Whole Group

Share Gather the class back together as a whole group. Ask one or two volunteers to share one inference they made about the text they are reading.

Independent/Collaborative

Independent Reading

Students can

- reread or listen to Signs of Winter or “What Animals Do in the Winter.”
- read a new text of their choosing.
- practice reading aloud on their own.

Centers

See the myView Literacy Stations in the Resource Download Center.

Literacy Activities

Students can

- write about inferences they made in their notebooks.
- play the myView games.
- complete an activity from the Resource Download Center.
- practice reading aloud at an appropriate pace with a partner.

SUPPORT INDEPENDENT READING

Prompt students to break challenging texts into smaller pieces. Doing so can make these texts easier for students to navigate and understand.

See the Small Group Guide for additional support and resources to target your students’ specific instructional needs.

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Manipulate phonemes within base words.

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

ADDITIONAL PRACTICE

For additional student practice with high-frequency words, use My Words to Know p. 289 from the Resource Download Center.

My Words to Know, p. 289

Phonological Awareness: Manipulate Phonemes

MODEL Tell students that when you manipulate sounds in a word, you move, or switch, the sounds to different places. Say: Let's manipulate the sounds in a word. Listen to the sounds in the word list: /l/ /i/ /s/ /t/. Now let's switch the first sound, /l/, and the final blend, /s/ /t/: /s/ /t/ /i/ /l/, still.

PRACTICE Have students manipulate the phonemes in each word to say a new word: late (tale), teen (neat), leap (peal), tone (note).

Phonics: Spiral Review Long i, Long o; Suffixes -ly, -ful

Minilesson

FOCUS Review the long i spelling patterns _ild and _ind and the long o spelling patterns _ost and _old. Then review the suffixes -ly and -ful. Remind students that suffixes are word parts that are added to base words to make new words with new meanings. The suffix -ly means “in a ___ way.” The suffix -ful means “full of ___.”

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the sentences on the board and read them aloud. Have students identify the words with the sound long o spelled o and the sound long i spelled i. Ask students to name the spelling pattern that spells the sound. Then have volunteers circle the words with the suffixes -ly and -ful.

The joyful dog runs wildly in the yard.
He needs to find the old post.
When he finds it, he is peaceful and mild.

ELL Targeted Support Suffixes Some students may struggle to understand that a suffix is added to a word to make a new word with a new meaning. They can then use the meaning of the base word and the meaning of the suffix to figure out what the new word means. Create word cards. On one side, write a base word. On the other side, write a phrase that will give students a clue about which suffix to add. For example: safe / tells how it is done (safely); play / tells what it is like (playful).

Have students point to the base word and read the word with you. Then read the phrase on the back to them. Ask: What suffix should we add to the base word? Should we add -ly or -ful to tell how it is done? Then say the new word and have students repeat it.

EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students read the base word and then read the phrase with you. Have them decide on the correct suffix to add to the base word and then tell you the new word. Prompt them to explain what the new word means. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS

Display this week's high-frequency words warm, today, world, years, and should. Include any previously taught high-frequency words for extra practice. Have students work with a partner.

- One student identifies and reads a word.
- The other student spells the word.
- Repeat.

Reflect and Share

Signs of Winter

OBJECTIVES

Listen actively, ask relevant questions to clarify information, and answer questions using multi-word responses.

Share information and ideas about the topic under discussion, speaking clearly at an appropriate pace and using the conventions of language.

ACADEMIC VOCABULARY

Integrate Connect the Academic Vocabulary back to the Weekly Question and unit theme.

- What information did you learn about what living things do in winter?
- What did you expect to learn at the start of the unit?

Talk About It

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Tell students that they can form opinions that express what they think or feel about a text. They can think of what they have read in other texts and compare or contrast that information with the text they are talking about to form an opinion. Explain that they can share their opinions with other students during a discussion. Before they share their opinions, students should:

- Remember other texts they have read that helped shape their opinion on the topic.
- Consider what they learned that changed an opinion they already had about that topic.
- Think of the words they will use to express their opinion.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Demonstrate how to share ideas and opinions when making comparisons across texts. Say: *I like winter. I read about building a snowman in Signs of Winter, and I think that building a snowman sounds like fun. You can go sledding in the snow too. I also read in Every Season that in winter we can make snow angels and drink hot chocolate, and that also sounds like fun.* Have students practice sharing opinions about another season they have read about.

ELL Targeted Support Express Opinions Explain to students that an opinion is a statement that tells how someone thinks or feels about something. Ask questions to help students share their opinion about winter and use details from the text to explain the reasons.

Ask: Do you like winter? Then have them point out details in Signs of Winter they can use to support their opinion. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Have students share their opinions of winter with a partner. Ask them to discuss their opinions, using details from the text. Then, prompt them to discuss how their opinions are similar and different. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

Apply

Have students use the strategies for comparing texts to form opinions.

OPTION 1 Use the Shared Read Have students form opinions about winter using text evidence from Signs of Winter and another text they have read in this unit as support, following the Talk About It prompt on p. 202 in the Student Interactive.

OPTION 2 Use Independent Text Ask students to write their opinions about a topic, and list the reasons for their opinions using text support from two texts they have previously read.

QUICK CHECK

Notice and Assess Can students compare texts to form opinions?

Decide

- If students struggle, revisit instruction for making text comparisons during discussions in Small Group on pp. T304–T305.
- If students show understanding, extend instruction for making text comparisons during discussions in Small Group on pp. T304–T305.

WEEKLY QUESTION Ask students to answer the Weekly Question using evidence they collected from what they read this week. Have them discuss their answers in small groups and provide reasons for their thinking.

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, p. 202

RESPOND TO TEXT Read Together

Reflect and Share

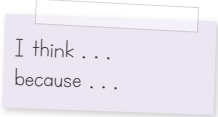

Talk About It
You just read a text about winter. You also read other texts about the seasons. What is your opinion of winter? Use text evidence.

Sharing Your Opinion
When sharing an opinion, it is important to:

- Express what you think or feel.
- Use reasons to support your opinion.

Use the words on the note to help you form an opinion.

Now share your opinion.

COMPARE TEXTS

Teaching Point Readers can make comparisons across texts to form opinions. They can share these opinions with others during a discussion. Have students think about the animals they read about in the infographic “Animals in Winter,” the Read Aloud “What Animals Do in the Winter,” and Signs of Winter. Have them practice forming opinions by determining which animal is the most interesting. Guide students to use support from the three texts when forming their opinions.

ELL Targeted Support

Help students express their opinions on which animal is the most interesting.

Guide students to identify words and pictures in the two texts that give information they can use to express an opinion. EMERGING

Have students express their opinions with a partner. Prompt them to use sentence frames during their discussion, such as: I think _____ is the most interesting animal. DEVELOPING

Ask students to express their opinions with the group. Have them cite specific details from the texts in support of their ideas. EXPANDING

Challenge students to lead a discussion with others. Prompt them to express their opinions while also asking other students questions that require multi-word responses. BRIDGING

For additional support, see the online Language Awareness Handbook.

Intervention Activity

myFOCUS READER

Reread pp. 62–63 in the myFocus Reader with students. Use the teaching support online at SavvasRealize.com to engage students in a conversation that demonstrates how the texts they have read this week support their understanding of what animals do during the seasons. Encourage students to use the Academic Vocabulary words.

On-Level and Advanced

INQUIRY

Organize Information and Communicate

Have students gather together their research findings on what their chosen animal does in the winter. Guide them to organize their information into a format that is easy to present to others.

Critical Thinking Ask students to discuss what their research findings tell them about what living things do in the winter and how they researched their chosen animal.

COMPARE TEXTS

Talk About Independent Text Ask students to share their opinions about a topic and support their opinion using evidence from their two texts.

Possible Conference Prompts

- What is your opinion about the topic?
- What details helped you form your opinion?
- Did you find pictures or text more useful when forming your opinion?

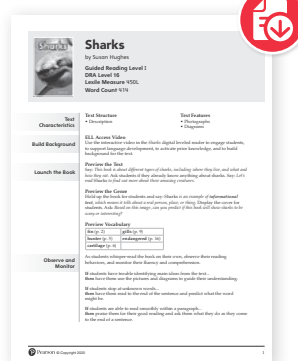

Possible Teaching Point Before you discuss your opinion, think about what someone who doesn't agree with your opinion might say.

Resources

Stacks of Mentor Texts

Mentor STACK

- Mentor texts, the foundation for each unit, provide students with a vision of the type of writing they will produce.
- Five to eight mentor texts are recommended for each unit.

myView Literacy Student Interactive

- Students use the myView Literacy Student Interactive to practice their learning from the minilessons.
- Students reference the myView Literacy Student Interactive to deepen their understanding of concepts taught in Writing Workshop.

Stapled Books (Kindergarten and Grade 1)

- Students in Kindergarten and Grade 1 will write in stapled books.
- Primary students create the types of books they are reading, which are mostly picture books.

Writing Notebook (Grades 2-5)

- Students in Grades 2-5 will need a writing notebook.
- Students use the writing notebook for writing drafts. Final copies may be written in their writing notebooks, or teachers may ask students to keyboard their final copies.

Portfolio

- Students may store final copies of their writing in their portfolios.
- At the end of every unit, students will be asked to share one piece of writing in the Celebration.

- Student authors learn to
- ▶ reflect on mentor texts.
 - ▶ write in different genres and styles.
 - ▶ apply writing conventions.

Conferences

Conferences are a cornerstone of the Writing Workshop. They provide an opportunity for the teacher to work one-on-one or in small groups with students to address areas of strength and areas of growth.

The focus of conferences should be on providing students with transferable writing skills and not solely on improving the current piece of writing.

Conference Pacing 30–40 minutes

- Consider a rotation where every student is conferred with over one week.
- Use the provided conference prompts for each lesson to guide conversations.
- Determine three possible teaching points for the conference based on student work.
- Come to the conference with stacks—published, teacher written, and student models.
- Use a note-taking system to capture pertinent details. (Conference Notes Templates are available on SavvasRealize.com.)

Conference Routine

Research	A student may discuss the topic of his or her writing and questions he or she may have. Use this as an opportunity to learn about the student’s writing and make decisions to focus conferences.
Name a Strength	Once the student has discussed his or her writing, provide specific praise for an element of the writing. Naming a strength develops a student’s energy for writing.
Decide on a Teaching Point	Choose a teaching point that focuses on improving the writer within the student and not on improving the student’s writing. A range of teaching points should be covered over the year.
Teach	Help the student understand how he or she can achieve success. Use a minilesson from the bank of minilessons to provide instruction on the teaching point. One text from the unit’s stack serves as an example of what the student’s writing should emulate.

Writing Assessment

Week 5 • Day 5

- The Writing Workshop Assessment is on Day 5 of Week 5 of every unit. Teachers may choose how to assess their students.
- Collect students' compositions after the Celebration and use the designated rubric to grade the writing.
- Give students an on-demand prompt that will require them to synthesize their understanding of the genre, author's purpose and craft, and writing conventions in one succinct piece of writing without the support of a teacher.
- Assessment prompts and writing rubrics can be found in the Writing Workshop of myView Literacy Teacher's Edition on Day 5 of Week 5, or they may be accessed on SavvasRealize.com.

Conference Support for ELL

EMERGING

- Use a Think Aloud to model brainstorming and generating ideas.
- Use key phrases and cognates in your students' home languages.
- Use modeled writing to help students plan a how-to book.

DEVELOPING

- Discuss students' Plan Your How-to Book list.
- Model drawing for students so they know it is an acceptable form of communication.
- Use modeled writing to help students plan a how-to book.

EXPANDING

- Use real-life experiences to help students generate ideas.
- Think aloud while planning your own how-to book.
- Use guided writing to help students brainstorm and plan writing.

BRIDGING

- Use visuals from stack texts to discuss elements of a how-to book.
- Invite students to read and think aloud about procedural elements in books from the stack.
- Use guided writing to teach the characteristics and structure of a how-to book.

Reading-Writing Workshop Bridge

While conferring with students, refer back to the Bridge minilessons on text structure and adverbs.

ELL Minilesson Support

Week 1: Introduce and Immerse

During the immersion week, your ELLs will benefit from additional writing support that expands their awareness and understanding of the genre and helps them make connections to their own motivation to write. These targeted supports were chosen to help students better understand the planning process.

Use this note for the minilesson on p. T324.

ELL Targeted Support

HOW-TO BOOKS: GRAPHICS

Read a stack text with graphics aloud. Model for students how they can use visual support to enhance and confirm their understanding of the text they are listening to as you read it aloud.

Read aloud one step in a book and ask students to point to the graphic that supports the information. EMERGING

Tell students to work in pairs. Have one partner read aloud a step in a how-to book. The other partner listens and points to the graphic that relates to the text. Then the partners switch and follow the same process for a second step.

DEVELOPING

Read aloud two steps in a set of instructions. Ask students to talk about the visual support on each page. Do the visuals match the text? Did they learn anything new by looking at the visuals? EXPANDING

Read aloud three different steps from a set of directions. Provide students one graphic and ask them to discuss for which step it enhances or confirms their understanding. BRIDGING

See the online Language Awareness Handbook for additional writing support.

Use this note for the minilesson on p. T328.

ELL Targeted Support

GENERATE IDEAS

Students can use strategic learning techniques, such as concept mapping, drawing, or comparing and contrasting, by using graphic organizers. Graphic organizers can be a useful tool in generating or organizing ideas about a topic to help students learn vocabulary necessary for their writing.

Help students complete a KWL chart with ideas about things they already know how to do, want to learn how to do, and learned how to do after more research. EMERGING

Have students draw pictures of things they know how to do. Then have them choose one picture and describe it aloud to a partner.

DEVELOPING

Have students work with partners to talk about where they can get ideas for their how-to books. They can create a web graphic organizer to keep track of their ideas. EXPANDING

Have students work in small groups to present their ideas and give one another feedback. They can create a Venn diagram to compare their two best ideas and decide on the one to write about. BRIDGING

HOW-TO BOOK WRITING WORKSHOP

I can write a how-to book.

How-To Book
A how-to book is a procedural text. It gives directions on how to make or do something. It has:

- numbered steps in order.
- pictures that show what to do.

Building a Snowman

1. Roll a small, medium, and large snowball.
2. Stack the snowballs.
3. Add a face and buttons.
4. Add a hat and stick arms.

53

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Tell students that how-to books are procedural texts. Authors compose how-to books to tell readers how to do or make something. Authors compose how-to books by:

- writing a set of instructions, or directions.
- numbering the steps.
- including pictures to help readers understand what to do.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Tell students that they will be learning to compose how-to books over the next few days. Today, they will focus on the parts of a how-to book.

Direct students' attention to p. 53 in the Student Interactive. Explain that this is a how-to text. Read aloud the introduction and "Building a Snowman," making certain to read each numeral. After reading, explain: I can tell this is a how-to text because the author tells how to make something: a snowman. The author numbers the steps: 1, 2, 3, 4. The steps are shown in order. The author includes a picture that helps me understand how to make the snowman. Ask students to retell the steps in order.

Display a text from the stack. Read aloud the title. Ask: Does the title help you figure out the type of text? Then read the text aloud, pausing to discuss what the author did to compose the how-to book. Use these questions:

- What does this book explain how to do?
- How many steps does the author include?
- How do pictures help you understand the steps?

Independent Writing

I went to the bookstore, and my brother went to the grocery store.* Underline the word and and circle the comma in the last sentence. Point out that the last sentence is a compound sentence formed from the first two sentences.

How-to Books: Instructions

OBJECTIVES

Follow, restate, and give oral instructions that involve a short, related sequence of actions.

Recognize characteristics and structures of informational text.

Dictate or compose informational texts, including procedural texts.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT How-to books include instructions, or directions, that tell how to do or make something.

- Instructions are explained in order.
- Instructions are often numbered to show the order.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Read a book from the stack. Pause to ask students to name the topic, or what the author is explaining how to do or make. After reading, ask: What is the first step? Then what do you do? Continue until students have explained the instructions in order. Use pictures as a guide. Say: You just told me the instructions of this how-to book. Repeat the instructions using numbers and then sequence words and then ordinal words.

Read another stack text and work with students to retell the steps in order. Prompt them with questions, such as: What is the first step? How do you know? What is the next step? How do you know?

Then have partners take turns following, restating, and giving instructions for something they know how to do well, such as tying their shoes or snapping their fingers. Say: When you follow instructions, you do what the instructions say to do. When you restate them, you say them in your own words. When you give instructions, you tell someone else what to do.

Possible Teaching Point

Spelling | Spell Words with Long o Spelled oa, ow, oe

Remind students that some vowel teams can produce the long o sound:

- oa (boar, toast)
- ow (grow, snow)
- oe (toe, doe)

As you read and discuss texts from the stack, invite students to identify any words they notice that use these vowel teams to spell the long o sound. As students write their drafts, have them check that they are spelling long o words correctly.

How-To Book
A how-to book is a procedural text. It gives directions on how to make or do something. It has:

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT How-to books often have graphics, or pictures, to help the reader understand how to do or make something. These might be photographs, drawings, or diagrams.

- The author might include just one picture, if the one picture shows the details the reader needs to know.
- The author might include a picture for each step, to make it easier for the reader to understand how to complete the task.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Explain that graphics are very important in how-to books. A graphic can be a photograph, a drawing, or a diagram. Then direct students' attention to p. 53 in the Student Interactive. Say: There is one picture for this how-to text. The directions tell the reader the steps to take to complete the task. The picture shows the reader the completed task. The author includes the picture to show the reader how to do the steps. In the picture, the reader can see a small (point to the small snowball), a medium (point to the medium snowball), and a large (point to the large snowball) snowball. The reader can see how the snowballs are stacked. And the reader can see the face and buttons, as well as the sticks for arms. This picture helps the reader understand how to do the task: building a snowman.

Read aloud and display images in a book from the stack, explaining how each graphic helps the reader understand a step in the directions. Repeat with additional stack books until students show understanding.

Possible Teaching Point

Language & Conventions | Adverbs

Point out that remembering that some adverbs (for example, first, next, and then) tell when things happen can help students create their how-to books. Work with students to create a list of such adverbs. Then post the list in a prominent place. Encourage students to refer to the list as they plan and write the steps in their instructions.

Say: *Something that happens daily happens every day. Something that happens weekly happens every week. The words daily and weekly are adverbs of time that tell how often an action or event happens.*

MODEL AND PRACTICE To reinforce the instruction on adverbs of time, say and then write a simple story or series of steps with adverbs of time. Write the sentences on the board and invite students to underline the adverbs. As an adverb is identified, ask students whether it tells when, how often, in what order, or something else about the action.

54

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Before an author writes a how-to book, the author thinks of a topic, or what the book will be about. The topic must be something the author can make or do well. Good writers generate, or come up with, many ideas and then choose the best one.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Display the covers of some texts from the stack. Say: The authors of these books first had to think of ideas to write about. They came up with many ideas and then chose the best one.

Gather a large sheet of paper and say: *I want to think of ideas for a how-to book, so I am going to brainstorm. Brainstorming means that I write any ideas that pop into my head. None of these ideas are bad ideas. My goal is to come up with many ideas and then choose the one that will be the best topic for my book. Let's see. I am really good at planting flowers. Write planting flowers. Continue with other items such as: *writing, helping my brother, putting together shelves, making sandwiches, fixing broken things at home.

Model how to narrow your list down to one final idea to write about. Then say: I will keep all of my ideas because I can write a new book later.

Tell students to turn to p. 54 in the Student Interactive. Ask students to brainstorm ideas and write their ideas on the lines. Suggest these steps:

- Write ideas that name something you make or do well.
- Think about things you make or do at home, at school, or outside.
- Think about hobbies or things you are really proud of doing.

Plan Your How-to Book

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Authors make plans before they start writing a how-to book. They choose the topic. They plan the steps they will include for directions. One way to plan a first draft is to talk about ideas with others.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Hold up a book from the stack that you have already read as a group. Say: This author took time to plan this book before he or she started writing it. Maybe the author talked with a friend about his or her idea.

Direct students' attention to the directions on p. 55 in the Student Interactive. Say: We can use this list to help us plan our books with our Writing Clubs.

Tell students that you chose a topic to write about during brainstorming: planting flowers. Model how to plan your book using the numbered list in the Student Interactive. Say: I have already completed number 1. I have decided to write about how to plant a flower. Now, I need to tell the steps in order. First, I need to make a hole and then put a flower in it. Then I push the soil around the roots. Finally, I water it. For graphics, or pictures, I'm going to show how big the hole should be. Now I will find out if any of you have questions about my plan. Allow students to ask questions and answer them in complete sentences. Now I will listen to others share their how-to book plans. Point out that this is the procedure students will use when they tell their ideas in Writing Club.

WRITING CLUB

What's Happening This Week? In this week's Writing Club, students will share their ideas for their how-to books.

As students are in new Writing Club groups, they should spend the first 5–10 minutes in their groups discussing the following:

- The importance of speaking loudly and clearly
- The importance of asking relevant questions
- The role of the audience when someone is reading aloud

What Are We Sharing? Tell students they should share their plans for their how-to books using the directions on p. 55 in the Student Interactive.

How Do We Get Started? Conversation Starters

Use these prompts to help students begin the discussions in their Writing Club.

- How did you decide to write about ____?
- How did you learn to do or make ____ well?
- What is the first step you will write? Why is it important for you to tell this step first?
- What is the last step you will write? Why is it important for you to tell this step last?
- How will the pictures you draw help readers understand the directions?

Adverbs
Adverbs are words that tell about verbs. They say when or how often something happens.

MY TURN Underline the adverbs that tell when or how often.

- In the winter it can snow daily.
- The sun was shining yesterday.
- It is cold now.
- In some places it's always cold.
- It's never hot in the winter.

MY TURN Use one of the underlined adverbs in a sentence.

Possible response: I check daily for snow in the winter.

Conferences

Mentor STACK

During this time, assess for understanding of the elements of how-to books, including introduction, conclusion, instructions, and graphics, to gauge where students might need support in their writing. Have stacks and minilessons available to reference during the conferences.

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT

Conference Prompts

Introduction and Conclusion

If students need additional support,

 Then review an introduction and conclusion from a stack text.

If students show understanding,

Then ask: What will you write in your introduction to make sure readers will be interested in reading the rest of your book?

Instructions

If students need additional support,

 Then prompt them with questions such as: What do you do first? What do you do next?

If students show understanding,

Then ask: How will you make sure each step you write is important?

Simple Graphics

If students need additional support,

 Then review a graphic from a stack book and ask students to describe it.

If students show understanding,

Then ask: Are there any places in your book where you could use a different kind of graphic, like a photograph or a diagram?

Conference Support for ELL

EMERGING

- Ask yes/no questions about students' ideas for instructions and graphics.
- Have students use their home language to describe a graphic for their how-to book.

DEVELOPING

- Discuss the materials needed for students' how-to topics.
- Use modeled writing to help students develop clear instructions.

EXPANDING

- Discuss students' steps and the way their graphics might make the steps clearer.
- Use guided writing to help students develop clear steps.

BRIDGING

- Discuss students' ideas for written steps, as well as supporting graphics.
- Use guided writing to help students develop clear steps and clear details in graphics.

ELL Minilesson Support

Week 2: Develop Elements

During the Develop Elements week, your ELLs will benefit from additional writing support that helps them understand the importance of instructions and graphics in how-to books. These targeted supports were chosen to help students better understand how to use these elements in their own writing.

Use this note for the minilesson on p. T348.

ELL Targeted Support

APPLY INSTRUCTIONS

Use the following support to guide students in writing instructions with a variety of sentence lengths and increasing accuracy.

Help students write phrases or short sentences to show the steps in planting a tree. Guide students to add words to increase some sentence lengths. EMERGING

Have students work together to write short but complete sentences that describe a process, such as tying their shoes or making a sandwich. DEVELOPING

Have students work in small groups to write the steps to do something, such as playing a game they know well. Challenge them to add details to their explanations. EXPANDING

Have students write out steps for doing something, such as preparing for a presentation.

Challenge individual students to vary the lengths of their sentences by adding details that tell why each step is important and in what order the steps should be completed.

BRIDGING

See the online Language Awareness Handbook for additional writing support.

Use this note for the minilesson on p. T356.

ELL Targeted Support

APPLY SIMPLE GRAPHICS

Discuss how-to texts the students have read. Help students practice speaking about simple graphics and other visual media to build or reinforce concepts.

Guide students to draw their own graphic for a step in a stack text. Ask them to explain why they made the picture. EMERGING

Provide simple graphics and ask students to describe what the graphics show. Have them draw their own graphic and discuss with a partner how the picture explains something. DEVELOPING

Have student pairs read a short paragraph together. Ask them to work together to create a graphic that supports the text. Students should explain how they decided on that picture. EXPANDING

Have students analyze the use of graphics in a stack text by identifying each graphic and explaining how it helps them understand the book. Then provide a step or two of instructions and have students create graphics to support the text. BRIDGING

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT A how-to book includes an introduction and a conclusion. An introduction is at the beginning of the book. It introduces the topic of the writing. A conclusion is at the end of the book. It provides a sense of closure and summarizes what the book was about.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Select a book from the stack that has a strong introduction and conclusion. Read the introduction and use the following questions to lead a discussion:

- What information does the author include in the introduction?
- How does the author introduce what the book is about?
- What kinds of words does the author use to get readers to want to know more?

Then read aloud the conclusion and ask students to discuss the following:

- How can you tell you are reading the conclusion?
- What information does the author include in the conclusion?
- How does the author provide a sense of closure, or an ending that is clear and connects to the rest of the book?

Read aloud the directions at the top of p. 91 in the Student Interactive. Model writing a strong introduction for a how-to book about growing plants: You can have a beautiful garden when you know how to plant a flower.

Then have students complete the activity on p. 91 in the Student Interactive by writing an introduction and a conclusion to tell how to make a bed.

FOCUS ON INTRODUCTIONS AND CONCLUSIONS

- Students should begin independent writing. Have them compose an introduction and conclusion for their how-to books.

WRITING SUPPORT

- Modeled Choose a stack text and conduct a Think Aloud to model what makes the introduction and conclusion effective.
- Shared Have students choose a stack text. Prompt them to explain why the introduction is strong.
- Guided Use the stack texts to provide explicit instruction on elements that make an introduction strong in a how-to text.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

See the Conference Prompts on p. T338.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT The main part of a how-to book is the instructions. Instructions are the steps, in order, that tell how to do or make something. The steps in the instructions often begin with a verb, or action word. Authors can use numbers or sequence words to show the steps in order.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Read aloud a book from the stack. Ask students to identify verbs in the steps. Ask: Why are the verbs important in each step? What do verbs tell readers? Draw attention to any sequence words or numbers that come before the steps. Use the following questions to discuss the instructions in the stack text:

- What do you notice about the order of the steps?
- Why do you think the author chose to start the instructions with that first step?
- What kinds of words does the author use? Why?
- How does the author make sure the instructions are clear and in order?
- What details does the author include?
- Do you think you can do or make what the author is telling about?

Possible Teaching Point

Writing Process

Drafting | Writing Clear Instructions

Students should be working at making their instructions clear.

Remind students that

- sequence words (or numbers) help show the clear order of “how-to” steps
- well-chosen verbs help make the action needed in each step clear
- sequence words and verbs usually come at the beginning of most “how-to” sentences

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT How-to books include instructions, or steps that tell how to make or do something. The author uses verbs and many details so that a reader can easily follow the steps, which are written in order using sequence words. Authors use specific and relevant details, or details that are exact and on the topic.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Use a text from the stack to explain how an author writes instructions. Read aloud the first step and ask: What makes this a good first step? What does the author use in this sentence to make it clear what needs to be done first? What specific, or exact, details does the author include?

Continue with each step, guiding students to understand that the author uses clear verbs, relevant details, and sequence words or numbers to keep the instructions in order.

Say: Now you will practice saying and following instructions. You can use sequence words to say steps in order. Write sequence words for students to reference. Have partners take turns following, restating, and giving oral instructions that involve a short, related sequence of actions, such as how to put on a coat. Say: When you follow instructions, you do what the instructions say to do. When you restate instructions, you say them back in your own words. When you give instructions, you tell what to do or make.

Allow time for partners to follow, restate, and give instructions.

Have students complete the activity on p. 92 in the Student Interactive.

Possible Teaching Point

Language & Conventions | Transitions and Conjunctions

Remind students that transitions and conjunctions play an important part in instructions. Review that

- both conjunctions and transitions connect ideas
- connecting words also can show a relationship between ideas (such as steps in a process)

Ask students to review their drafts and identify places where they might add transitions or conjunctions to make their instructions clearer.

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Authors of how-to texts often use graphics, or pictures or drawings, to support the steps in their instructions. Authors can use graphics to illustrate each step in the instructions.

- Authors include pictures that show more details about the steps.
- Authors include pictures that help make the steps clearer and easier to follow.
- Authors sometimes include labels for the graphics.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Read aloud a book from the stack that has effective graphics and labels that add detail and provide clarification for steps in a process. Read aloud the entire book. Then return to read aloud each step and discuss the graphic that supports the step. Use the following questions to prompt discussion about each image in the book:

- What does the picture show?
- How does the picture help make the step clearer?
- Is there a label? Why is the label useful?
- Why do you think the author decided to include this picture in the book?

Possible Teaching Point

Spelling | Spell Long i Words

Remind students that when the letters igh appear in a word,

- the letters spell a long i sound
- the gh letters are silent

Develop drafts in oral, pictorial, or written form by developing an idea with specific and relevant details.

Add drawings or other visuals to descriptions when appropriate to clarify ideas.

Read Together WRITING WORKSHOP

Create Simple Graphics

How-to books use simple graphics to give more details about the instructions. Simple graphics are pictures or drawings that can have labels.

MY TURN Read the step. Then draw a simple graphic that adds details to the writing. Add a label.

1. Fill a bucket with water.

Possible response: Drawing can show a kid filling a bucket with a hose. Label could be hose or bucket.

MY TURN Include simple graphics as you develop your draft for your how-to book.

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT When authors write how-to books, they often include graphics, or pictures, to help make the instructions clear. Authors can use graphics to show more complicated or new steps. Graphics can accompany each step, or they can show the final product.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Display texts from the stack that use graphics to support the steps. Read aloud the step or steps that connect to the graphic. Ask: Why did the author choose to include a graphic here? How does the graphic support the instructions? Is there a different graphic the author could use?

Model how to decide on what graphics to include in a how-to book. Say the following as you write the step: I am writing a how-to book about how to make bread. Here is a step from my book: Gather all the tools. And here is my picture. Sketch the following: bowl, spoon, measuring cup. You can see how my picture shows more about this step. My picture shows what the tools are. I'll add labels. Write bowl, spoon, and cup beneath each picture. Say: Graphics are a very important part of how-to books. When you write your own book, make sure you include graphics that give more details about each step. The graphics should include relevant details, or details that are about the topic.

Direct students to complete p. 93 in the Student Interactive.

WRITING CLUB

Have students gather with their Writing Club groups. See p. T357 for details about how students should act during Writing Club. See the Conference Prompts on p. T338.

Share Back

Ask a few students to share their graphics and explain how the graphics add details to the steps.

WRITING CLUB

What's Happening This Week? In this week's Writing Club, students will share their steps in a process and their supporting graphics with labels.

Students should spend the first 5–10 minutes in their groups reviewing the following:

- What makes a question relevant
- How to make appropriate contributions
- What rules of discussion the group should follow

What Are We Sharing? Prior to sharing their ideas, students should determine which element of a how-to book they would like feedback on in today's Writing Club. Do they want feedback on their introduction, conclusion, instructions, or graphics? Students should inform their Writing Club of the element before they begin reading their how-to books. This will help direct the group's focus as students are sharing their writing.

How Do We Get Started? Conversation Starters

Use these prompts to help students begin the discussions in their Writing Club.

- Why did you include ____ in your introduction?
- Can you add more details to this step in the instructions?
- How did you decide which details to include in your drawings?
- I like that you ____.

Conferences

Mentor STACK

During this time, assess for understanding of introductions, numbered steps, conclusions, and graphics in how-to books to gauge where students may need support in their writing. Have stacks and minilessons available to reference during the conferences.

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT

Conference Prompts

Organize with Structure

If students need additional support,

 Then read a procedural text from the stack together, identifying its introduction, ordered steps, and conclusion.

If students show understanding,

Then ask: Why did you put this step first in your how-to book?

Steps in a Process

If students need additional support,

 Then prompt them with questions, such as: What step comes first? What step comes next?

If students show understanding,

Then ask: Are any steps missing in your book? Are any steps not needed?

Features and Simple Graphics

If students need additional support,

 Then review the student's how-to book and model drawing a simple graphic based on a step.

If students show understanding,

Then ask: What additional information can the reader learn by looking at this graphic?

Conference Support for ELL

EMERGING

- Tell the steps in a process using objects as visual aids. Make sure you begin and end with statements that introduce the process and provide closure.
- Provide students with a graphic from a procedural text. Allow them to describe the graphic in their home language.

DEVELOPING

- Read a procedural text together. Ask questions to guide students in summarizing its introduction, ordered steps, and conclusion.
- Use modeled writing to help students draw a simple graphic based on a step described in a procedural text.

EXPANDING

- Read aloud a procedural text. Have students copy the steps in their own words, including numbers.
- Provide students with a blank, numbered worksheet. Have students fill in the steps of a familiar process.

BRIDGING

- Have students read a grade-level procedural text, and then identify the elements of its structure.
- Use guided writing to help students correctly order and number steps in a process.
- Invite students to think aloud and describe a graphic in a procedural text.

Reading-Writing Workshop Bridge

While conferring with students, refer back to the Bridge minilessons on word choice and prepositions.

ELL Minilesson Support

Week 3: Develop Structure

During the Develop Structure week, ELLs will benefit from additional writing support that expands their understanding of the structure of procedural text. These targeted supports were chosen to help students incorporate that structure into their own how-to books.

See the online Language Awareness Handbook for additional writing support.

Use this note for the minilesson on p. T368.

ELL Targeted Support

EXPLORE STEPS IN A PROCESS

Remind students that good writers use time-order words to describe the steps in a process. Display the words first, next, last where students can see them. Students will write using content-based, grade-level vocabulary, such as time-order words.

Provide students with three simple graphics that show the steps in a process, such as making a sandwich. Ask students to label the steps of the process with time-order words. EMERGING

Provide a small group with sentence strips that each state a step of a simple process. Have students order the steps and then write them in order, using the appropriate time-order words. DEVELOPING

Have students in pairs write the steps of a procedural text together, using the correct time-order words. EXPANDING

Have students work in small groups to write a model how-to book about something they already know how to do. Remind them to use time-order words correctly. BRIDGING

Use this note for the minilesson on p. T376.

ELL Targeted Support

EXPLORE FEATURES AND SIMPLE GRAPHICS

Help students write or draw to explain graphics and other features with increasing specificity and detail.

Model for students how to write and draw to explain the visual elements of a stack text. Then guide students to add details to your work.

EMERGING

Have students practice explaining the visual elements of a stack text by writing or drawing with a partner. Guide them to add details to each other's work. DEVELOPING

Provide pairs of students with a graphic that shows how to complete the step in a process. Have them add details by writing or drawing to explain the graphic with increasing specificity.

EXPANDING

Provide small groups of students with examples of how-to books from the stack. Have them write or draw to explain the process with specific and relevant details. BRIDGING

HOW-TO BOOK Read Together WRITING WORKSHOP

I can write a how-to book. My Learning Goal

Organize with Structure
Authors organize the structure of their how-to books. They include an introduction, steps in order, and a conclusion.

MY TURN Organize the text. Circle the introduction. Highlight the steps. Underline the conclusion.

Soon your plant will start to grow!
I will show you how to grow a plant.
Plant a seed in a pot of soil. Then water the soil.
Next, place the pot in a sunny spot.

MY TURN Develop your how-to draft by organizing the structure.

127

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Authors organize the structure of their how-to books by beginning with an introduction, stating the steps in order, and ending with a conclusion.

- An introduction introduces, or presents, what the book will be about.
- The steps tell the order of how to do or make something.
- A conclusion tells a summary of the book.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Say: Today I will teach you how to develop the draft of your how-to book by organizing with structure. Hold up a text from the stack. Explain that authors use a structure when writing their how-to books. Point out the introduction of the text. Say: The introduction comes in the beginning of the text. It explains what the reader will do or make.

Point out the ordered steps. Say: The main part of the text describes the steps. The author writes steps in order so readers know what to do first, next, and last.

Point out the conclusion. Say: At the end of the text, the author writes a conclusion. The conclusion is a summary of the process.

Direct students to p. 127 in the Student Interactive and read the instructions. Then say: Let's work together to organize this draft. The introduction comes first. Which sentence is the introduction? The steps in the process come next. Which sentences are the steps? Finally, the conclusion comes last. Which sentence is the conclusion? Now, we have put this draft in order! You can do the same when you develop your own how-to book.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

FOCUS ON STRUCTURE

- During independent writing time, students should continue to develop the drafts of their how-to books by organizing with structure.

WRITING SUPPORT

- Modeled Choose a stack text and do a Think Aloud to model identifying the introduction and conclusion.
- Shared Have partners choose a stack text. Prompt them to take turns reading the steps in order.
- Guided Use the stack texts to provide explicit instruction on how to write an introduction, ordered steps, and a conclusion.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

See the Conference Prompts on p. T362.

APPLY Have students write the following sentences: Later they ate lunch and went to class. Then they were cold, so they put on their coats.

Ask students to underline the conjunctions and circle the transition words in both sentences. (underline and, so; circle Later, Then)

OBJECTIVES

Edit drafts using standard English conventions.

Use frequently occurring conjunctions.

ELL Targeted Support

Connecting Words Tell students they can use connecting words, such as transitions and conjunctions, to combine phrases and sentences.

Write these sentences: Bill likes to read. Jen likes to write. Invite pairs to join the two sentences using a connecting word. Then have them write the new sentence. EMERGING

Have students combine two of the following sentences using a grade-appropriate connecting word: I have a cat. You have a cat. Elena has one fish. Marco has two fish. Ask students to circle the conjunctions. DEVELOPING

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT When authors write the steps of a process, they often use numbers to show the order of steps. They can also use sequence words to show the steps, such as first, then, next, and last.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Hold up a text from the stack. Point out the numbered steps. Explain that authors use numbers to show the order of steps when describing a process. Read the text, pausing to emphasize the connection between numbers and ordered steps. Ask: Why do authors use numbers? How do numbers help readers understand a process? Discuss answers, reinforcing how numbers show order so that readers know what to do.

Use another stack text to write a list of steps on the board. However, write them out of order and do not include numbers.

Say: Today we will learn how to organize the steps in a process. Let's put these steps in order. What happens first? Have students name the step that comes first. Write a 1 next to it. Continue the routine, asking what comes next and last. Refer back to the stack text to check the order.

Possible Teaching Point

Language & Conventions | Prepositions

Explain that a preposition

- is a word such as in, above, into, with, or beside
- shows how the noun that follows it is related to some other word in the sentence
- can give readers information about time, place, direction, or movement

Invite students to identify prepositions in the steps in the text that you discuss. Remind students to include prepositions in their drafts to help make their steps clearer.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

FOCUS ON STEPS IN A PROCESS

- Have students transition to independent writing to work on their own how-to books. Tell them to focus on the steps in the process they are writing about.

WRITING SUPPORT

- Modeled Choose a stack text and do a Think Aloud to model identifying the order of steps.
- Shared Read a stack text aloud. Write a list of numbers (e.g., 1, 2, 3). Have students cite what information should go with each number.
- Guided Use stack texts to provide explicit instruction on how numbers show order of steps.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

- If students show understanding of using steps, have them review their writing to check the order and completeness of the steps.
- If students struggle, have them write the numbers first and then say each step aloud before writing it.

See the Conference Prompts on p. T362.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Read the following sentence aloud: We work at school. Then say: The noun school follows the preposition at. The preposition at shows that school is where we work.

Guide students to determine the preposition of the following sentence: The ball flew over the fence. (over)

APPLY Have students play a game in small groups. Students should sit in a circle, facing the other members of their group. Students will take turns discussing a topic (e.g., favorite seasons). HOW-TO BOOK Read Together

Steps in a Process
Authors often use numbers to write the steps of their how-to books in order.

- Buy a birdfeeder.
- Pour seeds into the birdfeeder.

MY TURN Draw a line to match each step to the correct number so that the steps are in order.

Planting a Seed

128

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Remind students that a how-to book is a procedural text. Authors often compose how-to books that include numbered steps to help readers understand the order of steps they need to take to complete a process. Authors often use numbers in a how-to book in order to make the steps clear.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Read aloud the steps from a stack text. Then read the steps using numbers before each step. Ask: How do the numbers help you follow the steps? Are the numbers necessary? Explain how numbers help readers understand the order of steps. Provide students with the steps needed to pour a glass of milk.

- Choose a cup.
- Open the carton.
- Fill the cup.

Ask: What comes first? What comes second? What comes third or last?

Discuss how it makes sense to put steps in order and that it doesn't make sense to fill a cup without choosing one first. As a class, come up with three similar steps and write them in numbered steps.

Direct students to complete the activity on p. 128 in the Student Interactive. Then say: We have learned how to organize our drafts by putting the steps in order. When you write your own book, make sure you put the steps in order using numbers and sequence words.

Possible Teaching Point

Spelling | Spell Words with Vowel Teams ue, ew, ui

Remind students that some vowel teams can produce the long u sound:

- ue* (clue, glue)
- ew* (threw, crew)
- ui* (fruit, juice)

As you read and discuss steps from a stack text, invite students to identify words that use these vowel teams to spell the long u sound. As they write their drafts, have students check that they are spelling long u words correctly.

Independent Writing

FOCUS ON ORDERING STEPS

- During independent writing time, students should continue working on their how-to book drafts.

WRITING SUPPORT

- Modeled Do a Think Aloud to model how to add numbers to a list of ordered steps.
- Shared Have partners work together where one student reads the steps of a process aloud while the other copies the steps in numerical order.
- Guided Provide explicit instruction on how to write steps in numerical order.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

- Have students locate places in their drafts where they could use numbers to order the steps.

See the Conference Prompts on p. T362.

TEACHING POINT Authors include graphics, or photos and drawings, with their procedural texts to help readers understand how to follow the steps.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Hold up a text from the stack. Read the title. Identify its accompanying graphic. Explain that graphics help readers follow steps. When an author organizes a how-to book, he or she makes sure that there is a graphic to help explain the steps or the overall process. The graphics should support the words.

Read the first step, and then display the graphic on the page. Ask: What does this graphic show? How does this graphic help you understand the step?

Repeat the above routine with additional pages from the book. Finally, read aloud the steps from another procedural stack text. Have students work in pairs to come up with ideas for a graphic that supports a particular step. Have students each sketch the graphic and then compare and contrast their graphics.

Possible Teaching Point

Writing Process

Drafting | Considering Word Choice

Explain to students that words that appeal to the readers' senses are important in all kinds of writing—including “how-to” writing. Sensory words can help readers “see” the steps in a process. As students write, urge them to choose sensory words. Also remind students that they will have time to review their word choices when they revise their drafts.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

FOCUS ON GRAPHICS

- During independent writing time, students should make sure they have drawn graphics to go along with each step. They should make sure the graphics match what is written in the text on each page.

WRITING SUPPORT

- Modeled Read a stack text and do a Think Aloud to model identifying how to connect its graphic to the text.
- Shared Have students choose a stack text. Prompt students to identify how a graphic supports a step in a process.
- Guided Use the stack texts to provide explicit instruction on how graphics help describe a step in a process.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

- Then students can continue writing and drawing their how-to books.

See the Conference Prompts on p. T362.

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Authors include graphics, or photos and drawings, with their procedural texts to help readers understand how to follow the steps.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Display a text from the stack. Ask students to help you point out all of the pages on which a graphic appears, including the cover. Say: Authors organize their books by putting words and pictures on each page. They make sure the pictures match what is said in the text. When you organize your own books, make sure you have graphics in all the places they should be. Also make sure those graphics match what is said in the text.

Next, return to the book you are holding and choose one of its steps that is supported by a graphic. Read the step but do not display the graphic. Call on students to suggest graphics that could help readers understand it.

Model drawing a simple graphic to support the instruction in the step. Have students spend a few minutes drawing their own simple graphic. Then call on students to share their graphic. Ask students to explain why they chose that graphic. Lastly, display the author's graphic. Discuss how the author's graphic compares and contrasts with students' graphics.

Explain that students should draw graphics on their cover and on each page of their books. When they organize their books, they should make sure each graphic matches the text on the page.

Direct students to complete the activity on p. 129 in the Student Interactive.

What's Happening This Week? In this week's Writing Club, students will discuss how they can apply the structure of procedural texts to their own how-to books.

Students should spend the first 5–10 minutes in their groups reviewing the following:

- How to fully listen while others are sharing
- Process for taking turns during discussions
- How to respectfully suggest feedback

What Are We Sharing? Inform students that they will read their how-to books. Their classmates should offer feedback on introductions, numbered steps, and conclusions and how to include graphics that will help readers understand the processes they've written about.

How Do We Get Started? Conversation Starters

Use these prompts to help students begin the discussions in their Writing Club.

- Why did you choose that graphic?
- I'm not sure which step that graphic goes with.
- Could you add any more information to your introduction?
- Why is your conclusion a good ending for your book?
- Which step comes first, second, third . . . ?

Conference Support for ELL

EMERGING

- Ask students questions that they can answer with adverbs that convey time. Accept single word responses.
- Model inflection for declarative, interrogative, and exclamatory sentences.

DEVELOPING

- Use modeled writing to help students add prepositions and adverbs that convey time to their texts.
- Use a graphic organizer to help students understand declarative, interrogative, and exclamatory sentence types.

EXPANDING

- Have students copy a list of common prepositions.
- Use guided writing to help students use adverbs and end punctuation.

BRIDGING

- Supply students with a list of common prepositions and a list of nouns. Have them write sentences that pair various prepositions and nouns.
- Invite students to use adverbs to discuss real-life experiences.
- Provide students with sentence strips and ask them to form declarative, interrogative, and exclamatory sentences with the correct choice of punctuation.

Reading-Writing Workshop Bridge

While conferring with students, refer back to the Bridge minilessons on word choice and prepositional phrases.

ELL Minilesson Support

Week 4: Writer's Craft

During the Writer's Craft week, ELLs will benefit from additional support on how to correctly use prepositions, adverbs, and end punctuation when they write. These targeted supports were chosen to help students better understand and use prepositions and end punctuation.

Use this note for the minilesson on p. T388.

ELL Targeted Support

PREPOSITIONS

Students can learn new language structures by listening for specific information during classroom instruction.

Discuss common prepositions and their meanings. Then use the prepositions in oral instructions for students to follow to demonstrate their understanding. For example, ask students to put a book on the table.

EMERGING

Act out the steps of a procedure. Call attention to the prepositions you used in your instruction, and have students copy them in a personal vocabulary journal. DEVELOPING

Read aloud a stack text with prepositions. Have students identify the prepositions they hear and then discuss what the words mean.

EXPANDING

Have students create a list of prepositions and prepositional phrases they hear in the classroom. As time allows, ask them to draw pictures to help them learn the meanings.

BRIDGING

See the online Language Awareness Handbook for additional writing support.

Use this note for the minilesson on p. T400.

ELL Targeted Support

EXPLORE PUNCTUATION MARKS

Students can employ increasingly complex grammatical structures in their writing by understanding proper use of punctuation marks.

Read sentences from a stack text, modeling the proper intonation for declarative, interrogative, and exclamatory sentences. Help students to write the appropriate punctuation for each sentence. Have them apply this knowledge to write their own sentences. EMERGING

Provide student pairs with sentence frames, and have them write a period, question mark, or exclamation mark to end each sentence.

DEVELOPING

Have student pairs work together to create a chart that displays the structures of the declarative, interrogative, and exclamatory sentences they have written. EXPANDING

Have students use their knowledge of punctuation marks to write sentences with different grammatical structures. BRIDGING

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, p. 169

The screenshot shows a page from a student interactive. At the top, it says 'HOW-TO BOOK' and 'WRITING WORKSHOP'. There are icons for 'Read Together' and 'My Learning Goal'. The main heading is 'Edit for Prepositions'. Below it, a paragraph explains that authors use prepositions to show relationships between nouns or pronouns. A sample sentence is provided: 'You need to spread the materials on the floor.' A 'MY TURN' section asks students to edit sentences by replacing underlined words with prepositions from a box containing 'on', 'for', and 'below'. Three numbered tasks are listed: 1. 'Grab the leaves after the tree.' with 'below' written above. 2. 'Find a jar in the leaves.' with 'for' written above. 3. 'Draw the leaves off the pages.' with 'on' written above. A final 'MY TURN' prompt asks students to edit their how-to book for prepositions. The page number '169' is in the bottom right corner.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT A preposition is a word that shows a relationship between a noun or pronoun and another word in a sentence. Some prepositions are above, beside, by, down, to, through, in, and over.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Say: Authors use prepositions in a sentence to connect a noun or pronoun to another part of a sentence. Listen to this sentence: The student sits at the table. The word at is the preposition. It tells us where the student sits: at the table.

Explain that when authors edit how-to books, they make sure they used prepositions correctly. They also look for places to add prepositions to make the steps clearer. Say: If a how-to book says Use glue, you might wonder how you should use the glue. So an author might edit the sentence to say Use glue on the craft stick. Now readers will know what to do with the glue.

Read aloud a text from the stack. Pause to identify prepositions as you read. Have students discuss which parts of the sentence are connected by the preposition. Create a list of the prepositions for students to refer to as they write.

Direct students to p. 169 in the Student Interactive. Say: Today I will teach you to edit a sentence for the correct use of prepositions. Let's read the first sentence together: Grab the leaves after the tree. The word after is not correct. Which preposition should we replace it with to describe the relationship between the leaves and the tree? That's right, we will replace it with the word below. Have students complete the activity.

Explore Adverbs That Convey Time

OBJECTIVE

Edit drafts using standard English conventions, including adverbs that convey time.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT An adverb is a word that modifies, or describes, a verb, an adjective, or another adverb. Adverbs that convey time tell how often or when something happens.

- Adverbs that tell how often: monthly, regularly, usually, never
- Adverbs that tell when: early, today, later, first, now

MODEL AND PRACTICE Explain that verbs tell what is happening in a sentence, and adverbs can tell when it is happening. Say: Adverbs can convey time in a sentence—they show when something happens.

Read aloud sentences from stack texts that include adverbs that convey time. Write the sentences. For additional practice, include the following sentences:

- You can add the buttons later.
- Let the paint dry today.
- The kids never take the bus.

Read aloud each sentence. For each example, ask a when question, such as: When can you add the buttons? When should you let the paint dry? When do the kids take the bus? As students answer, underline the adverbs in the sentences. Say: Authors edit their how-to books for adverbs to help readers know when to do something in a step.

Possible Teaching Point

Revising and Editing | Reviewing Multiple Times

Tell students that it often is a good idea for them to review their writing several times, focusing on something different each time. Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Authors edit their writing to make sure adverbs are used correctly. Adverbs are words that modify verbs, adjectives, or other adverbs. Adverbs that convey time tell when or how often something happens. In a procedural text, adverbs can help readers know when to do something.

- Adverbs that tell how often: monthly, regularly, usually, never
- Adverbs that tell when: early, today, later, first, now

MODEL AND PRACTICE Find a sentence in a stack text that includes an adverb that conveys time. Write the sentence on the board but omit the adverb. Call on students to suggest possible adverbs. Discuss how adverbs can tell readers when to do something, and without adverbs a reader does not have enough information.

Direct students to p. 170 in the Student Interactive. Read the top of the page together. Then say: Today I will teach you to edit a draft for the correct use of adverbs. Look at this sentence. On the board, copy the sample sentence: We will help rake the leaves. Say: This sentence doesn't say when we will rake the leaves. We will edit the sentence by adding an adverb at the end. Have students suggest possible adverbs. Write the adverbs on the board and read the sentence again using each one. Finally, have students choose a word from the bank on p. 170 to complete the sentence. Have them complete the page, editing each sentence by adding an adverb.

TEACHING POINT Every sentence ends with a punctuation mark.

- Declarative sentences end with a period.
- Interrogative sentences end with a question mark.
- Exclamatory sentences end with an exclamation mark.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Use a stack text to explore punctuation marks. Find examples of declarative sentences, interrogative sentences, and exclamatory sentences. Point to and name the punctuation marks. Ask students to use the punctuation marks to identify the types of sentences. Ask:

- Why does an author use different types of sentences?

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Authors edit their writing to check that the punctuation marks are correct. They look for:

- Periods at the ends of declarative sentences.
- Question marks at the ends of interrogative sentences.
- Exclamation marks at the ends of exclamatory sentences.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Find examples of each type of sentence in a text from the stack. Display each sentence and ask: Why does this sentence use a period/question mark/exclamation point?

Discuss answers, reviewing each type of sentence. Have students work together to edit the end punctuation on the same sentences, and discuss the different effects.

Direct students to p. 171 in the Student Interactive and have them edit for punctuation marks.

Then have students refer to their own how-to books. Prompt them to edit their drafts for punctuation marks by asking:

- Did you use question marks when you wrote questions?
- Did you use exclamation marks when you wanted to show excitement?
- Did you use a period when you were making a statement?
- Did you use a variety of punctuation marks? If not, edit your drafts to incorporate some different marks to make your book more interesting.

Edit for Spelling

OBJECTIVE

Edit drafts using standard English conventions, including correct spelling of words with grade-appropriate orthographic patterns and rules and high-frequency words with adult assistance.

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, p. 207

The screenshot shows a page from a 'HOW-TO BOOK' titled 'WRITING WORKSHOP'. At the top, it says 'I can write a how-to book.' and 'My Learning Goal'. The main heading is 'Edit for Spelling'. Below it, a paragraph explains that authors edit or fix spelling in their writing. An example sentence is 'I am seven years old!' with 'seven' underlined. A 'MY TURN' section asks students to underline misspelled words in three sentences: 'It is hot tooday.', 'We can plaiy games outside.', and 'Should we put on a cooat?'. The words 'today', 'play', and 'coat' are shown with dotted lines for correction. A final 'MY TURN' section asks students to use spelling patterns and rules to edit their own how-to book. The page number '207' is in the bottom right corner.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Authors are careful to check the spelling of all the words in their writing. When words are spelled incorrectly, it makes it hard for readers to understand and enjoy the writing. Authors use spelling patterns and rules to help figure out if words are spelled correctly.

- Many words follow spelling rules and patterns.
- Some common words that do not follow a pattern are move, once, because, today, through, and picture.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Explain that authors make sure to spell words correctly. Say: Spelling patterns and rules help us know how to spell many words. A spelling pattern is when a certain letter or group of letters makes the same sound in many different words. A spelling rule helps you remember how to spell a word. The rule is usually true but has exceptions. Other words don't follow a rule or pattern.

Read through a stack text and identify words that follow a spelling pattern, such as long vowel CVCe words, and words that follow a spelling rule, such as final /k/ is most often spelled ck. Point out any high-frequency words.

Direct students to p. 207 in the Student Interactive. Read through the instruction and the first example to help students understand how to edit their writing. Then have them complete the activity.

Independent Writing

FOCUS ON SPELLING

- During independent writing time, have students review all of the books they have written in this unit and choose the one they would like to publish.
- Today they should edit their how-to books by correcting the spelling of high-frequency words and words with spelling patterns and rules. Provide assistance as needed.

WRITING SUPPORT

- Modeled Choose a stack text and do a Think Aloud to model identifying spelling patterns.
- Shared Have partners work together to look up words in a dictionary.
- Guided Provide explicit instruction on how to identify spelling patterns in students' writing.

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT A preposition is a word that shows a relationship between a noun or pronoun and another word in a sentence. Authors edit for prepositions to help make their writing clear for readers.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Use a stack text to identify prepositions and how they show a relationship between the noun or pronoun and the rest of the sentence.

Draw or display a picture of a tree on the board. Write the prepositions over, on, under, beside, down, and in. Call on students to brainstorm sentences that use a preposition and the tree, such as: A bird flew over the tree. A squirrel runs on a branch. A girl lies under the tree, and so on.

Say: When you edit your writing, you will make sure that you have used prepositions correctly. First you can find each preposition you used, and then decide if it is used correctly. If it is not, find a preposition that is a better fit for the sentence.

Direct students to p. 208 in the Student Interactive. Read the top of the page, and then copy the first sentence on the board. Say: Today I will teach you to edit for prepositions. Let's read this sentence together: I am scared from spiders. Which word is a preposition? Underline the word from. Is this the correct preposition to use in this sentence? No, it is not. We need to edit this sentence. Which word should go here instead? Model how to cross out the word from, and listen to suggestions from students. Read the sentence aloud again using the words that students suggest. Model how to decide on and write the correct word, of, above the crossed-out word.

Possible Teaching Point

Language & Conventions | Commas in Dates and Sentences

Remind students that a comma is a way to separate items in writing. A comma can separate parts of sentences, parts of dates, and items in a series (list). After students edit their how-to books for correct choice of prepositions, urge them also to review their comma usage, especially if their writing includes items in a series.

Prepare for Celebration

OBJECTIVE

Publish and share writing.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT When authors prepare for a celebration, they make decisions about how they will publish and present their final writing. It is important to make a final version of the writing before sharing.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Explain to students that as they prepare for the celebration, they will make sure to revise their how-to books one final time and decide how they will publish and share them with the class.

Display a text from the stack. Guide a brief discussion about what the author had to do to prepare his or her writing for celebration. Ask: How does the author share his or her writing?

Say: As you edit your how-to books one last time, ask yourself:

- Have I used interesting details?
- Have I written easy-to-follow steps that are in order?
- Do I use prepositions and adverbs correctly so readers know when and how to do certain things?
- Do I try to get readers excited for the activity?

Make any changes you need to and then read your book a final time. Make sure there are no spelling, grammar, and punctuation errors.

Lastly, call on students to brainstorm how they will present their work. As needed, suggest methods such as reading aloud while demonstrating, using a digital tool to make a copy, or creating an illustrated book or poster.

Possible Teaching Point

Spelling | My Words to Know

Remind students that being an effective speller includes knowing how to spell words that do not follow regular rules or patterns. List the Unit 5 My Words to Know on the board:

- would
- done
- because
- move
- today
- about
- once
- laugh
- learn
- should

Encourage students to check their how-to books one more time, focusing on the spelling of any of the My Words to Know that they have used.

Minilesson

TEACHING POINT Tell students that they will celebrate the writing process by publishing and then sharing their work with the class. Before students read their how-to books, they will practice social communication, such as

- introducing themselves
- talking about their writing experience by sharing what they needed while writing and how they felt about the process

MODEL AND PRACTICE Have students publish their writing by making a final copy with no mistakes. Then they can celebrate all their hard work. Say: We are going to share our writing today. First, we are going to take turns sharing our thoughts and feelings about the writing process. Direct students to p. 209 in the Student Interactive and read through the bullet points. Model how to form a statement for each point. Say: Here is how I will introduce myself. I will say: Hi, my name is ____. I want to share my how-to book called How to Make a Drum. Continue modeling how to talk about your writing experience, what you needed while writing, and how you felt during the writing process.

Possible Teaching Point

Writing Process

Publishing | Use Audiovisual Aids

Sharing a set of instructions gives students an ideal opportunity to incorporate audiovisual aids into a presentation. Offer these suggestions to students as they plan their presentations:

- Have someone photograph you following the instructions at home. Then show each photo at the relevant step.
- Work with a classmate to demonstrate how to follow the instructions.
- Display the finished product as you give the instructions and describe your writing experience.

Assessment

OBJECTIVE

Dictate or compose informational texts, including procedural texts.

Minilesson

TEACHING POINT Before completing an assessment, students can review their understanding of the skills they learned and practiced over the course of this unit.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Explain to students that they will be assessed on their procedural writing skills. Say: You have practiced many skills to write how-to books. Let's review these skills before taking the assessment.

Display and review the following checklist with students. Use texts from the stack as necessary to show the elements and structure of the genre. Have students list the numbers 1–7. As you review the checklist, have students write yes or no next to each number. Have them mark a question mark if they're unsure. Call on students to share their triumphs and challenges with each skill.

Procedural Writing Skills ChecklistI know how to . . .

- 1) structure a how-to book with an introduction, steps, and conclusion.
- 2) write steps of a process in order and use numbers.
- 3) use adverbs to convey time in my writing.
- 4) draw graphics to show readers how to do something.
- 5) use prepositions correctly.
- 6) end sentences with different punctuation marks.
- 7) use correct spelling in my writing.

Have pairs of students review skills they've had trouble with. Offer additional support as needed.

Assessment

Inform students that they are going to take a writing assessment. Using the skills they have learned in this unit, they should respond to the prompt. See the unit assessment on p. T429. Another form of assessment is to score students' published writing using the rubric on p. T429.

WRITING ASSESSMENT

Procedural/How-to Books

Provide students the assessment prompt below. The prompt may be displayed for students or printed from SavvasRealize.com.

PROMPT Write a how-to book about how to get ready for school.

Be sure to

- write an introduction and conclusion.
- write steps in order and number each step.
- include a simple drawing.
- edit for spelling, punctuation, and adverbs.

4-Point Procedural Text Writing Rubric

Score	Focus	Organization	Development	Language and Vocabulary	Conventions
4	How-to book is clearly developed and focused.	How-to book tells the steps in a clear order with an introduction and conclusion.	How-to book includes details about each step.	How-to book uses precise language and/or domain-specific vocabulary.	Writing has correct grammar, usage, spelling, and punctuation.
3	How-to book is mostly focused and developed.	How-to book steps may not be completely clear, and the introduction and conclusion are adequate.	How-to book includes adequate details about the steps.	How-to book uses adequate language and/or domain-specific vocabulary.	Writing has some slight grammar, usage, spelling, and/or punctuation errors but is understandable.
2	How-to book is developed but may lack some key details.	How-to book has some steps, but they are incomplete. The introduction and/or conclusion are missing.	How-to book includes only a few details about the steps.	Language in how-to book is not precise; lacks domain-specific vocabulary.	Writing has some errors in usage, grammar, spelling, and/or punctuation.
1	How-to book may be confusing or unclear.	How-to book has little organization of steps.	How-to book includes almost no details about the steps.	Language in how-to book is vague, unclear, or confusing.	Writing is hard to understand because of errors.
0	Writing gets no credit if it does not demonstrate adequate command of procedural writing traits.

Opinion Writing

If students need additional support,

 Then show a stack book the students are familiar with. Ask: What does the person in this book believe or think about the topic? How do you know?

If students show understanding,

Then ask students to tell different opinions people might have about the same topic in the stack book.

Brainstorm Ideas

If students need additional support,

 Then ask about some of the students' favorite things, movies, heroes, or sports teams.

If students show understanding,

Then ask students to state a reason someone might have that is different from their own reason.

Plan Your Opinion Writing

If students need additional support,

 Then have students practice stating their opinion and one reason aloud.

If students show understanding,

Then ask: Which of your reasons is most important to you? Why?

Conference Support for ELL

EMERGING

- Read an opinion piece with a simple sentence structure.
- Create a sentence frame such as I like ____ better than ____ because ____.
- Explain that reasons tell why.

DEVELOPING

- Use stack books students have heard before. Ask students to tell who has an opinion and how they know the character has that opinion.
- Model language used to identify a reason. Use words such as because and since.
- Model how to choose a favorite from options within a topic and give a reason to explain the choice.

EXPANDING

- Have students review several stack books and restate the opinions and reasons found.
- Discuss how their own opinion is similar to, or different from, the opinion in one of the stack books.
- Discuss additional reasons the author could have given to support the opinion in one of the stack books.

BRIDGING

- Ask students to work with partners to plan their opinion pieces and generate additional reasons.
- Have students identify the opinion and reasons in a new opinion piece.
- Have students make a word bank of specific words that help state opinions and reasons.

ELL Minilesson Support

Week 1: Introduce and Immerse

BRAINSTORM IDEAS

Students may need support generating words to identify reasons that support their opinion.

Display pictures that fit within the same category such as animals, plants, or types of cars. Help students name how the items within a category are different. Help students use those different features to frame their reasons. Provide a sentence frame such as I like ___ best because ___. EMERGING

Have students choose two related pictures. Think aloud as you compare the two and select a favorite. Model different ways to identify your choice and reasons such as, I think ___ is better because it has ___. DEVELOPING

Have students talk with a partner and state their preferences or opinions about several simple topics and provide several reasons. Remind students that they do not need to have the same opinion or the same reasons. EXPANDING

Have students talk together about their opinions and reasons related to a topic such as the best day of the week. Then ask them to restate their partner's opinion and reasons to the larger group. BRIDGING

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT An opinion book expresses the writer's opinion or preference. It includes

- an introduction that tells the topic and opinion.
- reasons that support and explain the opinion.
- a conclusion that restates the opinion in a different way.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Tell students that they will be learning about opinion writing and then write opinion books of their own. Introduce opinion writing by selecting an opinion book from the stack. Read the title aloud and display the cover. Ask students if they can tell what opinion this writer might be expressing in the book. Read the book aloud. As you read, pause to reinforce the topic, opinion, and reasons.

After reading, tell students: The writer helps us know what he or she likes, thinks, or believes. What words does the author use to do that? Ask for specific examples of a clear opinion from within the book. Authors need to give reasons for the opinions. What are some of the reasons given in this book? Help students identify the reasons that support the opinion.

This book is an example of opinion writing. You will be writing your own opinion books during this unit. You can share an opinion about a topic you choose. Read additional books from the stack, pointing out the elements of good opinion writing.

Have students turn to p. 235 in Student Interactive 1.5. Review the parts of an opinion piece: the clear introduction, the supporting reasons, and a solid conclusion.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

After the immersion lesson, students can continue reading stack books if they need more time to develop their understanding of opinion writing. If students demonstrate understanding, they can begin jotting down ideas for their own opinion book. See the Conference Prompts for suggestions.

Share Back

Call on students to tell an element one can find in good opinion writing. Ask students to cite an example from one of the stack texts to demonstrate understanding. Correct any misconceptions as they arise.

Opinion Writing: Topics and Opinions

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT An opinion piece includes a topic, a clearly stated opinion, and reasons that explain and support that opinion.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Select a book from the stack and read it aloud to the class. Ask students to tell why the text is an example of opinion writing. Encourage and model the use of the terms introduction, topic, opinion, reasons, support, and conclusion.

When you have finished reading, remind students that an opinion is a choice or preference and that not everyone will have the same opinion. Explain that even people who share the same opinion may have different reasons to support that opinion.

Use questions similar to these to prompt discussion:

- What words in the text let you know that this is an opinion?
- What reasons are given to support the opinion?
- Which reason do you think is the strongest?
- What question might you ask the author or a character in this book?

OBJECTIVE

Answer questions about important details in a text.

Writing Support

- Modeled Read a stack text aloud and do a Think Aloud to point out the opinion and a reason.
- Shared Prompt students to identify the topic and opinion from one of the books from the stack.
- Guided Use the stack texts to provide explicit instruction on identifying the elements of opinion writing.

Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

As students begin their independent writing time, invite them to continue studying the stack books if they need more time to learn about the elements found in opinion writing. If some students are ready to write, they can use this time to write ideas about how they could introduce their topic and opinion. See the Conference Prompts for suggestions.

Share Back

Ask students to share the topics and opinions from either stack books or the opinion pieces they are starting to write. Ask listeners to restate the writer's topic and opinion in their own words. Remind students to use different words in their restatements.

Opinion Writing: Reasons

OBJECTIVE

Retell the important details in opinion texts.

Writing Support

- Modeled Read a stack book aloud and do a Think Aloud to retell the topic, opinion, and at least one supporting reason.
- Shared Have students choose a stack text and retell a reason given in the text.
- Guided Have students retell several reasons given in one of the stack texts, providing explicit instruction and support as needed.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Good opinion writing provides not just an opinion, but solid reasons that support and explain the opinion. A clearly stated reason will help the reader understand, and perhaps even agree with, the opinion that is presented.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Read aloud from a text in the stack. Ask students to restate the opinion in the text. Write the opinion on a chart or the board. Ask students to retell a reason given in the text. Write that reason on the chart. Have students tell you if the reason is a good connection to and support for the opinion. If the reason supports the opinion, put a check mark by the reason. Provide a non-example of a reason that would not be supportive of the opinion. Ask students to explain why that reason would not be a good one to include.

Read another stack text aloud. Invite students to suggest a reason given that would earn a check mark. Encourage them to explain their thinking.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

If students need additional support before moving to writing independently, have them review the stack books to see how writers use reasons to support their opinions. If students show understanding, have them begin writing reasons to support their opinions. See the Conference Prompts.

Share Back

Invite students to share a reason from their opinion piece. Model how to ask clarifying questions that may help the writer strengthen the reason even more.

Brainstorm Ideas

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Writers often brainstorm ideas before finalizing what they will write. The writer will then choose the opinion that interests them most. Opinion writers also may generate many reasons and then choose only the strongest reasons to include in the final opinion book.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Show several opinion examples from the stack. Help students recall the opinions and reasons in each text. Say: We all have opinions about many things. First, we need to decide on a topic to write about. Model listing several topics and circling the topic of your choice, such as hobbies. Follow the same thinking-aloud process for listing choices within that topic, such as types of hobbies. Circle one choice, such as gardening, that will become the basis of your opinion.

Have students turn to p. 236 in Student Interactive 1.5. Explain that they will use this page to help them choose a topic. They will list choices or items that belong with that topic and then develop an opinion by circling one of the choices. Help them state their topic and opinion as a sentence. Model an example: My topic is hobbies. I could choose swimming, gardening, or dancing. I think gardening is the best hobby.

OBJECTIVE

Plan an opinion piece by selecting a topic and opinion.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

Following the minilesson, have students begin independent writing. If students haven't yet determined a topic and opinion that interests them, have them look through stack books for ideas. If students are comfortable with their topics and opinions, they may continue developing their opinion piece in their stapled booklets. See Conference Prompts for suggestions.

Share Back

Invite students to share the topics and opinions they have chosen. Ask them to explain why they made those choices. Model different ways students might state their topics and opinions.

Writing Support

- Modeled Use a Think Aloud to model brainstorming ideas for an opinion book.
- Shared Once students have brainstormed several topics, suggest an unrelated opinion as a non-example. Ask students to tell why that opinion doesn't fit.
- Guided Help students think of multiple possible topics by looking through picture cards and determining a category that a picture might belong to, such as vehicles, times of day, or animals that fly.

Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

TEACHING POINT An opinion piece focuses on one opinion about one topic. After selecting a topic, the writer considers several opinions within that topic before selecting one. Once the writer has chosen an opinion, the writer uses a reason or reasons to explain that opinion to readers.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Remind students that all the authors of the books in the stack had a plan before beginning to write. When writing an opinion book, writers need to first decide the category or topic they will write about.

Direct students to p. 237 in Student Interactive 1.5. Model selecting a topic and writing in the graphic organizer. Have students assist you in naming and listing choices that fall in that topic or category. Think aloud as you try to decide on an opinion. Then choose your favorite item and write it. State your choice as an opinion. I like taking the train best. It is my favorite way to travel. When you are finished, talk about the suggestions students made and how they were helpful to you as you planned your opinion piece. Follow the same process for planning a reason.

Ask students to complete the page and talk about their decisions with a partner. Circulate around the room and comment on positive examples of collaboration.

WRITING CLUB

Place students in Writing Club groups. See p. WW7 for details on how to facilitate Writing Club.

Share Back

Invite students to share their topics and opinions with the class. Encourage them to tell how comments from others were helpful in making their choices. Ask for specific examples of changes or additions they made based on suggestions from others. Remind students that giving and receiving feedback is an important part of successful writing.

WRITING CLUB

What's Happening This Week? In this week's Writing Club, students will share their topics and opinions for their opinion book.

As students are in new Writing Club groups, they should spend the first 5–10 minutes discussing the following:

- How to listen politely to the speaker
- How to give a helpful suggestion
- How to stay focused

What Are We Sharing? Students should share the topics, opinions, and reasons they are planning to use in their opinion writing. Students may give helpful feedback by suggesting other reasons that might be used to support each opinion. This conversation will help students begin to plan their opinion books.

How Do We Get Started? Conversation Starters

Use these prompts to help students begin the discussions in their Writing Clubs.

- What opinion did you choose?
- What are some of the other opinions you thought about?
- What other reasons are you thinking about giving to support your opinion?

If students need additional support,		Then state an opinion and work with students to develop possible reasons to explain and support that opinion.
If students show understanding,		Then have students evaluate which of the reasons given in a stack book is the strongest.

Conference Support for ELL

EMERGING

- Show students pictures of foods. Have students give a “thumbs up” or “thumbs down” signal for each picture. Use a sentence frame such as I like _____. I do not like _____.
- Have students draw pictures of a favorite food or place. Help them generate a sentence as a reason that explains why they like it.

DEVELOPING

- Work with students to create a word bank of words to state opinions such as like, love, favorite, and best.
- Have students talk about a favorite snack or type of vehicle.
- As students state opinions and reasons, transcribe what they have said. Encourage them to refer back to this as they draft their own writing.

EXPANDING

- Prompt students to tell about a favorite character. Ask questions to draw out reasons for their preferences.
- Ask students to talk with a partner about a favorite wild animal and ask questions of each other.
- Have students retell information about their partner’s favorite wild animal.

BRIDGING

- Invite students to create a topic list for conversations about favorites.
- Encourage students to tell a partner their opinions and reasons before writing.
- Encourage students to provide feedback to partners who are planning their opinion books.

ELL Minilesson Support

Week 2: Develop Elements

During this week, your ELLs will benefit from additional writing support that helps them develop the elements of opinion writing. These targeted supports help students better understand how to draft their own opinion books.

Use this note for the minilesson on p. WW13.

ELL Targeted Support

EXPLORE STATE AN OPINION

Use stack books to identify the stated opinion.

Work with individual students to identify the opinion. Help students draw a picture that shows their own opinion on the same topic. Model and transcribe as needed. EMERGING

Using a stack book, help students form sentences to state whether they have the same opinions as or different opinions from the one stated in a stack book. If students have the same opinions, encourage them to supply different reasons. DEVELOPING

Have students look through stack books with partners and talk about whether they agree or disagree with the opinions and reasons in the books. EXPANDING

Have students state an opposite or differing opinion from one stated in a stack book. Encourage them to give reasons to support their opinions. BRIDGING

See the Language Awareness Handbook for additional writing support.

Use this note for the minilesson on p. WW16.

ELL Targeted Support

APPLY SUPPLY REASONS

Support students as they develop and state reasons that support their opinions.

Have students draw what they want to express an opinion about. Help students develop a reason sentence that uses the word because.

EMERGING

Have students describe the items they are expressing opinions about. Help students use those descriptive words as a bank for writing sentences to state reasons. DEVELOPING

Have students tell partners the reasons for their opinions. Encourage them to use the word because or since when telling why. EXPANDING

Ask students to state reasons someone might give who has the opposite opinion from theirs. BRIDGING

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT The topic of an opinion book is the subject the writer will be writing about. The writer introduces the topic at the beginning of the book. The writer then chooses a position or preference related to that topic.

MODEL AND PRACTICE On small pieces of paper write the titles of several topics such as: first grade, holidays, movies, superheroes, games, books, colors, teams, and baby animals. Place the pieces of paper in a bag. Remind students that a topic is what a person talks or writes about. Invite one student to select a paper from the bag and read the topic aloud. Invite other students to name things that would fall in that category or topic. Ask the first student to then state an opinion about which of those things is his or her favorite. Continue the process with other topics from the bag.

Review several of the stack books, and ask students to identify the topic of each. Discuss how the author introduces the topic to the readers.

Work with students to complete the activity on p. 238 of Student Interactive 1.5.

Independent Writing

During independent writing time, students should write or edit their topic sentences. Then they should continue to write their opinion books. If students have difficulty selecting a topic, encourage them to review topics that were in the bag. See the Conference Prompts for suggestions.

Share Back

Invite several students to read what they have written to introduce their topics. If multiple students select the same topic, discuss different words that are used to introduce it. You may use some of the stronger introductions to create sentence frames as models for future use.

Explore State an Opinion

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT An opinion tells a choice or preference. The writer may write about the best or favorite within a topic. Some writers might write about the worst or least favorite within a topic.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Display a book from the stack. Say: This book is an example of opinion writing. You are writing opinion books. The author of this book wrote an opinion that tells how a character thinks or feels about something. Let's find the opinion in this book. As you read the book aloud, ask students to stop you when they hear an opinion. Discuss the words the author chose to state the opinion.

On a flip chart or the board, create a graphic organizer with Topic written in a box. Draw an arrow from the topic box down to another box in which you write the word Opinion. Using the stack books, do a Think Aloud to model identifying and then writing the topics and the opinions. Work as a group to identify the topics and opinions from several other stack books and record the results on the graphic organizer. Encourage students to use words from the books that state the opinion. Point out any frequently used words or phrases.

Independent Writing

During independent writing time, students should state an opinion in their opinion piece. Provide support for students who have difficulty making a choice. Remind students that their opinions are their own and that different people will likely have different opinions on the same topic. Use Conference Prompts as needed.

Share Back

Ask several students to share their opinions. Point out words and phrases that are used to show a clear choice or preference. You may use some of those words to create an Opinion Word Bank for future use in their writing.

OBJECTIVE

Identify and state an opinion.

Writing Support

- Modeled Read aloud a stack book and talk through the identification of the stated opinion. On a chart, write the opinion sentences you find.
- Shared Have students look through the stack books with partners and find examples of the opinion in both text and images. Invite students to jot down the opinion sentences they find.
- Guided Use stack books to provide explicit instruction to identify and discuss strong opinion sentences.

Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Opinions state choices or preferences that people have. When a writer expresses a strong opinion, it is more interesting to a reader.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Tell students that authors write about opinions they have or that they want their characters to have. An opinion tells what someone thinks, feels, or believes about something.

Say: Today you will be writing about an opinion. When I write about an opinion I have, I might begin thinking of a topic I'm interested in. I like to exercise. I'll write about the exercise I like the best. I might begin by writing, "There are many ways to exercise. Swimming is my favorite." That will tell you that I'm writing about the topic of exercise and that my opinion is swimming is the one I like the most. Write your sentence on the board or a chart.

Tell students that they will be practicing writing an opinion on p. 239 of Student Interactive 1.5. Discuss why writers use strong words like best and favorite. Remind them that not everyone will share the same opinion.

Writing Support

- Modeled Do a Think Aloud as you choose and then state an opinion. Model both a weak and a strong statement to point out the differences.
- Shared Have students practice stating their opinions to a partner before writing it.
- Guided Prompt students to write their opinions as if they were talking with someone who had the opposite opinion. Provide explicit instruction to help students state opinions clearly.

Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

During independent writing time, have students review their opinion book and write a sentence that states a clear opinion. If students need extra support, have them look through stack books and identify some models showing how opinions are stated. Help them craft a sentence using some of those words. Students who are ready may review their other opinion books to check how they stated the opinions. Use Conference Prompts to guide conversations.

Share Back

Have a few students share their opinion statements with the class. Invite students who shared the same topic to state if their opinions are the same or different. You might make a list of words used in clear opinion statements.

Explore Supply Reasons

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Reasons tell or explain why someone has a certain opinion. Writers want to use precise language to help readers understand the opinion. Reasons should support and explain the opinion.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Read aloud one of the stack books. After reading, model how to identify the reasons that were given to explain and support the opinion. Draw attention to words such as because or since. Work with students to identify reasons found in another stack book. Pause while reading to ask why the character has that opinion. Help students use the words because or since when retelling the reasons. Discuss reasons that are especially supportive of the opinion. Repeat with several stack books to help students build confidence in identifying and stating reasons.

Say: When people tell us their opinions, we might wonder why they think or feel that way. You might wonder why swimming is my favorite exercise. Reasons tell why and explain the opinions. A reason might even help someone agree with your opinion or it might lead to a fun conversation with people who have a different opinion or different reasons.

OBJECTIVE

Identify and supply a reason that supports an opinion.

Writing Support

- Modeled Use stack books to model how to identify reasons.
- Shared Encourage students to state a reason they might add to support an opinion in one of the stack books.
- Guided Provide explicit instruction and support as needed to help students supply reasons that connect to and support opinions.

Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Independent Writing

Students should transition into independent writing. If students need additional support supplying reasons, have them draw a picture of their opinion before writing and use their drawing for ideas of reasons to include in their writing. Students who are confident writing reasons should continue working on their opinion books and adding reasons that support their opinions. Use Conference Prompts as needed.

Share Back

Invite students to share a reason that would explain their opinion. Model giving helpful feedback by asking clarifying questions. Encourage students to restate one of the reasons and then ask clarifying questions of each other.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Opinion pieces need reasons to support and explain the opinions. Reasons help readers understand why a character likes or doesn't like something. Authors plan reasons that support the opinions.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Tell students that readers like to understand why a character holds an opinion. Display one of the stack books the students know well. What were some of the reasons we read in this book? What would the book have been like if the author didn't include any reasons? Do you think we would have enjoyed it as much?

Have students look at p. 240 in Student Interactive 1.5. Say: What if a book just said that sharks do not make good pets? Would that be very interesting? Talk together about some of the reasons that explain why sharks do not make good pets. Ask students to choose a reason to add to the page. Remind students that it is natural for different people to have different reasons even if they share the same opinion. Encourage students to then add reasons to their own opinion books.

WRITING CLUB

Use p. WW17 to guide Writing Club. See the Conference Prompts for conducting individual conferences.

Share Back

When Writing Club ends, invite a few students to share their opinions and reasons with the group. Point out how the reasons support the opinion and answer why the writer has that opinion.

Week 3: Develop Structure

During the Develop Structure week, your ELLs will benefit from additional writing support that helps them become more aware of how an opinion book is structured. These targeted supports were chosen to help students better understand how to compose and organize their writing.

Use this note for the first minilesson on page WW22.

ELL Targeted Support

ORGANIZE PARTS OF THE PAGE

Use the stack books to increase student familiarity with the parts of an opinion piece. Guide students to identify the introduction, topic, opinion, reasons, and conclusion in each book. Talk together about why all the parts are important.

Have students fold a paper in three sections horizontally. Help them name and label what would go in the top introduction section, the middle section with reasons, and the conclusion on the bottom. EMERGING

Help students create several sentence frames that may be helpful in opinion writing. Model how the sentence frames might be useful in the different parts of the page. DEVELOPING

Have students choose a book from the stack and use different color sticky notes to identify the parts of the opinion book. Ask students to share how they decided where the sticky notes should go. EXPANDING

Challenge students to tell two options within the topic and explain why they would choose one over the other. BRIDGING

See the Language Awareness Handbook for additional writing support.

Write one of their introduction sentences on word cards with one word per card. Demonstrate how the words can be rearranged with only a few new words added to create a similar, but different, sentence for the conclusion. EMERGING

Have students read their introductions to a partner. Ask the partners to restate the introduction in their own words. Have the writers listen for ideas on how to restate their opinions in new ways to use in the conclusion. DEVELOPING

Ask students to work with a partner to pull apart a sentence that states an opinion and reword it at least two different ways for the conclusion. EXPANDING

Organize Parts of the Page
Authors organize their opinion books before they write. They include the topic, opinion, reasons, and an ending.

MYTURN Label each part.

Topic	We are trying to find the best pet for my family.
Opinion	I think the best pet would be a fish.
Reasons	It would be the best pet because it is quiet. It also can stay in my bedroom.

- Guided Ask questions to help students describe the elements of opinion writing and how the parts are organized.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT A well-written opinion book should include an introduction to the topic and the opinion, reasons that support the opinion, and a conclusion or sense of closure.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Tell students that an opinion book should first include an introduction that introduces the topic and the opinion, followed by one or more reasons that support and explain the opinion. A conclusion should remind readers of the author's opinion and restate it in a new way.

Use a book from your stack. Reread the book and then ask students to identify the elements of opinion writing they noticed in the book. Encourage them to be as specific as possible when telling where an element is found.

After discussing the book, create a three-row chart on a flip chart or the board. Say: When I plan my opinion book, I'll first think of how I will introduce the topic and my opinion. In the top section of the chart write Introduction = Topic + Opinion. I then need to support my opinion with reasons so everyone will understand my opinion. Add the Word Reasons in the center section of the chart. I end with a conclusion that reminds readers of my opinion. Add Ending or Conclusion to the bottom section of the chart.

Have students turn to p. 241 in Student Interactive 1.5. Read and discuss the page together and have them work with a partner to complete the page.

Independent Writing

After completing the minilesson, students should transition to independent writing. If students need extra support, remind students they can use the parts listed on p. 241 in Student Interactive 1.5 as a model for their plans. Students who are confident with their plans may continue working on their opinion books. Use the Conference Prompts as needed.

Share Back

Have students share what they will include in each part of their opinion books. Show how to check that all parts of opinion writing are included and model giving constructive feedback.

Explore Organize Introduction

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT The introduction of an opinion book gives important information to the reader. It lets readers know the topic and opinion clearly. A good introduction sets up the rest of the opinion book.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Talk about the value of a strong introduction in opinion writing. Say: A strong introduction is very important in an opinion book. Your introduction should quickly let the readers know the topic you are writing about and the opinion you will be explaining.

Read several introductions from the stack. Discuss the introduction of each book. Ask: How did the author introduce the topic? How did the author express an opinion? How did the author help us know what the rest of the text would be about?

After reading several models, conduct a shared writing to generate some introductory sentence models that introduce the topic and opinion. Transcribe for the class and display the suggestions on a flip chart or the board.

OBJECTIVES

Draft an introduction to an opinion book.

Identify the topic and opinion in an opinion book.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

After the minilesson, students should transition to independent writing. If students need extra support drafting an introduction, have them review a few stack books for ideas. Encourage them to make a short list of what they want to include, and work with them to craft those thoughts into a sentence or sentences. Students who understand strong conclusions should be encouraged to try several versions of their introductions before deciding on one. See the Conference Prompts for additional suggestions.

Writing Support

- Modeled Read a stack text aloud and point out the topic and opinion.
- Shared Work with students as you write several introduction sentences. Transcribe the ideas of the group or student.
- Guided Ask targeted questions to guide students to include any missing information in their introductions.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT The introduction to an opinion book must clearly state the topic and opinion.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Refer to a stack book and review that a strong introduction needs to let the reader know the topic and opinion that will be the focus of the book. Say: We know that the introduction needs to be a strong beginning to our writing. The introduction of an opinion book needs to tell the topic and opinion. If I decide to write about my favorite type of weather, which is rain, how could I begin? Transcribe several possible sentences of introduction to your topic using suggestions from the class.

Work with the group to revise the sentence or sentences to make a compelling introduction. Continue modeling how you will follow the introduction by stating reasons for your opinion.

Direct students to p. 242 in Student Interactive 1.5. Read the text on the page and make certain students know the task. Encourage students to try saying several options aloud before deciding what to write.

Independent Writing

Following the minilesson, have students continue working on the introductions to their opinion books. If students have difficulty, suggest they add a descriptive word or words to their introductions. If students feel confident in their writing, encourage them to stretch and strengthen the introduction to make it more interesting. Students may then go on to crafting the reasons in their opinion books. See Conference Prompts for suggestions.

Share Back

Invite students to share the introductions they have written. Ask them to share how they stretched and strengthened their original introduction. Model how to give feedback that restates the introduction and encourages the writer's efforts.

Explore Write a Conclusion

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT The conclusion of an opinion book gives the author one more chance to state his or her opinion on a topic. A good conclusion states the opinion in a new way and gives a sense of closure to the book.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Explain the importance of a strong conclusion or ending statement in an opinion piece. Read the conclusion of a stack book aloud and discuss the role the conclusion plays. Say: When we read this conclusion we know that the text is finished. We are reminded of the opinion. A good conclusion restates the same opinion, but does so in a new way. Repeat this process with several other stack books.

As you talk through conclusions in the stack books, note words and phrases that are used. Help students develop a bank of phrases that may serve as models when writing conclusions. Post these on a chart for all to see.

Have students work with a partner to review what they have written and plan what they will draw.

OBJECTIVE

Identify the conclusion in opinion writing.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

As students transition to independent writing, have them draft possible conclusions to their opinion books. Students who understand the elements of conclusions should continue writing their opinion books. If students have difficulty, encourage them to modify one of the models or review a stack text as a jumpstart. See the Conference Prompts for additional suggestions.

Writing Support

- Modeled Conduct a Think Aloud as you reword your opinion in several different ways for use in a conclusion.
- Shared Challenge students to come up with at least five different ways to restate an opinion for use in the conclusion. Transcribe the group's suggestions.
- Guided Ask questions that guide students to check their conclusions to see that they have provided closure and also reworded their opinions in new ways.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Call on several students to share what they have written. Ask the listeners to check if the conclusions restate the opinion in a new way and provide a sense of closure. If an element is missing, invite the group to offer suggestions.

TEACHING POINT Opinion writing includes an introduction that states the topic and opinion, reasons that support the opinion, and a conclusion that restates the opinion and provides a sense of closure. The conclusion might even encourage some readers to agree or think more deeply about the topic.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Choose a familiar stack book. Ask students to tell what should be included in a strong conclusion in opinion writing and if the stack book you have chosen has a strong conclusion. Invite a student to select a different book from the stack and lead the group to discuss how strong or not that conclusion is.

Conduct a shared writing activity as you write and polish the conclusions of an opinion piece. Say: I wrote that rain was my favorite type of weather and gave reasons that tell why. I need to write a conclusion. What ideas do you have to help me? Work together to craft several different conclusions. Help students revise the conclusions to include stronger words.

Have students turn to p. 243 in Student Interactive 1.5. Read the page with the students. Encourage them to try saying aloud several possible concluding statements before deciding which to write.

WRITING CLUB

Use the Writing Club guide on the following page to guide discussions. Use the Conference Prompts when conferring with individual students.

Share Back

Have several students read their opinion books aloud and focus attention on the conclusions. Model how to give encouraging feedback. Invite listeners to tell which words in the conclusions they found strongest.

WRITING CLUB

What's Happening This Week? In this week's Writing Club, students will share the opinion books they have been writing. They will talk about the inclusion of all the elements of an opinion piece.

Students should spend the first 5–10 minutes of their Writing Club time reviewing the following:

- Behaviors of active listeners
- Process for making helpful suggestions
- Using the proper volume and speed when speaking

What Are We Sharing? Students can share how they organized their opinion books and how they checked that all the elements were included. Remind the group that people may have different opinions on the same topic and to be respectful of those differences.

How Do We Get Started? Conversation Starters

Use these prompts to help students begin the discussions in their Writing Club.

- How did you introduce your topic and opinion?
- What other reasons did you think about using?
- How did you state your opinion differently in the conclusion?
- Which part of your opinion book is your favorite? Why?

FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT

Conference Prompts

Capitalization

If students need additional support,

 Then review a book from the stack. Have students point out capitalized words that begin each sentence.

If students show understanding,

Then ask: Your sentences begin with capital letters. When else do we use capital letters?

Conjunctions

If students need additional support,

 Then model how to create sentences using conjunctions. Have students copy the sentences as reminder models.

If students show understanding,

Then ask: How did you choose which conjunction to use here?

Commas

If students need additional support,

 Then have students draw or name several items that fit within the topics of their opinion books. Work together to turn that list into a sentence that includes a series.

If students show understanding,

Then ask: How did you know that a comma was needed here?

Conference Support for ELL

EMERGING

- Write a sentence for each student. Have students circle the initial capital letter and ending punctuation. Tell them to use this as a reminder when they write.
- Model sentences with conjunctions. Have students repeat each sentence and snap their fingers when the conjunction is said.

DEVELOPING

- Use modeled writing to focus attention on the use of capital letters.
- During shared writing, write a sentence that includes a series. Invite students to add the commas where they belong and explain why they should be there.

EXPANDING

- Transcribe sentences students suggest that include conjunctions. Have students circle each conjunction.
- Ask several students to suggest items that belong in the same category. Turn that list into a sentence with a series. Ask students to circle the conjunction in the sentence and tell where the commas should be placed.

BRIDGING

- Have students work with partners to create a sentence that contains a series. Ask which word in the sentence is a conjunction. Check for correct use of initial capitalization and placement of commas.
- Ask students to do a Think Aloud as they place commas in a sentence containing a series.

Week 4: Writer's Craft

During the Writer's Craft week, your ELLs will benefit from additional writing support that helps them focus on understanding grammar rules. These targeted supports were chosen to help students better understand the English language and build foundational writing skills.

See the Language Awareness Handbook for additional writing support.

ELL Targeted Support

EXPLORE CONJUNCTIONS

As students begin to focus on the sentences in their opinion books, they learn to expand and enhance them. Provide practice using conjunctions in sentences.

Write the word because on a word card for each student. Say a sentence including because and ask students to hold up the card when they hear that word. Have students repeat your sentence and then say a sentence of their own. Remind students to hold up the word card when they hear or say because. EMERGING

Write a sentence that includes a conjunction. Point to and say each word and ask students to stop you when you get to the conjunction. Repeat with several sentences. Invite students to create their own sentences and then lead the group to identify the conjunctions. DEVELOPING

Write conjunctions on an index card with one conjunction per card. Ask students to choose a card and then work with partners to develop sentences using that conjunction. Have partners share the sentences with the group. EXPANDING

Challenge students to find sentences that include a conjunction in books from the stack or classroom library. Have them share their findings and tell what two sentences were joined. BRIDGING

Use this note for the minilesson on p. WW35.

ELL Targeted Support

EXPLORE COMMAS

Help students understand how to create a series that includes correct comma usage.

Use picture cards to have students create categories such as animals or vehicles. Create sentences using those cards. "The animal cards I see are lions, bears, and seals." Write the sentences and have students repeat them with you. Point to each comma and pause slightly.

EMERGING

Tell students a category and have them suggest words that fit the category. Transcribe their suggestions. Model a sentence that uses at least three words on the list, and write the sentence for all to see. Discuss where the commas should be placed. DEVELOPING

Write a sentence containing a series. Invite students to place commas where they belong and explain why they belong there. EXPANDING

Have students write a sentence with a series and ask them not to include any commas. Have students exchange sentences with partners and add commas to the other person's sentence. Check for understanding. BRIDGING

OPINION WRITING Read Together

My Learning Goal I can write an opinion book.

Use Capitalization
Every sentence needs to begin with a capital letter. The word I is always a capital letter.

MY TURN Edit the capital letters in these sentences. Write the correct words.

- a dog is my favorite pet. A
- This is what i think is the worst pet. I
- frogs might hop out of a cage. Frogs

MY TURN Write a complete sentence on a separate sheet of paper. Remember to begin the sentence with a capital letter.

- Modeled Use stack books to point out initial capitalization.
- Shared Have partners work together to check for correct capitalization in their opinion books.
- Guided Use stack books to provide explicit instruction on capitalization.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Authors use the rules of capitalization when writing opinion books. They check to be certain that every sentence begins with a capital letter. The word I is also capitalized.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Tell students that when writing, it is important to be certain that their writing follows the rules of English. One important rule is to begin every sentence with a capital letter. Show a page from one of the stack books. Point out that every sentence begins with a capital letter.

Write a sentence on the board that contains the pronoun I somewhere other than as the first word. Say: There is another rule for using capital letters. The word I should be capitalized. In this sentence, there should be two capital letters. What should be capitalized?

Have students turn to p. 244 in Student Interactive 1.5. Have students tell a partner what capitalization rules they should remember. When students have completed the page, talk about the capitalization rules they used.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

After the minilesson, students should transition to independent writing and check their opinion books for the correct usage of capital letters. If students need extra support, help them find capitalization rules that are followed in a stack text. Students who are using capital letters correctly should continue writing their opinion books. See the Conference Prompts on p. WW30 for more suggestions.

Share Back

Have students share sentences in their opinion books and tell what capitalization rules they used. Check that examples are given of initial capitalization and capitalization of I.

Explore Conjunctions

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT A conjunction is a type of word. Conjunctions connect words or parts of sentences. The words and and because are both conjunctions.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the words and and because on a chart or the board and have students read them with you. Invite a student to say a sentence that uses one of these words. Tell students that and and because are conjunctions. Explain conjunctions connect words or parts of sentences.

Select a book from the stack that has several uses of the words and and because. Read a sentence containing one of those conjunctions aloud. Have students repeat the sentence and snap their fingers when they say the conjunction. Write the sentence on a flip chart or the board and discuss what the conjunction is connecting. Repeat the process with several other sentences using the conjunctions and and because.

Talk with students about why the word because is especially useful in writing opinion books. Remind them that because can be helpful when writing reasons to explain or support opinions. Write a sentence using because that contains a reason. Say: I might write, “I enjoy swimming because it is good exercise.” That sentence sounds better to me than writing, “I enjoy swimming. It is good exercise.”

Have students work with partners to create several sentences that use a conjunction. Ask each pair to share a sentence and invite the class to snap their fingers when they hear the conjunction.

OBJECTIVE

Identify and use conjunctions correctly in speaking and writing.

Writing Support

- Modeled Demonstrate how to use and and because to join two smaller sentences. “I have a dog. I have a cat. I have a dog and a cat.” “I like this book. It is so funny. I like this book because it is so funny.”
- Shared Work with students to practice using because to state a reason. Show how a because sentence can be written as two sentences.
- Guided Ask targeted questions to help students identify sentences that could be expanded by using and or because.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

Students should continue writing their opinion books and include conjunctions correctly. If students are struggling with using conjunctions, remind them to look through stack books for examples. Transcribe their possible sentences as needed. When students are comfortable editing their writing to use conjunctions, they should proceed independently to make those changes. See the Conference Prompts on p. WW30 for additional suggestions.

Conjunctions

Conjunctions are words that can join words or thoughts. The word because and the word and are both conjunctions.

- Guided Ask focused questions as students work with partners to write sentences that include conjunctions.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Conjunctions, such as and and because, connect words and ideas in sentences. Authors may use one sentence containing and rather than writing two short sentences. Authors of opinion books often use the conjunction because to connect a reason to the opinion in supports.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Read a sentence containing because from one of the stack books. Demonstrate how using because helps signal the reader that the sentence contains a reason. Say: I could write, “I love rainy days because the rain helps the plants grow.” You know that I’m giving a reason why I love rainy days. The conjunction because connects the reason to the opinion. Have students help you think of another sentence about your topic that uses the conjunction and.

Direct students to p. 245 in Student Interactive 1.5. Read the text on the page and review what students are asked to do to complete the page. Guide students to complete the activity. Then they should begin to look for ways to improve their opinion books with the inclusion of conjunctions.

Independent Writing

Have students continue working on their opinion books. Remind them to use conjunctions when joining words or parts of sentences. If students are struggling with conjunctions, have them refer to how conjunctions are modeled on p. 245 in Student Interactive 1.5. If you observe students using conjunctions correctly, encourage them to continue writing their opinion books independently. See Conference Prompts on p. WW30 for suggestions.

TEACHING POINT When a sentence contains a list of three or more items, commas are used to separate the listed items.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Select a book from the stack that contains a series of items in a sentence that are separated by commas. Read the sentence aloud and then write it on a flip chart or the board. Point out the commas and say: When three or more items are listed in a sentence, we put a comma between each of them. Commas are like a pause in a sentence. Read the sentence again with a clear pause as you get to each comma.

Ask students to name a topic about which you might state an opinion. Using the topic suggested, ask for several items that fit in that category. Use sentence frames such as: ____, ____, and ____ are all types of ____. Say: Let's read that sentence together and pause when we get to a comma. Repeat the process with several other examples that use student suggestions.

Tell students that when they are writing opinion books, they might think about telling several items that belong in the topic before stating a favorite. Provide an example such as, "Apples, oranges, and pears are all fruits I enjoy. Pears are my favorite."

OBJECTIVE

Use commas to separate words in a series.

Writing Support

- Modeled Conduct a Think Aloud as you talk about how to determine if commas are needed and where they should be placed.
- Shared If students are uncertain that they have placed commas correctly, encourage them to read the sentence aloud to a partner. Have them listen for a natural pause.
- Guided Use leading questions to guide students in determining whether there are enough items in a sentence so as to require separation by commas, as well as the correct placement of those commas.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

WRITING CLUB

What's Happening This Week? In this week's Writing Club, students will share their writing to demonstrate understanding of capitalization, conjunctions, and serial commas. Students may confer with other Writing Club members during the editing process.

Students should spend the first 5–10 minutes of their Writing Club time reviewing how they will follow these listening and speaking rules:

- Listen actively by facing the person who is speaking.
- Ask questions to clarify information.
- Everyone should be given a chance to participate.

What Are We Sharing? Before sharing their writing, students should decide which book they would like feedback on during Writing Club. Students who are sharing may begin by asking for specific feedback related to areas such as commas or conjunctions. Students can share the sentences they revised in their opinion books. Tell them to talk about the changes they made and why they made the changes.

Writing Support

- Modeled Use stack books to point out the conjunctions and and because.
- Shared Read aloud a page of a stack book that includes the conjunctions and or because. Have students snap their fingers when they hear the conjunction. Talk together about how it is used.
- Guided Provide examples of specific places in students' opinion books where and could be used.

Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Minilesson

Mentor STACK

TEACHING POINT Before publishing their writing, authors check their writing and make changes that are needed. Authors try to avoid using short, choppy sentences by using the conjunctions and and because to join parts together.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Choose an opinion book from the stack that includes several examples of the conjunctions and and because. Read one of the sentences aloud. Ask students if they heard a conjunction. Ask them to tell what it might have sounded like if the author had written two short sentences and not used the conjunction. Repeat the process with several other sentences.

After discussing the sentences, remind students that not every short sentence needs to be revised to include a conjunction. Talk with students about the value of editing and making changes that are needed.

Have students turn to p. 247 in Student Interactive 1.5. Talk together about what they need to do to complete the activity.

Independent Writing

Mentor STACK

If students need extra support, help them identify more examples of sentences using conjunctions in different stack books. Students who are comfortable using conjunctions should continue adding to their opinion books and choosing what they will share at the Celebration. See the Conference Prompts on p. WW40.

Share Back

Have students share sentences that they improved with the addition of a conjunction. Talk as a class about what the conjunction joined together in each sentence.

FAST TRACK

Edit for Commas

Minilesson

TEACHING POINT When editing, authors check to make certain they have used proper punctuation. When writing sentences that include series or lists, commas are placed between the words in the series or lists.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Explain that reading sentences that include lists or series can be confusing if the commas are not there to separate the items. Write: I like days that are sunny rainy and cloudy. Say: I want to include a sentence that tells some types of weather before telling my favorite. Help me decide where the commas should be placed. Have students show where the commas belong and explain their thinking. Check for any misconceptions. Read the corrected sentence aloud, and pause slightly at each comma.

Have students complete the activity on p. 248 in Student Interactive 1.5. Check that students understand where the commas belong. If students need extra support, work together to complete a model and discuss that commas are a pause between each item in a series or list.

Independent Writing

If students need assistance, work with them as they check each sentence. Students who show understanding should edit their opinion books for the correct use of serial commas. See the Conference Prompts on p. WW40 for additional suggestions.

Share Back

Call on students to read a sentence they changed. Prompt students to tell why that change was made. Explain that editing and making changes is one of the most important steps in writing.

OBJECTIVES

Correctly use commas to separate items in a series.

Edit drafts with adult assistance using standard English conventions, including usage of commas.

STUDENT INTERACTIVE 1.5, p. 248

OPINION WRITING

Edit for Commas

Commas are used to separate words in a list.

My kitten is smooth, soft, and fuzzy.

MY TURN Add commas to the correct place in each sentence.

1. Lions,tigers,and leopards are all big cats.
2. They are large,strong,and can roar.
3. They can be found in Asia,Africa,and in other parts of the world.

MY TURN Edit your opinion book for commas.

Writing Support

- Modeled Do a Think Aloud to model how to use commas to separate words in a series.
- Shared Help students correct any errors of their usage of serial commas in their opinion books.
- Guided Provide explicit instruction on editing for serial commas.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Prepare for Celebration

OBJECTIVE

Publish and share writing.

Writing Support

- Modeled Choose a stack text and do a Think Aloud as you prepare to share the book with the class.
- Shared Have students identify speaking skills they need to practice using the checklist to assist them.
- Guided As students practice sharing their opinion books, direct them to individual points on the checklist to guide them in presenting their work.

 Intervention Refer to the Small Group Guide for support.

Minilesson

TEACHING POINT Before they celebrate their writing, authors get their opinion books ready to share. They check for all of the necessary elements of an opinion book and ensure the writing is clear and polished. They make certain each sentence begins with a capital letter. They check that they have used conjunctions and commas correctly.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Create a checklist with students for sharing their opinion books aloud. Model each of the checklist items and discuss why it is important to remember.

- Speak clearly.
- Read with expression.
- Speak loud enough to be heard by everyone.
- Look at the audience at times.

Reread each item on the list and ask if students have any questions. Remind students to review the checklist as they practice. Display the checklist as students move into independent writing.

Independent Writing

Have students revise and edit their opinion books. Encourage students to practice reading their opinion books aloud quietly using the checklist as a guide. See Conference Prompts on p. WW40 for suggestions.

Share Back

Invite students to share revisions they made. Reinforce the value of making sure their opinion books have all the necessary elements before sharing them with the class.

Celebration

Minilesson

TEACHING POINT Celebrations help students see their own progress and grow in confidence. While students write at different levels, celebrate the growth each student has made throughout the unit. Students will be motivated to write throughout the unit if they have a goal to work toward.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Tell students that you are going to celebrate the writing of your opinion book by reading it aloud to them. Do a Think Aloud before sharing by stating what you need to remember when speaking to a group. Say: I want to do a good job reading my work in front of people. I practice so I can read my opinion book with confidence. I need to speak clearly and loudly enough for everyone to hear me. I need to stand tall and be proud of my work. I know that the listeners will tell me the parts of my writing they thought were written especially well.

Model reading aloud your opinion book. When finished, invite students to give positive feedback about your opinion writing. Prompt students to ask questions and share parts of the opinion books that they thought were especially well done. They should state specific examples. Remind students that they do not need to have the same opinions as the writers to admire the opinion books.

Ask students to practice sharing their opinion books with partners before the formal Celebration begins. You may also have students audio record themselves practicing and do a self-assessment of their reading.

OBJECTIVE

Publish and share opinion books.

Writing Support

- Modeled Do a Think Aloud as you reflect on the experience of writing your opinion books.
- Shared Ask questions to help students think more deeply about what they did well and the areas where they want to improve their writing.
- Guided Give students prompts to help them think about the comments they heard that were helpful and positive.

Independent Writing

Ask students to share their opinion books. Prompt listening students to ask questions and share parts of the opinion books that they thought were especially well done.

Have students reflect on what they have learned about opinion writing. Have them write or tell about something new they learned.

Read Together WRITING WORKSHOP

Assessment
You have learned how to write an opinion book.

MY TURN Read the list. Put a check next to what you can do.

- I can write about a topic.
- I can state an opinion clearly.
- I can supply reasons that support my opinion.
- I can write an introduction and a conclusion.
- I begin each sentence with a capital letter.
- I use commas when writing a list.
- I use conjunctions correctly.

249

Minilesson

TEACHING POINT Assessing and looking back at writing helps students identify all that they have learned and see any areas where they may still need more practice. As you review their assessments, notice what they did well and what areas need improvement. Consider how you will share your feedback with students to help them make improvements and to celebrate what they have learned.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Tell students that today they will be looking back on what they have learned about opinion writing. They will assess what they learned and how their writing has improved. Have students recall the opinion books they have written and also the books they have read from the stack.

Have students turn to p. 249 in Student Interactive 1.5. Review the list as a class to remind them what they have learned. Have students check each skill they have learned and included in their opinion books. Remind students that they should look back at the opinion books they have written to find evidence that they understand and have used that skill.

Assessment

See the unit assessment on p. WW47 and tell students that they will be taking a writing assessment to demonstrate all they have learned. Explain that they should respond to the writing prompt on WW47 using all they have learned about opinion writing. Another form of assessment is to score students' writing using the rubric on p. WW47.

WRITING ASSESSMENT

Opinion Writing

Provide students with the assessment prompt below. The prompt may be displayed for students or printed from SavvasRealize.com.

Prompt Write an opinion piece about your favorite place or favorite sound. First, state the topic and your opinion about the topic. Then supply reasons and include a conclusion.

4-Point Opinion Writing Rubric

Score	Focus	Organization	Development	Language and Vocabulary	Conventions
4	The opinion is clearly stated and well supported.	Organization is clear and effective, creating a sense of cohesion.	The reasons closely connect to, and clearly support, the opinion.	The ideas are clearly conveyed using precise language.	The command of conventions is clearly shown.
3	The opinion is fairly well stated and generally supported.	Organization is generally clear though some ideas are not well connected.	The reasons connect to, and somewhat support, the opinion.	The ideas are adequately conveyed using more general language.	The command of conventions is somewhat shown.
2	The opinion is stated and somewhat supported.	Organization is inconsistent and some elements are missing.	The reasons somewhat connect to the opinion.	The ideas are unevenly conveyed using very simple language.	The command of conventions is weak or uneven.
1	The opinion is not clearly stated and not well supported.	Organization is poor or nonexistent.	The reasons do not connect to the opinion or are missing.	The ideas are conveyed in a vague or confusing manner.	There is very little use of correct conventions.
0	Opinion piece gets no credit if it does not demonstrate adequate command of opinion writing traits.

4-Point Research Project Rubric

Score	Focus	Research	Development	Conventions	Speaking and Listening
4	Opinion is clearly stated.	Two or more relevant sources are used to discover applicable facts.	Dialogue is correctly formatted. Opinion and reasons are logically presented.	Verb tenses and prepositions are used appropriately.	Student introduces himself or herself and the play, speaks clearly at a good rate, and listens actively.
3	Opinion is stated.	At least one relevant source is used.	Opinion and reasons are not directly stated. Dialogue may not be formatted properly.	Writing has few errors in past and present verb tense and prepositions.	Student may forget to make introductions, speak too fast or too slow, or be somewhat unclear. Student mostly pays attention.
2	Opinion may be unspecific.	One source may be used but facts may be off topic.	Opinion, reasons, and facts are not obviously connected.	Errors in verb tense and prepositions are sprinkled throughout writing.	Student makes no introductions and struggles to read clearly and/or with appropriate rate. Student may interrupt performances.
1	Opinion is confusing and unclear.	No outside sources were consulted.	Sentences are incomplete and disorganized.	Writing contains numerous errors in verb tense and preposition usage.	Student does not introduce himself or herself. Speech is unclear and interruptions frequent.
0	Possible characteristics that would warrant a 0: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • No response is given. • Student does not demonstrate adequate command of writing or delivery of a persuasive play. • Response is unintelligible, illegible, or off topic.

Compare Across Texts

OBJECTIVES

Evaluate details to determine what is most important with adult assistance.

Synthesize information to create new understanding with adult assistance.

Use text evidence to support an appropriate response.

Beyond My World

The selections in this unit have helped students understand more about different seasons. Remind students of the unit theme, Beyond My World, and the Essential Question: How do the seasons affect us?

TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Describing Seasons Have students look back at each text from this unit to find a word or phrase that describes a season. Have them write the word or phrase in the Student Interactive on pp. 210–211. Students should think about how the text evidence can help them answer the Essential Question.

Compare Across Texts

Have students explain their understanding of the unit theme, Beyond My World. Ask volunteers to briefly retell each selection from the unit and share the theme of each selection. Use the prompts below to discuss the unit texts.

- Seasons Around the World and Every Season have different genres but share the same topic. Which text helped you understand more about seasons? Why? (Possible responses: Every Season helped me feel what each season was like. Seasons Around the World explained how the seasons are different around the world.)
- Signs of Winter tells what winter is like. What are some signs of autumn in My Autumn Book? (Possible responses: crisp air, chipmunk gathering seeds, geese flying south, leaves changing color.)
- How do the authors of Every Season and In Spring feel about the season of spring? How do you know? (Possible responses: They love spring. The title of the first poem in Every Season is “I Love Spring.” The author of In Spring tells many reasons why spring is the best season.)

Essential Question

MyTURN Have students answer the Unit 5 Essential Question: How do the seasons affect us?

ELL Targeted Support Enhance Understanding Have students work in small groups to enhance and confirm their understanding of the seasons based on the unit texts.

Have students draw a picture based on the text they read showing signs of each season. Ask them to show and describe their drawings in groups. Encourage groups to ask questions about the drawings. EMERGING

Have students share information about each season. Invite groups to confirm the facts by looking for evidence by reading the unit selections. DEVELOPING

Have students make a T-chart to compare two seasons of their choice. Have them work with their groups to read and find descriptions of the two seasons in the unit selections and write them in their charts. EXPANDING

Challenge students to read and compare descriptions of the same season in different unit selections. Have them explain how the descriptions help form a complete picture of the season. BRIDGING

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Blend spoken phonemes to form one-syllable words, including initial and/or final consonant blends.

Segment spoken one-syllable words of three to five phonemes into individual phonemes, including words with initial and/or final consonant blends.

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

Sound-Spelling Cards
89, 101

Phonological Awareness: Segment and Blend Phonemes

SEE AND SAY Point to the picture of the bull on p. 212 in the Student Interactive. Tell students to listen to each sound as you say the word bull: /b/ /û/ /l/. Say: There are three sounds in the word bull. Let's blend the sounds: /b/ /û/ /l/, bull. Repeat with the pictures for book and hood.

PRACTICE Have students segment and then blend the following words: cook, good, wood, stood, hook.

Phonics: Decode Words with the Vowel Sound in foot

Minilesson

FOCUS Use Sound-Spelling Cards 89 (book) and 101 (push) to introduce the vowel sound /û/ spelled oo or u. Remind students that a sound can have more than one spelling. Display the Sound-Spelling Cards and say the words book and push. Point out the spellings of the sound /û/ in each word. Say: The letters oo and u can both spell the vowel sound you hear in the words book and push, /û/. Have students repeat the sound with you.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write and read the word look. Then point to the letter or letters as you say each sound. Have students blend the sounds and tell you the word, look. Ask: What vowel sound do you hear in the word look? Yes, you hear the vowel sound /û/. How is the sound /û/ spelled in the word look? Yes, the sound /û/ is spelled oo in the word look. Repeat with the word put. Then write these words for students to decode: bush, hook, cook, full, bull, stood.

APPLY My TURN Have partners read the words on the bottom of p. 212 in the Student Interactive.

ELL Targeted Support Vowel Sound in foot Students may have difficulty distinguishing between the sound /ü/ spelled oo and the sound /ü/ spelled oo. Provide extra practice for students to hear the difference between word pairs.

Say the words took and tool. Ask: Which word has the sound /ü/? (took) Which word has the sound /ü/? (tool) Then write the words and underline oo in each word. Say: The letters oo can spell the sound /ü/ or the sound /ü/. We need to listen closely to words to know which sound to say when we see these letters. EMERGING/DEVELOPING

Say the word pairs cook/cool, food/foot, and nook/noon. Ask students to raise their hands when they hear words with the sound /ü/ and clap when they hear words with the sound /ü/. Then write the word pairs to discuss how both sounds can be spelled oo, so it's important to listen to the sounds in words. EXPANDING/BRIDGING

HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS

Write the high-frequency words mother, father, picture, another, and through. Remind students they need to practice these words.

- Point to each word as you read it.
- Then spell the word and read it again.
- Have students spell and say the words with you.
- Ask students to write the words in a notebook.

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES Have students recall the previous spelling words with endings.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the following words, and have students read them aloud to you: baby, babies, city, cities, give, giving, baking, living.

APPLY Have pairs work together to sort the words into two groups. One group should be words that change y to i before adding the ending. The second group should be words that drop the final e before adding the ending. Then have them identify the words that are left. Ask: What would you label the group that is left? (They are words without endings.)

Project-Based Inquiry As students proofread their writing, remind them to check their spelling, including the spelling of words with endings.

LESSON 5

Use Lesson 26 in the myFocus Intervention Teacher's Guide for instruction on reading words with vowel patterns.

LEVEL B • MODEL AND TEACH

Lesson 26 Diphthongs and Vowel Patterns

INTRODUCE Remind students that they know vowel sounds besides short or long vowel sounds. You have learned about the /oi/ sound in oil and the /ow/ sound in cow. What is the vowel sound in look? (û) Today you will learn how to read and spell words with these sounds. You will also learn words with two other vowel sounds. You will see different letter combinations for these vowel sounds.

MODEL Display Student Page S151. Say: I will read this story aloud. You follow along. Listen carefully to the vowel sounds in the highlighted words. These are the sounds we will focus on today. Read aloud the passage as students follow along. Slightly emphasize the highlighted words.

OBJECTIVES:

- Learn different sound-letter correspondences for diphthongs (/oi/, /ow/) and for the vowel sounds in /oi/ (oil), foot (û), and new (û).
- Use knowledge of these correspondences to decode words with these vowel sounds, in isolation and in context.
- Apply knowledge of these correspondences to properly spell words with these vowel sounds.

New Toys

We went to the toy store.
I got a ball. Sam got a new game. It is a good game.
Now we play it all the time.
Will you join us? Or we could play with my ball outside!

/oi/	/ow/	/aw/	/oo/	/oo/
toy	Now	ball	good	new
join	outside

TEACH Read the first sentence again. Direct students to look at the chart below the story and find the word toy. What is the vowel sound in toy? Yes, it is /oi/ and it is spelled oy in toy. But there is another spelling for /oi/. See the word join below toy in the chart? How is /oi/ spelled in this word? (oi) Have students find join in the story.

Repeat these steps for words Now and outside. Then introduce the other three sounds, reading the sentence with the target word and referring to the chart each time. See if students can find another word in the story with the same sound and spelling as ball (all). You will learn other letter combinations for this vowel sound later in the lesson. You will also learn other letter combinations for the vowel sounds in good and new.

BUILD WORDS WITH LETTER TILES

Distribute Letter Tiles to students. Have them form these words: put, hook, look, push, book, bull. Then have students tell how the vowel sound is spelled in each word.

Students can also play the Letter Tile game in the myView games on SavvasRealize.com.

Decodable Reader

Have students read and listen to the Decodable Reader The Big Game. The story will help reinforce students' understanding of words with the vowel sound in foot and high-frequency words.

Have student practice reading high-frequency words before reading and listening to the Decodable Reader The Big Game. Pair students for reading and listen carefully as they use letter-sound relationships to decode. One student begins. Students read the entire story, switching readers after each page. Partners reread so the other student can begin.

High-Frequency Words

Have students write this week's high-frequency words on word cards. Have partners take turns holding up a card for the other student to read and then use in a sentence.

The teams pushed through the gate. Then they shook hands.

83

The Rams hit the ball first. Luke was a good catcher.

84

The ball fell. Luke picked it up and ran at full speed. What a good play!

85

The Rams hit the ball very high. Luke put out his arm and looked up.

86

He got up and shook off the dirt. Luke would try to catch another time.

87

Luke and the Wildcats scored more. His mother and father took pictures to put in the scrapbook.

Word Work

OBJECTIVES

Manipulate phonemes within base words.

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

Sound-Spelling Card 134

Phonological Awareness: Manipulate Sounds

SEE AND SAY Point to the picture of a pan on p. 216 in the Student Interactive. Say: This is a picture of a pan. Listen as I say the sounds in pan: /p/ /a/ /n/. Now let's manipulate the sounds. When you manipulate sounds, you move, or switch, the sounds to different places. Let's switch the first sound /p/ and the last sound /n/: /n/ /a/ /p/, nap. Then have students repeat with the pictures for pot (top) and mane (name).

PRACTICE Have students manipulate the phonemes in each word to say a new word: dome (mode), side (dice), peek (keep).

Phonics: Decode Words with Final Syllable -le

Minilesson

FOCUS Use Sound-Spelling Card 134 (candle) to introduce final syllable -le. Write the word candle on the board and read it aloud. Say: A consonant and the letters le at the end of a word form one syllable. Point to and read the word candle again. Say: In the word candle, the letters dle, the consonant d with the letters le, form a syllable. Write the word candle in syllables: can dle. Have students say each syllable. Then have them blend the syllables to say the word candle.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write the word handle on the board and read it aloud. Have students say the word. Then have students divide the word into syllables and tell how the last syllable is spelled. Continue with the following words:

tumble puzzle bottle snuggle

APPLY My TURN Have students practice decoding the word at the bottom of p. 216 in the Student Interactive.

High-Frequency Words

FOCUS TURN, TALK, AND SHARE Remind students that a consonant plus the letters le at the end of a word form one syllable as in the word candle. Then have student pairs practice blending and reading the words on the top of p. 218 in the Student Interactive.

MODEL AND PRACTICE To help students practice recognizing and reading the final syllable consonant + -le, write the words below on the board. Have students read each word as you point to it. Model dividing the words into syllables and point out the consonant + -le spelling in each word. Monitor and correct as needed.

bundle	riddle	dazzle	cattle	sample	fizzle
rattle			settle			sparkle

To check for comprehension, have students sort the words into the following columns. Write the column headings on the board and say the spelling of the final syllable. Then have students explain in which column each word belongs.

dle	zle	tle	ple	kle
bundle	dazzle	cattle	sample	sparkle
riddle	fizzle	rattle

OBJECTIVES

Decode words with closed syllables; open syllables; VCe syllables; vowel teams, including vowel digraphs and diphthongs; and r-controlled syllables.

Identify and read common high-frequency words.

ELL Access

Speakers of Chinese, Korean, and Spanish may have difficulty distinguishing /û/ spelled oo in foot and /ü/ spelled oo in food. Help them practice saying and writing word pairs, such as these: took/tool, cook/cool.

Read Spring Rain

FOCUS Have students turn to p. 220 in the Student Interactive. Say: We are going to read a story today about a little boy named Woody who likes to play in the spring rain. In this story, we will read words with the same vowel sound as in the word foot and words with final syllable consonant + -le. Point to the title. Say: Today's story is called Spring Rain.

IDENTIFY AND READ HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS Before reading, remind students of this week's high-frequency words: mother, father, picture, another, through. Tell them that they will practice reading these words in the story Spring Rain. Display the words. Have students read them with you. Say: When you see these words in today's story, you will know how to read them.

READ Pair students for reading and listen carefully as they use letter-sound relationships to decode. One student begins. Students read the entire story, switching readers after each page. Partners reread the story. This time the other student begins.

Have students turn to p. 221 in the Student Interactive. I see the first word is Woody. What letters spell the sound /û/? Students should supply the answer the letters oo. Have students read and say the word Woody and then underline it. Repeat with the word put in the same sentence. Ask: What other words have the same vowel sound as you hear in the word book? Students should supply the words pulled and look. Have them underline all the words with the same vowel sound as book.

Have students turn to p. 222. Remind students that some words have a final syllable with a consonant and the letters -le. Ask: Which words have the final syllable -le? Students should supply the words little, puddle, and giggle. Have them highlight the words.

Have students turn to p. 223. Ask: Which words have the same vowel sound as the word book? Students should supply the words Butch, Woody, and good. Have them underline the words and identify the letter or letters that spell the vowel sound.

FINAL SYLLABLE -le

Sound-Spelling Card Display Sound-Spelling Card 134 (candle). Say: The word candle has the final syllable -dle.

Have student pairs make a picture book with labels of words with the final syllable consonant + -le. For example, students can include images of a candle, a puzzle, a handle, a bottle, a beetle, a bubble, and so forth.

ELL Targeted Support

Have students learn the relationships between sounds and letters when writing words with consonant + -le.

LEVEL B • PRACTICE AND ASSESS

Lesson 24 Syllable Patterns

REMINDE STUDENTS THAT...

- they know there are different syllable types.
- they can use what they know about different syllable types to read and spell words.

WORD LIST

- kettle
- basket
- sister
- napkin
- able

PRACTICE 1: Syllable Patterns VC/CV and V/CVCV Follow the routine to review the VC/CV syllable pattern and to introduce the V/CVCV pattern.

Routine

1. Introduce the strategy.

Write and read aloud picture and have students say the word several times. This word has two syllables. You know the word can be divided between the two consonants. Then write and read aloud table and have students say it. This word also has two syllables, but it is not divided between the consonants. That is because the word ends in -le. When a word ends in -le, think of those letters as strong. They are strong enough to pick up the consonant in front of them to make a syllable. Say it in table with me: to-ble.

2. Model the strategy.

Write little. I see that this word ends in -le, so I remember that the t in front of those letters goes with them to form the syllable tle. So now I say the word: lit-tle. Yes, that makes sense. Say the syllables and then the word with me: lit-tle, little.

3. Guide practice.

Write picture. Where would you break the word into parts? (between c and t) Say the syllables: pic-ture. Now blend the syllables and say the word: picture. Repeat with under, kitten, and picnic. Then practice with the words handle and giggle.

For additional practice, use the Word List in the side column.

Have students cut apart the word cards on Student Page S142. Have pairs read each word, decide where it breaks into syllables, and draw a line between the syllables.

rabbit	panda	mitten
dinner	cable	inside
bottle	hammer	sentence

MONITOR PROGRESS Write the following sentences: What will happen if I walk in a puddle? I will get my new cotton pants wet! Have students identify the words with two syllables.

IF... students do not recognize happen, puddle, and cotton, THEN... review the routine and the practice words in the lesson.

Phonological Awareness: Segment and Blend Phonemes

MODEL Explain that segmenting means to say each sound in a word. Blending is when you put all the sounds together to say a word.

Listen as I segment the sounds in the word brake: /b/ (pause) /r/ (pause) /ā/ (pause) /k/. Then blend the sounds to say the word. Have students blend the sounds with you. Continue with the word brick.

PRACTICE Using the following words, have students listen to each word, segment the sounds in the word, then blend the sounds to say the word: strand, boot, shout, soup, sick, snow, puddle, tone.

Phonics: Spiral Review Open and Closed Syllables; Vowel Team oo, ou

Minilesson

FOCUS Open syllables end in a long vowel sound. Closed syllables are closed off by a consonant and have a short vowel sound. The vowel sound /ü/ can be spelled oo in boot or ou in soup.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Write each of the words listed below. Have students read the words and point out the open or closed first syllable or the letters that spell the sound /ü/.

robot	never	lemon	frozen
room	you	soup	boot

APPLY Have pairs say or write other words they know with the vowel teams oo and ou. Ask volunteers to share their words with the class. Then have them write and read other VCV words they know with an open or closed first syllable, such as wagon or pilot.

ELL Targeted Support Syllable Patterns Some students whose home language is monosyllabic may pronounce two-syllable words as two separate words. Have students practice saying multisyllabic words. Create word cards with these word parts: lem, on, ze, bra, ro, bot, wag, on.

Work with students to put the various word parts together to make complete words. Explain that each word part is a syllable, and when you put the syllables together, you blend them together to say a word. EMERGING

Have partners work together to make words using the word cards. Explain that each word card has a syllable. Review what open and closed syllables mean for the vowel sound. Then guide students to read the words. DEVELOPING

Have students put the word cards together to make words. Ask them to read the final word and use the words in sentences. Point to each first syllable, and ask students if it is an open or closed syllable. If necessary, review what open and closed syllables mean before students respond. EXPANDING

HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS

Remind students that high-frequency words are words they will hear and see over and over in texts. Write each high-frequency word on the board: mother, father, picture, another, through. Have students say and spell each word as you point to it.

Then direct students to write the words in their notebooks and write sentences using the high-frequency words. Then have student partners switch notebooks and read each other's sentences.

Monitor and correct as needed.

Inquire

OBJECTIVES

Work collaboratively with others by following agreed-upon rules for discussion, including listening to others, speaking when recognized, and making appropriate contributions.

Participate in shared research and writing projects.

Generate questions for formal and informal inquiry with adult assistance.

Develop and follow a research plan with adult assistance.

RESEARCH ARTICLES

See the Small Group Guide for additional information on how to distribute the articles.

ELL Language Transfer

Adjectives In Spanish, adjectives may follow nouns, such as in the name Río Grande, or “big river.” Have students practice saying or writing the following adjectives before nouns in English: cold, soft, fast, wet.

Introduce the Project

Tell students that they will write and perform a short play to persuade an audience that a season of their choice is the best. Display p. 224 in the Student Interactive, and read aloud the prompt. Guide students in building background knowledge and setting a purpose for the project.

CRITICAL LITERACY

Build Background

Read-Pause-Make Connections Distribute copies of “Summer and Winter Sports.” Use the research article to help students build background knowledge about seasons. Have students take turns reading a paragraph and sharing connections to the text. Write these stems on the board.

- In this season, I . . .
- This reminds of a time when . . .

Ask pairs to share their connections with the class.

COLLABORATE

Have pairs discuss what they do or do not like about each season. Ask students to generate two research questions about seasons. Explain that students will develop a plan for research with a partner. A research plan tells the steps for the project. Point out the first step of the Best Season Research Plan on p. 225 in the Student Interactive. Ask questions to help students develop a plan.

Use Academic Words

COLLABORATE

Review the Academic Vocabulary words sense, expect, process, and information with students. Have them use the words to talk about the background images on pp. 224–225. Encourage students to think about which words they can use in their play.

EXPERT'S VIEW Alfred Tatum, University of Illinois at Chicago

“Reading often puts students in contact with other people, but writing puts students in contact with themselves. Writing is the true intellectual exercise and has a wide range of benefits for students.”

See SavvasRealize.com for more professional development on research-based best practices.

DIFFERENTIATED SUPPORT

OPTION 1 Intervention On the board, draw a four-square chart with a circle in the center. Label the center circle “Seasons.” Elicit the names of the seasons from students, and write each season name in one square in the chart. Have students describe the weather, landscape, and activities for each season. Then have students use the chart to determine which season they like best, and generate two questions about seasons.

OPTION 2 Extend Have pairs complete a KWL chart about what they know about seasons, what they want to know, and what they learn from the research article.

ELL Targeted Support

Have students review the definitions of the Academic Vocabulary for the unit. Help students discuss seasons with a partner using sentence frames, such as: The information I want to know is _____. I expect that _____. The first step in the process is _____. This season, I sense that _____.

NEXT STEPS Assist students by having them continue to develop and follow a research plan with a partner. Invite partners to share their research plan in small groups. Make sure that students can cross off the first step by choosing a season and generating questions for research. Explain that students will learn more about persuasive writing and finding sources in the following lessons.

Explore and Plan

OBJECTIVE

Recognize characteristics of persuasive text with adult assistance and state what the author is trying to persuade the reader to think or do.

Explore Persuasive Writing

Help students recall that authors write persuasive texts to convince readers to think or do something. As students read the research article “Happy in Hawaii,” have them discuss what the author is trying to persuade readers to think or do.

RESEARCH ARTICLES

Summer and Winter Sports	390L, 450L, 590L
Happy in Hawaii	380L, 410L, 570L
Shine On, Sunshine!	360L, 430L, 580L

See the Small Group Guide for additional information on how to distribute the articles.

CUSTOMIZE IT!

Have students think about the persuasive texts they have read in the past. Guide them to discuss how the authors try to convince readers. Then ask students to imagine ways they can convince their readers.

CRITICAL LITERACY

Challenge the Text

Distribute copies of the research article. Explain that students will read critically to understand the author’s purpose for writing the text. Have students take turns reading paragraphs aloud with a partner. After reading, have students discuss the prompts below.

- What is the topic of this article?
- What does the author want us to think about the topic?
- Who do you think this article is written for?
- What reasons does the author give to persuade readers?

Record students’ responses. Facilitate a discussion about characteristics of persuasive text.

COLLABORATE

Have students work in pairs to write responses to the prompts on p. 226 in the Student Interactive.

Write for a Reader

Audience Remind students that they should be considering their audience as they begin writing their plays. Ask guiding questions, such as: Who will you perform your play for? What do you want them to think or do? How will you convince your audience to think or do that?

ELL Targeted Support Listening Comprehension Preteach vocabulary words from the article to support students' understanding.

Show a map of the United States. Have students listen as you point out Hawaii on the map, and explain that it is a state made up of several islands. EMERGING

Read the article aloud for students. If they hear an unfamiliar word, have them raise a hand. Then write the word on the board and give a definition. DEVELOPING

Have students scan the article for unfamiliar words. Define words as students listen so they can point out and write the unfamiliar words on the board with their definitions. EXPANDING

Have students scan the article for unfamiliar words. Have them listen as you say the words and give their definitions. Then have students use the words in sentences. BRIDGING

NEXT STEPS Explain that students will conduct research for their plays. Remind them that they will look for answers to their research questions, and they will use the information to write their persuasive plays.

Conduct Research

OBJECTIVES

Work collaboratively with others by following agreed-upon rules for discussion, including listening to others, speaking when recognized, and making appropriate contributions.

Identify and gather relevant sources and information to answer the questions with adult assistance.

Search Online

TEACHING POINT Tell students that a relevant source has information that will help them answer questions. Students will gather, or collect, a list of relevant Web sites to use to find information to answer their questions. Explain that they will use key words or phrases to find Web sites. Use the Model and Practice to help students search for a Web site.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Remind students that their task is to write a play to persuade an audience that a certain season is better than the rest. Explain that to search online, students must come up with key words, or important words, that relate to their research questions or season. The key words will help them identify and gather relevant sources.

Model brainstorming key words and phrases. Say: The season I want to research is summer. I have two questions about summer: What are fun things to do in summer? Why are days longer in summer? Write the topic and questions on the board. Say: Now I will come up with key words and phrases using my topic and questions. Key words are important words that I will use to search online. They help narrow my topic so that I can find exactly what I need. Underline the phrase things to do in summer. Explain that some key words or phrases, like the underlined phrase, can be found directly in the research question. Other key words will have to be determined using related words. Underline the phrase days longer in summer. Say: Using this phrase, I will write the key words long summer days. What other key words or phrases can we come up with? Guide students as you brainstorm search words.

Show students how to access a student-friendly Web site. Demonstrate finding the search box and typing in key words from the model and practice. Then show students how to identify and gather relevant sources, or Web sites.

COLLABORATE Have student pairs work collaboratively to write their season and one question about their season on p. 227 of the Student Interactive. Then have them brainstorm key words or phrases to use to identify and gather relevant sources. Tell them to follow rules for discussion, including listening to each other, speaking when recognized, and making appropriate contributions.

EXPERT'S VIEW Julie Coiro, University of Rhode Island

“Talking and conversation are important elements of reading and building understanding. Rather than having kids working individually on a computer with a headset on, students should be collaborating, talking, discussing, and questioning. Reading on the Internet often involves two students sitting at one computer and making sense of information together. This develops a collaborative give and take—questioning, thinking, responding.”

See SavvasRealize.com for more professional development on research-based best practices.

DIFFERENTIATED SUPPORT

OPTION 1 Intervention If students struggle to write key words and phrases based on their questions, have them practice determining key words from their topic using word webs. In the center, have them write their season. Then have students write important words related to their season in the surrounding circles.

OPTION 2 Extend After students complete p. 227, allow them to begin searching online using their key words and phrases.

ELL Targeted Support

Allow students to use their home language to brainstorm key words for their online search. Then have them write the key words in English. Group students who have chosen the same season. Have them share their key words with their groups.

NEXT STEPS Have students finalize their topics and research questions. Explain that they will begin writing their persuasive plays in the next lesson.

STUDENT INTERACTIVE, p. 227

CONDUCT RESEARCH Read Together PROJECT-BASED INQUIRY

Search Online

A relevant source has information that will help you answer questions. A Web site is one kind of source. You can use key words and phrases to search for relevant Web sites. Then you can gather, or collect, a list of Web sites you will use in your research.

Possible response:

My season is summer.

One question about my season is
Possible response:

1. What are fun things to do in summer?

COLLABORATE Write key words and phrases you will use to find and gather relevant sources.
Possible response:

sunshine, longest day of the year,
summer activities

Collaborate and Discuss

OBJECTIVES

Recognize characteristics of persuasive text with adult assistance and state what the author is trying to persuade the reader to think or do.

Identify and gather relevant sources and information to answer the questions with adult assistance.

Demonstrate understanding of information gathered with adult assistance.

RESEARCH ARTICLES

Summer and Winter Sports	390L, 450L, 590L
Happy in Hawaii	380L, 410L, 570L
Shine On, Sunshine!	360L, 430L, 580L

See the Small Group Guide for additional information on how to distribute the articles.

CUSTOMIZE IT!

Have students write a persuasive movie script instead of plays. Students can add acting directions to characters in the middle of the dialogue. They can draw pictures of the sequence of events to create a storyboard. Have students think about what they want the audience to see as they visualize their movie.

Analyze Student Model

TEACHING POINT Direct students to the student model on p. 228 and read the play aloud. Use the Model and Practice to discuss characteristics of persuasive plays.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Say: A play has a title and characters and dialogue. It may tell the setting. Have students identify the title, setting, and characters in the student model. Point out the special formatting of the character names and dialogue. Then say: A persuasive play uses the dialogue between characters to convince the audience to think or do something. What does the author want the audience to think? Help students identify the author’s opinion and supporting reasons.

CRITICAL LITERACY

Compare Viewpoints

Distribute copies of “Shine On, Sunshine!” Use the research article to help students discover how sunlight affects mood. Instruct pairs to take turns reading aloud the article. When they are finished, have them complete the following tasks:

1. Write two interesting facts from the article.
2. Explain why someone might like summer better than winter.
3. Tell one way this article is the same and one way this article is different from “Happy in Hawaii.”

Create a Fact Sheet

COLLABORATE Students will encounter a multitude of facts during their research. Explain that they should identify and gather relevant information that answers their questions. Tell students that, by answering the questions, they demonstrate an understanding of the information they gathered. Have students review their inquiry questions. On p. 229, ask student pairs to demonstrate, or show, their understanding of the information they identified and gathered by writing three facts about their seasons from their sources. Invite pairs to tell how their facts answered their questions.

ELL Targeted Support Express Opinions Provide sentence frames to help students express their opinions through dialogue.

Model by saying: I think the best season is summer. It is warm and we can swim. What do you think is the best season? Provide a sentence frame for students to communicate their opinions: _____ is the best season because _____. EMERGING

Use the student model to make an outline of a persuasive play for students to fill in. Encourage pairs to take turns expressing their opinions through dialogue. DEVELOPING

Provide sentence starters for an opinion, reasons, and facts to help students discuss dialogue for a play. Then have students read their dialogue aloud. EXPANDING

Have pairs work together to write a persuasive play. Challenge pairs to incorporate as many convincing facts from their research as possible. Then have students read their plays to the class. BRIDGING

NEXT STEPS Explain that students will revise and edit their persuasive plays before performing them for the class. Check in with each student pair to be sure they are on track to complete their plays before the end of the day.

Extend Research

OBJECTIVES

Edit drafts using standard English conventions, including past and present verb tense.

Edit drafts using standard English conventions, including prepositions

CUSTOMIZE IT!

Have students record their plays as movies. Help students use a student-friendly video editor to show the title at the beginning of their movie and add credits at the end of the movie. Encourage students to add special effects to their movies using a video editor or simple camera tricks.

Primary Source SCIENCE

Go to SavvasRealize.com for primary sources that will help students with their research.

Explore Props and Costumes

COLLABORATE Have students turn to p. 230 in the Student Interactive. Point to the picture and say: You add different things to your performance to make your play more fun for your audience. Costumes are special clothing worn by actors to show what their character is like. Props are objects that actors use on stage. A visual is a large drawing that can show the setting or other things to help the audience imagine a part of the play. Have pairs discuss what props, costumes, and visuals they will use for their play. Provide supplies for students to begin creating materials for their performance.

Revise

COLLABORATE Have students read their persuasive plays aloud to a partner. Students should use the checklist on p. 231 to evaluate their plays and provide constructive feedback. Ask students to check that their opinion persuades readers that their season is the best.

Edit

COLLABORATE Define past tense, present tense, and preposition for students. Give examples of each. Tell students to read their plays again and check for correct verb tense and prepositions.

Write for a Reader

Audience Have students make sure that their plays will be understandable and enjoyable to their intended audience. Remind them to make sure that their reasons will be convincing to the people they want to persuade.

DIFFERENTIATED SUPPORT

OPTION 1 Intervention If students struggle to edit their plays, write sentences on the board with mistakes in verb tense or prepositions. Invite volunteers to correct the mistakes and explain their reasoning.

OPTION 2 Extend Have students practice performing their plays with their props, costumes, and visuals.

ELL Targeted Support

Have students work in small groups to revise and edit their plays. Distribute copies of students' plays so all members of the group can follow along and mark up their copies.

NEXT STEPS Remind students that they will be performing their plays for the class. Encourage students to choose roles and practice performing their plays.

Celebrate and Reflect

OBJECTIVES

Develop social communication such as introducing himself/herself and others, relating experiences to a classmate, and expressing needs and feelings.

Make connections to personal experiences, ideas in other texts, and society with adult assistance.

Synthesize information to create new understanding with adult assistance.

Use an appropriate mode of delivery, whether written, oral, or multimedia, to present results.

CUSTOMIZE IT!

Set up the classroom like a movie theater and have a viewing party of students' movies. Invite students and teachers from other classrooms to view students' movies.

ELL Access

Have small groups discuss their reflections on their plays and the unit. Ask them to share one thing they learned from writing their plays and one thing they learned about seasons this unit.

Share

COLLABORATE Read aloud the options for sharing their persuasive play on p. 232 of the Student Interactive. Explain to students that they can choose a way to share their play. Say: There are many ways to share our writing. We can think of the best way to present. Explain that they can perform their play, read it aloud, or make a final copy for others to read and maybe perform.

Model introducing yourself and your play. Have volunteers introduce themselves and their plays. Model listening actively.

Invite students to explain why they chose their way to share their writing.

Reflect

MyTURN Have students turn to p. 232 and complete the sentences. Model completing the prompts: One thing I like about my play is how funny the dialogue is. The most fun part about this project is acting out my play with props and costumes.

Encourage students to think about the steps in their research plan. Ask students to reflect on how well they executed each step. Use prompts, such as the ones below, to encourage reflection.

- Have students explain how their inquiry questions guided their research.
- Ask students to think about how they wrote their plays. Ask questions, such as: What was the hardest part about writing your play? What would you do differently?
- Have students recall their performances. Ask questions, such as: How did your props, costumes, or visuals add to your play? If you had more time, what would you add to your performance?

Reflect on the Unit

Reflect on Your Goals Have students look back at the Unit Goals page at the beginning of the unit. Have students reflect on their reading and writing skills. Briefly discuss the Essential Question: How do the seasons affect us? Then have them assess their progress on the Unit Goals.

MyTURN Reflect on Your Reading Invite students to return to the Compare Across Texts section on pp. 210–211 in the Student Interactive to reflect on the unit’s reading. Have students briefly summarize each text. Ask volunteers which text was their favorite and why.

Reflect on Your Writing Help students recount the writing they did in this unit. Ask students to reflect on their writing with prompts, such as: Which type of writing did you most enjoy? Why? What did you like about writing a how-to book? What was difficult about writing a how-to book?

Reading and Writing Strategy Assessment Checklists

The Reading and Writing Strategy Assessment Checklists will help you monitor student progress.

BOOK CLUB

OBJECTIVES

Self-select text and interact independently with text for increasing periods of time.

Establish purpose for reading assigned and self-selected texts with adult assistance.

FLEXIBLE OPTION TRADE BOOK LESSON PLAN

To teach this unit's trade book during Small Group or Whole Group, see the lesson plan for Moving with the Seasons, available online at SavvasRealize.com.

Plan Book Club

- 1 CHOOSE THE BOOK Group students who read at similar levels, or create interesting learning opportunities by allowing advanced readers to mix with emergent readers. Help students choose a book or choose one for them from the list on p. T469.
- 2 KNOW THE BOOK Skim the book in advance, so that you are familiar with the details and can guide students' conversations when necessary.
- 3 PREVIEW THE BOOK Present your chosen book to the assembled groups. Briefly preview the book's main idea without giving away too much information. Then allow students to explore the book on their own.
- 4 ENJOY THE BOOK Remember that Book Club is a time for students to learn to read for enjoyment. As they read and discuss the book in a group, they will apply some of the same thinking they have been introduced to in the Student Interactive, but the focus will be on their conversations with club members as they share their observations and personal responses to the book.

★ CONNECT TO THE THEME To help students make text connections, you might help them choose a book related to the theme, Beyond My World, or the Essential Question for the unit: How do the seasons affect us? As a class, discuss how the book relates to both.

★ CONNECT TO THE SPOTLIGHT GENRE To help students focus on elements of informational text, consider helping them choose a book in that genre.

Each Day

DISCUSSION CHART Display a sample of the Discussion Chart. Explain that after each session with their Book Clubs, students will share details they notice, connections they make, and things they wonder about from the reading.

TEACHER'S ROLE Since Book Club is a time for students to enjoy reading in an informal setting, the teacher's role should be as an observer and occasional facilitator, helping to focus or jump-start conversations among students.

COLLABORATION One key aspect of Book Club is the oral interaction among students. Model constructive conversation with sentence frames such as these. SEL SOCIAL-EMOTIONAL LEARNING

- I liked your idea about _____.
- I don't agree with _____ because _____.
- Do you agree with me that _____?
- What do you think about _____?

Book Club Options

See the Small Group Guide for help with

- Book Club roles and responsibilities.
- Book Club routines.
- guiding a student-led Book Club.

BOOK CLUB

OBJECTIVES

Work collaboratively with others by following agreed-upon rules for discussion, including listening to others, speaking when recognized, and making appropriate contributions.

Describe personal connections to a variety of sources.

Book Club Routine

READ ALOUD At each Book Club session, students will first listen to you read aloud from your chosen book, and then they will meet with their Book Club group to explore more deeply what was read.

ESTABLISH GROUPS Divide students into their Book Club groups for the unit.

- Tell students how much time they have to work in their groups.
- Explain that they should be prepared to share their ideas with the whole class.

WEEKLY FOCUS Over the course of Book Club, groups will discuss the book multiple times, focusing on three different aspects of the book.

Text Students discuss the text of the book. What information do they learn from the words the author uses?

Images Students study the book's photographs and graphics to see how they add to and fit with the words on the page.

Design Students examine the look of the pages, the visual connection between words and pictures, and the choices the designer made to add interest to the text and images.

GUIDE BOOK CLUB

If students have trouble getting started in their conversations, try these talking points to guide conversation along one of the weekly focuses.

- Which words help you understand the topic?
- How do the photographs add information?
- How did the designer use color to draw your attention to important information?

Book Support

After the individual groups have their discussions, bring them back together as a class to talk about what was said in each group. Record the groups' Noticings, Connections, and Wonderings in the Discussion Chart, adding to it on each Book Club day.

Noticings	Connections	Wonderings

Noticings Students should focus on what they notice in the text, images, and design. They might think of some questions that they can answer as a group.

Connections Students should make connections between the text, illustrations or photographs, and design, and their own experiences and background knowledge.

Wonderings Students should think of questions that they still have after looking at the text, images, and design. Create another Discussion Chart to record their connections and wonderings. Share the ideas with the whole class.

Talk about each Book Club's ideas when the whole class comes together.

BOOK CLUB

OBJECTIVES

Self-select text and interact independently with text for increasing periods of time.

Establish purpose for reading assigned and self-selected texts with adult assistance.

MODEL LESSON PLAN

For Weeks 1–3, Book Club offers instruction specific to this unit’s book, Moving with the Seasons. For Weeks 4–5, you can use a book from the list provided or a book of your own choosing. On pp. T468–T471, you will find a full description of the elements of Book Club with instruction that can be adapted to the book of your choice.

Moving with the Seasons

BOOK CLUB ROUTINE Book Club will meet twice each week, during Small Group time. On each Book Club day, students will continue a collaborative discussion about the book, focusing on different elements from week to week.

WEEKLY FOCUS Over the course of Book Club, groups will consider different aspects of the book.

Week 1: Text Students will discuss the text of the book. What do they learn about the topic from the words on the page?

Week 2: Pictures How do the pictures contribute to students’ understanding of the topic?

Week 3: Design How does the designer use color, shape, and position of words and pictures to stress certain ideas and information?

TEACHER’S ROLE Since Book Club gives students a chance to read for fun, the teacher’s role should be as an observer and occasional facilitator, helping to restart stalled conversations or keep students focused.

EXPERT’S VIEW Frank Serafini, Arizona State University

“Literacy assessments should help you come to know children as readers and writers. Use them to gather information to drive your instruction. In order to support readers and writers, we need to know what they can and cannot do. It takes a variety of assessment tools to get to know children as readers and writers—literature logs, running records, observational notes, think aloud protocols, and conferences all help us get to know our students.”

Discussion Charts

As students discuss the text, pictures, and design, record their ideas on a Discussion Chart. Each day the discussion will center on one of three distinct focuses:

- Noticings lets students note what catches their attention in the book.
- Connections encourages students to read the book through the lens of their own lives.
- Wonderings allows students to share any questions that remain after reading the text.

Week 1

Launch Moving with the Seasons

INTRODUCE Remind students that Book Club is a time to enjoy books. They will listen to Moving with the Seasons as it is read aloud.

READ ALOUD Tell students to listen closely as you read aloud from Moving with the Seasons. Then they will meet with their Book Club group to explore more deeply what was read. Today they will focus on understanding the words in the text.

CONNECT TO THE THEME Tell students that Moving with the Seasons connects both to the unit theme, Beyond My World, and to the Essential Question for the unit: How do the seasons affect us? As a class, discuss how the book relates to both.

CONNECT TO THE SPOTLIGHT GENRE Remind students that the genre for this unit is informational text, writing that gives facts and details about real people, places, and things. Moving with the Seasons fits this genre.

- This book's purpose is to give information about animal migration.
- Moving with the Seasons presents facts and details about different animals and their movements at different seasons of the year.

ESTABLISH GROUPS Divide students into their Book Club groups for the unit.

- Tell students how much time they have to work in their groups.
- Explain that they should be prepared to share their ideas with the whole class.

Focus on Text: Noticings

Session 1

GUIDE BOOK CLUB

Give students time to discuss the book in their groups. If they have trouble getting started, introduce the following points to get groups talking about their noticings based on the text:

- What does the author mean by migration?
- I noticed that humpback whales swim to warmer water in fall and back to colder water in spring.
- What did you notice about the reason wildebeests migrate?

Bring the class back together. Display a new Discussion Chart and tell students that today they will fill in the Noticings column. Allow each Book Club to share an idea about the text. What did they notice?

COLLABORATION Tell students that people of all ages join Book Clubs to talk about books and learn from each other. Students should listen carefully and build on the ideas of others. Offer sentence frames such as these as examples of how students should phrase their ideas productively and respectfully. SEL SOCIAL-EMOTIONAL LEARNING

- Your idea about _____ is interesting because _____.
- I don't agree with _____ because _____.

BOOK CLUB

OBJECTIVES

Work collaboratively with others by following agreed-upon rules for discussion, including listening to others, speaking when recognized, and making appropriate contributions.

Describe personal connections to a variety of sources.

Week 1

Focus on Text

Today students will continue to focus on understanding what the text of Moving with the Seasons says, or what the text is about. They will listen closely during Read Aloud time. They will explore the text further in their Book Clubs, using the Discussion Chart to focus today on their connections and wonderings.

RETELL Review the reading and discussion from Session 1 by having students name some of the animals they learned about in Moving with the Seasons. Discuss the noticings that they shared. Display the Noticings Chart from Session 1 as you begin the day's discussion.

Book Club Options

See the Small Group Guide for help with

- choosing a different book for your class to read.
- conducting Book Club with a book of your or your students' choosing.
- guiding a student-led Book Club.
- facilitating Book Club when there are not enough books for all students.

Connections & Wonderings

Session 2

GUIDE BOOK CLUB

Ask students to discuss the book in their groups. If conversation stalls, introduce a question or observation to get them talking about their connections and wonderings about the text.

- I have seen garter snakes in my garden, but I never knew they went underground in cold weather!
- I wonder how Arctic terns have the energy to make such long trips from north to south and back again.
- Can anyone tell the group about a long trip they took to a new place?

Bring the class back together. Display the Discussion Chart and tell students that today they will fill in the Connections and Wonderings columns. Allow each Book Club to share something they connect to or wonder about in the text.

Connections	Wonderings

COLLABORATION Remind students of the importance of listening politely and taking turns in any group discussion. SEL

As students share their connections and wonderings, ask them to keep these points in mind:

- Am I talking more than my classmates are?
- Do I have something important to add?
- Have I listened carefully to the conversation so far?

Today students will focus on understanding how the photographs and maps in Moving with the Seasons add information to the text. Students will pay close attention to the pictures during Read Aloud time. They will explore the pictures further in their Book Clubs using the Discussion Chart. Today they will focus on their noticings.

Noticings

Session 3

GUIDE BOOK CLUB

Allow students time to discuss the book in their groups. If necessary, model a noticing or ask a question about what students notice.

- I notice that there seem to be thousands of butterflies in the trees.
- What do you notice about the map on page 15? What do you see when you look at the paths that the wildebeests take in spring and fall?
- How do the arrows on the maps help you understand the animals' migration?

Bring the class back together. Display the Discussion Chart and tell students that today they will add to the Noticings column. Allow each Book Club to share something they noticed about the illustrations.

Noticings

COLLABORATION Remind students to listen actively to their fellow club members.

As students share their noticings, ask them to keep these points in mind: SEL SOCIAL-EMOTIONAL LEARNING

- What is the main point my classmate is making?
- Do I agree with what my classmate just said?
- Could I contribute something to what was just said?

Session 4

GUIDE BOOK CLUB

Give students time to discuss the book in their groups. If students have trouble focusing, introduce a question or observation to get them talking about their connections and wonderings about the pictures.

- Do we live near any of the whale routes on the map? Which route comes closest to where we live?
- I wonder how many butterflies migrate in a group.

Reconvene the class and display the Discussion Chart. Tell students that today they will add to the Connections and Wonderings columns. Allow each Book Club to share something they connected to and something they wondered about from the photographs.

Connections	Wonderings

COLLABORATION Tell students that communicating clearly means speaking slowly and loudly enough to be heard easily.

SEL SOCIAL-EMOTIONAL LEARNING

As students share their connections and wonderings, ask them to think about these questions:

- Am I mumbling my words or am I speaking clearly?
- Is there a better way to say this?
- Can everyone in the group hear what I say?

BOOK CLUB

OBJECTIVES

Work collaboratively with others by following agreed-upon rules for discussion, including listening to others, speaking when recognized, and making appropriate contributions.

Describe personal connections to a variety of sources.

Week 3

Focus on Design

Today students will focus on understanding how their enjoyment of Moving with the Seasons is aided by the book's design. They will look at headings on the pages, the use of bright colors, the location of text, and the design of the maps. Students will pay close attention to the design during Read Aloud time. They will explore the design further in their Book Clubs, using the Discussion Chart to focus today on their noticings.

RETELL Review the reading and discussion from Session 4 by having students name a photograph or map that amazed or puzzled them from Moving with the Seasons and discussing the connections and wonderings that they shared. Display the Connections and Wonderings Chart from Session 4 as you begin the day's discussion.

Book Club Options

See the Small Group Guide for help with

- choosing a different book for your class to read.
- conducting Book Club with a book of your or your students' choosing.
- guiding a student-led Book Club.
- facilitating Book Club when there are not enough books for all students.

Noticings

Session 5

GUIDE BOOK CLUB

Have students talk about the book in their groups. If they have trouble focusing specifically on design, use some examples to spark discussion.

- I notice that sometimes the words are in colorful boxes, but other times they seem to be part of a picture.
- How does the designer let you know the topic of each pair of pages?
- What do you notice about how the designer separates the information about fall and spring?

Reconvene the class. Display the Discussion Chart and tell students that today they will add to the Noticings column. Allow each Book Club to share something they noticed about the design.

COLLABORATION Remind students that one of the purposes of Book Club is to learn about books from each other's observations and ideas.

SEL SOCIAL-EMOTIONAL LEARNING

As students share their noticings, ask them to keep these points in mind:

- Did anyone's idea make me think differently about the book?
- What should I do if I am confused?
- Do I have something to add that will interest my classmates?

Today students will continue to focus on understanding how the design of Moving with the Seasons contributes to the experience of reading the book. They will observe the design closely during Read Aloud time. They will explore the design further in their Book Clubs, using the Discussion Chart to focus today on their connections and wonderings.

RETELL Review the reading and discussion from Session 5 by having students take turns mentioning things that they noticed in the design of Moving with the Seasons. Display the Noticings Chart from Session 5 as you begin the day's discussion.

Connections & Wonderings

Session 6

GUIDE BOOK CLUB

Have students begin by discussing the book in their groups. If they have trouble focusing on design elements, provide these models:

- What other informational texts have you read that have headings on the pages?
- I wonder why the designer used circles around some art and squares around other art.

Reconvene the class. Display the Discussion Chart and tell students that today they will add to the Connections and Wonderings columns. Allow each Book Club to share something they connected to and something they wondered about from the design.

Connections	Wonderings

COLLABORATION Encourage participation by reminding students that everyone belongs to Book Club and has the right to share.

SEL SOCIAL-EMOTIONAL LEARNING

As students share their connections and wonderings, ask them to keep these points in mind:

- Have I shared anything yet today?
- Is anyone feeling left out?
- Am I listening quietly until it's my turn?

Picture Dictionary

OBJECTIVES

Use a resource such as a picture dictionary or digital resource to find words.

Identify and use words that name actions, directions, positions, sequences, categories, and locations.

How to Use a Picture Dictionary

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES A picture dictionary is a resource readers can use to find words. It has illustrations or photographs that show what the words mean. Each picture has a label that names what the picture shows. Picture dictionaries can have words and pictures that belong in the same group.

- Find the word in the picture dictionary.
- Look at the picture. What does the picture show? How does the picture help you figure out the definition, or meaning, of the word?
- Look at the name of the group. Why does the word belong in that group? Why do all the words belong in that group?

MODEL AND PRACTICE Have students turn to pp. 250–251 in the Student Interactive. Say: This is a resource called a picture dictionary. We can find words and then use the pictures to help figure out the definitions, or meanings, of the words. This picture dictionary has words that fit into categories, or groups. We can use the name of the category to help us understand the group of words. Ask students to point to the word turtle. Say: The word turtle names an animal. The picture can help us understand what a turtle is. Have students turn to p. 251. Point out and read the names of the categories. Ask: In which category does turtle belong? What other words belong in that category?

Have partners identify and use the words that name categories on p. 251 in the Student Interactive. Then ask them to explain why each set of words belongs in the category.

Have students consider the key attributes of each of the objects shown on pp. 250–251 in the Student Interactive. For example, after students name and categorize turtle, have them state a sentence that defines the word using its key attributes, such as “A turtle is an animal with a shell.”

Glossary

OBJECTIVE

Use a resource such as a picture dictionary or digital resource to find words.

How to Use a Glossary

Minilesson

FOCUS ON STRATEGIES A glossary is a dictionary at the back of a book. It tells the definitions, or meanings, of important words that are used in the book. Sometimes there is a picture to help you understand the definition. The words in a glossary are listed in alphabetical, or ABC, order.

- Look at the first letter of the word you want to find in the glossary.
- Use the guide words in the glossary to help you find the right page. Guide words are at the top of each page. They are the first and last word on the page. Ask yourself, Does my word come before or after these guide words? Does my word come in between these guide words?
- Use the second letter in your word to help you find the word on the page.
- Read the sentence to help you understand the definition.

MODEL AND PRACTICE Have students turn to p. 252 in the Student Interactive. Read aloud the introduction. Then discuss the model. Say: This shows what a word and its definition look like in this glossary. What do the green letters Tt tell you? Yes, all words that begin with t come after Tt. Which word shows the word we want to find? Yes, the blue word is the word we are looking for. That word is used in a sentence to help us understand the definition, or meaning. What is the definition of temperature? Read aloud the sentence. Say: Now let's use the alphabet and the guide words to find temperature in the glossary. Guide students to determine that temperature is on p. 256. Ask: How do the guide words on page 256 help you find the word temperature?

Write these words on the board for partners to find in the glossary: breeze, fawns, summer, winter. Ask them to find each word and read the sentence. Then ask partners to use each word in their own sentence.

TEXT COMPLEXITY CHARTS

Every Season

By Shelley Rotner and

Anne Love Woodhull

Genre: Informational

Text

Recommended Placement

The Quantitative Measures place this text in the Grade 1 complexity band.

The Qualitative Measures suggest that students might need additional support with

- Text Structure: Poetic-like structure of text
- Knowledge Demands: Features of each season

Before reading the selection, use the Reader and Task Considerations to help you plan how to address various student populations.

Quantitative Measures

LEXILE: 490L

Average Sentence Length: 5.846

Word Frequency: 3.044

Word Count: 228

Complexity Level

Qualitative Measures

Author's Purpose

Simple

Very Complex

The informational text implies its purpose: to describe enjoyable features of each season. Most ideas are concrete and familiar to students, although some students may need support for seasons they have not experienced.

Text Structure

Simple

Very Complex

While headings organize each season (I Love Spring; I Love Summer Too), the text uses a creative, poem-like structure with line breaks, spacing between letters and words, and different font sizes. Photos support the text, but the structure may be challenging to some students.

Language Conventuality and Clarity

Simple

Very Complex

Language is largely explicit and easy to understand. There are several instances of more complex verbs (slither, swirl, flutter, scurry) and some potentially unfamiliar concepts, such as holding baby animals, going to the beach, raking fall leaves, and playing in the snow. Students may need support with unfamiliar seasonal experiences.

Knowledge Demands

Simple

Very Complex

Knowledge of the features mentioned for each season may be unrecognizable or abstract to students without those experiences. Students may need background knowledge of the main features of each season (temperatures, precipitation, plant and animal life).

Reader and Task Considerations

English Language Learners

Knowledge Demands Have students draw pictures to show the four seasons. Students can add details to their pictures as you guide them to understand what the seasons are like where you live. Ask:

- What is the temperature?
- What is the weather like?
- Are plants growing?
- What are animals doing?

Intervention

Structure Explain that writers sometimes have fun with how text appears. Display some books of poetry that use line breaks, creative spacing between words and letters, and other text treatments. Ask:

- Why do you think the author wrote the text this way?
- Does the way the text is written make reading it more fun? How?

On Level/Advanced

Language Say: Authors use sensory words—words about how things look, taste, feel, sound, and smell.

- Have partners select an object in the classroom and create a web that describes it, using the senses.
- Have pairs share their web, hiding the object's name. Have the rest of the class guess the object.

Seasons Around the World
By Ana Galán
Genre: Informational Text

Recommended Placement

The Quantitative Measures place this text in the Grade 1 complexity band.
The Qualitative Measures suggest that students might need additional support with

- Text Structure: Index, table of contents, callout boxes
- Knowledge Demands: World map and seasons

Before reading the selection, use the Reader and Task Considerations to help you plan how to address various student populations.

Quantitative Measures

LEXILE: 510L Average Sentence Length: 8.6 Word Frequency: 3.656 Word Count: 258

Complexity Level

Qualitative Measures

Author's Purpose

The text's purpose is clear and explicit: to inform readers about seasons around the world. There is an additional implied purpose of identifying specific places and the weather that occurs there. Students may need help determining that secondary purpose.

Text Structure

Text features (table of contents, headings, index) organize the information explicitly. However, callout boxes with additional information and the globe graphic may be challenging for students. Support in how to use each feature will be beneficial. Photos support the descriptive text but are not essential.

Language Conventionalty and Clarity

Language is clear and conversational, but the text includes some complex sentence structures (When it is winter in the northern part of the world, it is summer in the southern part!). Students may need support with introductory phrases (Near the North Pole,... During summer,...).

Knowledge Demands

Some students may be unfamiliar with features of certain seasons. The information provided by the globe graphic will also need explanation. Some background knowledge of globes, different areas of the world, and different seasons will be needed.

Reader and Task Considerations

English Language Learners

Intervention

On Level/Advanced

Knowledge Demands Display a world map and a globe. Explain that both show the location of places in the world.

- Point out specific, familiar locations and features (bodies of water, the equator, the poles).
- Point out a location on the map and then point to the same location on the globe.

Have students practice using the map and globe to locate a country.

Structure Explain that text features can help you find text. Display examples of a table of contents and an index.

- Define each feature and demonstrate how to use it.
- Have students use each feature to locate specific information.

Have students share how each feature can help them read the text and better understand it.

Language Say: Introductory phrases can tell more about when or where something happens. Use the following sentences to illustrate.

- In fall, leaves fall from the trees. (tells when)
- At home, I can eat dinner on my couch. (tells where)

Have pairs write examples of sentences with introductory phrases and share them with the class.

TEXT COMPLEXITY CHARTS

In Spring

By Angela Johnson
Genre: Persuasive Text

Recommended Placement

The Quantitative Measures place this text in the Grade 1 complexity band. The Qualitative Measures suggest that students might need additional support with

- Language: Figurative language
- Knowledge Demands: Characteristics of spring

Before reading the selection, use the Reader and Task Considerations to help you plan how to address various student populations.

Quantitative Measures

LEXILE: 480L Average Sentence Length: 7.619 Word Frequency: 3.522 Word Count: 160

Complexity Level

Qualitative Measures

Author's Purpose

Simple Very Complex

The author's purpose is explicitly stated on the first page: Why is spring the best season? There are so many reasons. Just ask me! The author's reasons clearly follow, and at the end of the text, the author asks readers to like spring: There are so many reasons to like spring! Don't you think so too?

Text Structure

Simple Very Complex

The text is generally sequential in that most pages present the author's reasons. The repetition of the phrases In spring and you can (you can see, you can run, you can feel) remind readers that the author is "talking to them" about why spring is the best. Illustrations closely support the text by showing the characteristics of the spring season.

Language Conventinality and Clarity

Simple Very Complex

Sentences are mainly simple, with some introductory phrases (In spring ...) and prepositional phrases (beneath the pond's melting ice). Language is easy to understand but does include figurative language (breezes blow hints of hotter days; It waves good-bye to one season and welcomes another).

Knowledge Demands

Simple Very Complex

Students who are unfamiliar with the spring season may struggle to understand the author's reasons. Background knowledge of the spring season will help students' understanding of the text.

Reader and Task Considerations

English Language Learners

Intervention

On Level/Advanced

Knowledge Demands Create a four-column chart with each season listed at the top. Discuss each season, using the following categories.

- Temperature
- Precipitation
- Plant life
- Animal life

Have students share their favorite season.

Purpose Explain to students that sometimes authors want readers to think the same way about a topic. Say: I think the morning is the best time of day. What reasons can I give to get you to think the same way?

- Guide students to identify reasons to support your argument. List ideas.
- When the list is complete, ask students if they agree with you. Discuss reasons why.

Language Say: Figurative language is language that describes but doesn't always have a literal meaning. Figurative language can compare two things or talk about the senses.

- Provide examples of figurative language from books.
- Have students find other examples from books.
- Have students share examples and discuss the meaning as a class.

My Autumn Book

By Wong Herbert Yee
Genre: Fiction

Recommended Placement

The Quantitative Measures suggest that this text is at the upper level of readability for Grade 1. Use the Qualitative analysis below to inform and support your instruction.

The Qualitative Measures suggest that students might need additional support with

- Language: Figurative language; unusual sentence structures
- Knowledge Demands: Characteristics of autumn; plant and animal life in autumn

Before reading the selection, use the Reader and Task Considerations to help you plan how to address various student populations.

Quantitative Measures

LEXILE: 540L Average Sentence Length: 6.979 Word Frequency: 3.358 Word Count: 335

Complexity Level

Qualitative Measures

Levels of Meaning

While the author clearly describes autumn, there is a central idea that is implied: the author is creating a book that shows all the wonders of autumn. This is suggested by the title but is not evident until the end of the story.

Text Structure

The descriptive text structure follows an unconventional pattern, with fragments (Empty my pack) and reversed word order (Downstairs I rush). Continued lines often begin with capitalization reminiscent of poetry. Students will need support tracking text and understanding these patterns.

Language Conventinality and Clarity

Several instances of figurative language (Dogwood shows off a new crimson gown; Trees dressing up for the fall celebration) and onomatopoeia (rap-a-tap; KER-yak) will require support for student understanding. Many words are challenging (crisp, silken, investigate, beware, scamper, formation, delay, fetch).

Knowledge Demands

Students who are unfamiliar with autumn will require background knowledge of the characteristics of the season. Most students will need support understanding leaves changing color, animals preparing to hibernate, and birds migrating.

Reader and Task Considerations

English Language Learners

Intervention

On Level/Advanced

Knowledge Demands Share images of autumn: leaves changing color, animals gathering food for winter, and birds flying south. Say: In many places, autumn is the season right before winter. In winter, it gets very cold. Plants and animals change to stay safe and warm.

Have students draw pictures of themselves gathering food for winter and as trees changing color.

Language Explain that authors compare things in order to describe them. Say: My car is a gray elephant. I'm comparing my car to an elephant because it is gray and very big.

Discuss with students the meaning of this figurative language:

- The dog's fur was a warm, brown blanket.
- The soup was a golden pool of warmth.

Structure Say: Sometimes authors use different sentence types and features, such as using new lines and capital letters. Display a book of poetry by Shel Silverstein, Emily Dickinson, or another poet. Point out the varied sentences, capitalizations, and line breaks.

Discuss how the formatting makes the text more interesting.

Recommended Placement

The Quantitative Measures place this text in the Grade 1 complexity band.
The Qualitative Measures suggest that students might need additional support with

- Text Structure: Descriptive and cause-and-effect organization
- Knowledge Demands: The effect of Earth's orbit on seasons; characteristics of winter

Before reading the selection, use the Reader and Task Considerations to help you plan how to address various student populations.

Quantitative Measures

LEXILE: 480L Average Sentence Length: 8.029 Word Frequency: 3.592 Word Count: 281

Complexity Level	Qualitative Measures
Author's Purpose Simple Very Complex	The author's explicit purpose is mainly to describe the characteristics of winter, but the changes of each season and Earth's orbit around the sun are implied. Students may need support understanding the concept of the impact the Earth's position relative to the sun has on weather and seasons.
Text Structure Simple Very Complex	The author mostly uses a descriptive text structure to show the characteristics, features, and examples of winter. However, the text begins with a cause-and-effect text structure, explaining how the movement of Earth causes winter.
Language Conventionality and Clarity Simple Very Complex	Language is largely explicit and easy to understand, with some occasions of more complex meaning. Most sentences are simple with some including introductory phrases (In the winter, Instead of raining). Content-area vocabulary (seasons, weather) is defined in the text.
Knowledge Demands Simple Very Complex	Students who are unfamiliar with winter will need background knowledge of the characteristics of the season. Most students will benefit from information on weather and the position of Earth in relation to the sun and on animal preparation for winter and hibernation.

English Language Learners	Intervention	On Level/Advanced
Language Display a glossary and explain that it tells what words in a text mean. Provide students with words and have partners work together to practice using a glossary, locating the word in the text, and then in the glossary. Help students read the definition and then reread the word in the text.	Knowledge Demands Display photos of winter, including snow, people bundled up, and animals preparing for winter. Create a web graphic organizer and prompt students to help you complete it with information about the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Temperature • Precipitation • Plant life • Animal life 	Structure Explain that authors sometimes include additional information in texts. Display examples of callout boxes or sidebars in a text. Review the information discussed in the main text and in the callout box. Discuss how the information is connected or relates. Have small groups write a callout box or sidebar for a page in an informational text they are reading. Remind them to connect the information to the main text.
